

BATTLE OF THE BULGE
NEW YORK (P) — Men's waistlines are getting bigger.

The average men's belt size has gone up as much as four inches in the past 25 years in some parts of the country, reports Herbert Novick, executive director of the Association of Men's Belt Manufacturers.

New England and the Middle Atlantic states, where many corporations have their offices, shows an average belt size of 36 inches compared with 32 a quarter century ago.

The South has maintained a trim 32 average, up only one or two inches over the last generation. And the West maintains middle road around the middle with the average belt sold measuring 34 inches.
