

Traffic Stopper

Mrs. Anne MacDonald, 31, mother of four, shows how she acts as a roadside vamp to slow down fast drivers outside the village of Graveley, England. Wearing a halter top and jeans, Mrs. MacDonald gives the hitch-hiking sign to passing motorists. When they stop and offer her a lift she thanks them for stopping and tells them she hopes they'll observe the village's 30 mile-per-hour speed limit. (AP)

TTI Researchers To Receive Award

Two A&M engineering professors will be honored by the National Safety Council Monday in Chicago.

B. F. K. Mullins and Charles J. Keese will receive the $500 Metropolitan Life Award of Merit for research in accident prevention for 1962.

The A&M men are being honored for their research in a freeway traffic accident analysis and safety study. Mullins was the principal investigator who conducted the study with Keese, executive officer of the Texas Transportation Institute.

The award will be presented at the general session of the traffic conference as part of the National Safety Congress. Mullins will accept the award from Dr. George M. Wheatley, third vice president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Notifying Mullins and Keese of the forthcoming award was Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council.

"Your very thorough and comprehensive work on the freeway traffic accident analysis and safety study is an outstanding contribution to traffic safety and to accident prevention and reduction," Pyle said. "I feel certain that in the years to come, the effects and application of your work will become increasingly valuable."

"On behalf of the National Safety Council," Pyle continued, "may we express our sincere gratitude for the work that you and Professor Keese have done."

The study by Mullins and Keese was initiated in 1958 by the Texas Transportation Institute under sponsorship of the Automotive

Safety Foundation. Its purpose was to determine the possible correlations between freeway accidents and specific geometric design features on urban freeways.

They also investigated methods of improving accident reporting by traffic enforcement officials.

The study considered some 10,000 accident reports on 54 miles of freeways in the five largest Texas cities and covered from two to five years of data.

The history faculty is represented by articles appearing in the October, 1962, issue of the "Southwestern Historical Quarterly," publication of the Texas State Historical Association.

Dr. Thomas L. Miller, associate professor of history, is author of "Texas Bounty Land Grants, 1835-1888." He has written extensively on the land system of Texas. In this latest article, Miller considers the amount of land promised to soldiers in advance of their military service in Texas. The legislative history of the bounty system in Texas and the issuance of land titles are traced.

Also appearing in the current issue of the quarterly is the diary of Lewis Harvie Blair, published as "Lewis Harvie Blair: Texas Travels, 1851-1855." Dr. Charles E. Wynes, while an assistant professor of history here, edited the material. The article was made possible, in part, by a grant from the Fund for Organized Research of A&M for the summer of 1961.

Wynes in September became an assistant professor in the Department of History at the University of Georgia.

Architecture Students, Staff Attending Houston Convention

Staff members and students from the Division of Architecture are attending an architecture convention, "Arts and the Man," in Houston through Saturday.

Staff members attending the convention are T. R. Holleman, head of the division; W. Cecil Steward, assistant professor; Samuel T. Lanford, assistant professor; and William G. Wagner, also an assistant professor.

All fifth-year architect majors and officers of the Design Student

Society in their fourth year are also attending the convention.

A symphony program will be presented for the convention members Thursday night at 8:30, with Sir John Barbirolli conducting and Basil Rathbone narrating.

To begin Friday morning, a business session is scheduled at 8:30 in the Rice Hotel. A special seminar is planned that afternoon at 2:30. The seminar is entitled "The Architect's Expanding Practice."

Friday night delegates will attend the "Gala Convention Ball" in the Rice Hotel. The ball will last until 1 a.m. Breakfast will be served.

The A&M group will tour several new Houston buildings and will visit the Houston Medical Center Saturday morning.

To conclude the weekend delegates will attend the football game between the Rice Owls and Texas

Longhorns at 8 p.m. in the Stadium.
