Bonfire Work Gets Underway November 17

Construction on this year's bonfire will begin Saturday Nov. 17 and continue through Monday, Nov. 19. All undergraduate classes will be dismissed on Monday.

The same general arrangements for the bonfire that were in effect last year have been approved by the executive committee of the Academic Council, according to W. J. Graff, dean of instruction.

In addition to these days, those juniors and seniors who do not have classes on the afternoons of Nov. 13, 14 and 15 may go to the wooded area to perform preparatory work, including some preliminary wood cutting. Freshmen and sophomores are not permitted to work on these three afternoons.

A safety committee of the Industrial Education Society will guide construction of this year's bonfire as a safety and first aid program.

The society is a departmental club under the direction of L. B. Hardemann, professor of industrial education. Dr. C. H. Groneman is head of the department, and faculty advisor for the Safety Committee is Dr. E. R. Glazener.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Benly Gillis, a senior industrial technology major from Houston, is working with the Bonfire Committee to insure effective methods of preventing accidents in the construction of the bonfire.

The safety program will include instruction of underclassmen on the procedure of handling heavy wood. Upperclassmen will be instructed in the use of axes.

Approximately one week preceding the bonfire, an hour class on safety methods will be held in Guion Hall for freshmen and sophomores.

STATE CAMPAIGN WRAP-UP

TV Fuss In Race Spotlight With Week Before Polls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Texas gubernatorial candidates, still fuming over a television fuss, struck out on their final week of campaigning Monday.

Democrat John Connally charged in Dallas that his opponent, Republican Jack Cox, is trying to keep Texas television stations from using a tape recording of an appearance by the candidates before the League of Women Voters in Dallas last week.

HE SAID Cox wired television stations concerning the videotape of the league appearances: "Use of pre-recorded material in which we appear would have to appear without my approval."

Meanwhile, Cox told more than 400 San Angelo voters that his election would mean faster industrialization of the state, increased tourism and no tax increases.

Cox said that if he is elected, he will ask for legislation that will insure a secret ballot in Texas and which would provide stiff penalties for vote fraud.

CONNALLY, speaking at a $10-a-plate party luncheon, said that Cox, who has been critical of Connally's ties with Johnson, led a Stephens County delegation in 1960 pledged to support Johnson for president.

Connally said GOP charges of Washington ties and the Billie Sol Estes case were "bogus issues."

He said the "phony issues" were "calculated to appeal to people's prejudices and hatred."

"There's no question but what I'm friendly with the President and Vice President," Connally said. "I was friendly with President Eisenhower. I knew half of his cabinet. So what?"

Connally spent most of the day in Dallas at luncheons and coffees and receptions.

Ag Extension State Meeting Held Here

"Pursuing Excellence" is the theme for the 1962 state conference of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The week-long conference got underway Monday with registration in the Memorial Student Center.

The conference brings together the largest single unit of the nation's Agricultural Extension Services, a part of the Land-Grant System. The idea for the Extension Service originated in Texas. From the Porter Farm demonstration in 1903, it has become the unique system of extension, self-help education. Dr. Seaman A. Knapp arranged for the first demonstration as a means of combating the boll weevil. Its purpose was to show that cotton could be produced profitably, under the threat of the boll weevil, if best known scientific information was used.

Beginning with this single farm, extension education spread to the home, the family and community and today is known throughout the Free World. The Smith-Lever Act of 1914 provided the authority to make it the third great arm of the Land-Grant system. The others are resident teaching and research.

Director John E. Hutchison, in commenting on the conference theme, said, "In this day of change, we will study the latest on science and technology as it affects our responsibilities to the people of Texas."

The formal program began Tuesday morning. Dean R. E. Patterson, School of Agriculture, welcomed the participants and present system and college administrative staff members. Hutchison also outlined the objectives of the conference.

President Elmer Ellis, University of Missouri, spoke on "The Land-Grant College and Its Relationship to Progress in the Next Decade" and at the afternoon session Administrator E. T. York Jr., Federal Extension Service, Washington, D.C., discussed "Achieving Excellence in the Cooperative Extension Service." President Earl Rudder followed with a discussion of "A Program of Excellence at A&M College and Your Role as the Local Representative."

This evening will be devoted to recreational activities.

Applications should be able to get a year's leave of absence from their respective school systems to attend the institute. Other prerequisites include a year of college-level chemistry, physics and one semester each of college algebra and trigonometry completed by September, 1963.

Three Groups Give Quota For Chest

This year's Campus Chest drive, A&M's student emergency assistance fund, started Monday with 100 per cent contributions from three campus groups.

The Civilian Student Council contributed $1.50 per man. The First Brigade and the First Battle Group staffs each gave $1 per man, according to Ken Stanton, chairman of the Student Senate welfare committee.

Seventy per cent of the funds collected will be retained for Aggies' use. The remaining 30 per cent will be divided among the Brazos County Tuberculosis Association, the March of Dimes and the College Station Community Chest.

Purpose of the Campus Chest is to assist Aggies who suffer a tragedy such as an accident or loss of property. Each case is reviewed to verify that assistance from the Chest is needed. Many students have received help from the Chest in past years.

A bronze plaque will be awarded to the corps unit or civilian dormitory which collects the most per man. A certificate will be awarded to each group which averages $1 per member.

"A DOLLAR from an Aggie for an Aggie," is the theme, and $8,000 is the goal for the five-day-long drive.

"A chart showing contribution results of the civilian dorms and corps units is located at the entrance of the Memorial Student Center near the post office," Stanton said.

Dormitory presidents and unit commanders are asked to collect the Campus Chest donations from their respective groups.

Group donations should be carried to the Student Finance Center in the MSC between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day this week.

Deposits should be placed in the Campus Chest account, account number 160. Stanton asks depositors to write the number of men in their group on the deposit slip.

"We of the Student Senate sincerely hope that you will make this year a successful one for the Aggie Campus Chest drive he said.

The first dollar of the campaign was donated last Thursday by James P. Hannigan, dean of students.

Peace Corpsman To Lecture Here

A Peace Corps representative to colleges and universities, Paul A. Daly of Washington, will make a series of talks Nov. 1-6 on the campus.

Daly, an animal husbandry graduate of the University of Florida, is currently on loan to the Peace Corps from the Agency for International Development and is serving as special assistant in the Agricultural Division, Office of Public Affairs.

WHILE ON CAMPUS he will discuss purposes, needs and opportunities of the Corps, according to Dr. Dan Russell professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology and Peace Corps Liaison officer for the college.

Daly has a personal knowledge of many of the areas where volunteers serve with the Peace Corps. His work with A. I. D. as a livestock advisor took him to India, Burma, Laos, Thailand and China. His last position was as livestock advisor to the Royal Lao government veterinary service, where he coordinated his work with that of the International Voluntary Service, an organization which places agricultural experts in underdeveloped countries under conditions similar to that of the Peace Corps.

A native of Florida, Daly served four years in the United States Navy, with the bulk of his time spent on the mainland of China. After receiving his discharge he worked as a cowboy, herdsman and rancher in the United States.

DALY WILL talk to county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents' Thursday during their annual conference in the Memorial Student Center. That night at 7:30 he will also speak to the Student Senate in the MSC.

He will speak to Alpha Zeta, an honorary agricultural student society at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 5 in the Dairy Science Building.

Daly will be available for personal interviews during his stay on campus "except during the A&M-Arkansas football game Saturday night," according to Russell at the Department of Agricultural Economics.

"Although his area of specialization is agriculture, Mr. Daly will talk with any student who is interested in the Peace Corps," Russell said.

WORLD NEWS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Monday night the temporary lifting of its naval blockade of Cuba at the request of the Acting Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations.

U Thant is to meet Tuesday with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana in an effort to work out details for U. N. supervision of the removal of Soviet nuclear missiles from the island. Soviet Premier Khrushchev announced Sunday that he has ordered such a withdrawal and agreed to U. N. supervision.

The White House announced the lifting of the blockade against shipments of offensive weapons effective 6 a. m. EST Tuesday and would last through the two days of U Thant's visit.

CARACAS, Venezuela — The Interior Ministry said Monday night the dynamiting of vital oil installations was part of a sabotage campaign ordered from Havana that also was aimed at communications.

A time bomb was found 20 minutes before it would have blown up radio and television installations carrying President Romulo Betancourt's mobilization message to the nation Saturday night, said Interior Minister Carlos Andres Perez. He gave no further details.

U. S. NEWS
UNITED NATION, N. Y. (AP) — Saudi Arabia today demanded expulsion of South Africa from the United Nations because it has refused to end its racial segregation policy.

Ahmad Shukairy, Saudi Arabian minister of state and delegation chief, specifically asked the United States to join in the expulsion

Speaking in the assembly's special political committee, Shukairy said "the case for expulsion is ripe enough and I move this honorable committee, with the United States included, to adopt a resolution for the expulsion of South Africa from the United Nations."

The United States has denounced apartheid and supported Assembly resolutions condemning it. But it has been prominent among those countries that have defeated expulsion moves in the past, arguing that keeping South Africa in the United Nations will provide an opportunity to press South Africa and persuade it to end its government segregation measures.
