TCU Wants NSA Refendum

The student congress at TCU will be asked to conduct a referendum on the school's possible participation in the controversial National Student Association.

This developed last week after a petition demanding the referendum was handed the congress. In addition, the congress will be asked to conduct an opinion poll on the question, and to vote in the form of a recommendation to the student body.

The NSA question has caused controversy at TCU since the beginning of the school year. The questioned group is organized nationally to provide for better communications and relations between schools.

A&M is a former member, but has not renewed membership in over three years.

Skirt Question Puzzles Tech

Texas Tech women students have voiced disapproval of a college ruling barring culottes from classroom wear. The short skirts, much similar to riding pants, have been classified casual wear—which is outlawed for classroom wear.

The general provision for female casual wear, in "Tech Tips," provides that women do not wear blue jeans, toreador pants or Bermuda shorts in the residence hall formal lounge or lobby, union building or in any academic building, including the library.

Most controversy centered around the classification of culottes. The assistant dean of women clinched the decision.

Tech's paper, The Toreador, added its approval by saying, "Coeds must remember that there are members of the opposite sex in their classrooms, and what boy can concentrate with a young lady's bare leg dangling in front of him?"

A Tech faculty self-study has outlined organizational framework for a four or five thousand student college of a more specialized nature.

The two-year study is a requirement for accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Consensus of the committee study was that the organization of the college needs to be examined with an apparent need for more unity of command within the administration.

Both graduate and undergraduate programs were generally praised, but stress was given to raising the level of graduate work.

The group also felt that the Board of Directors needs to define the major purpose and goals of the school.

Crisis Provokes Texas Picketing

The only Southwest Conference school to report demonstrations as a result of the Cuban crisis was the University of Texas. Thirteen students quietly picketed in front of the state capitol last weekend for a peaceful settlement of the turmoil.

CADET SLOUCH

by Jim Earle

"... tricks or treats!"

—Sound Off—

Editor, The Battalion:

The purpose of this letter is to report to you a flagrant violation by a cadet sophomore of a number of rules of the official College Regulations, 1962. The regulations involved are in Section II, "Student Life Regulations," specifically Section 43 (Subsection 2 and 3) and Section 46 (Subsection 2a).

At 10:55 a.m. on Oct. 23, on the walk leading from the Academic Building to Nagle Hall, a sophomore used very loud and profane language to threaten physical violence to a cadet freshman, who he required to walk rigidly and at attention during the encounter.

Moreover, the sophomore continued to berate the freshman despite two distinct, disapproving glances on my part (the sophomore has freely admitted that he saw me and recognized my disapproval). There were many witnesses to the episode and both students have confirmed my impressions.

By subjecting the freshman to public indignity and humiliation, the sophomore has clearly violated generally accepted rules of good conduct and specific college regulations; by threatening the freshman with physical violence, he has not only broken college regulations but has probably implicated himself under the "law of assault."

Considering that there are strangers on the college campus attending a convention, these violations, had they been noticed by our visitors, would hardly have created a favorable impression of the institution.

However, I do not wish to press charges against the two students unless absolutely necessary. I am much more concerned with publicizing both the violations and the regulations sufficiently enough to emphasize to all students that there are regulations and laws designed to protect their rights as students and citizens.

Let me emphasize that I am not interested in "token acknowledgment" of these regulations; I should like to see them aggressively asserted once and for all.
