Student Dies Of Encephalitis

Sophomore Bobby Gilbreath of Iowa Park died Thursday morning in a Houston hospital of encephalitis, commonly called sleeping sickness.

Gilbreath, a star on last spring's freshman track team, was first confined last Friday. He was transferred from the college hospital to Bryan's St. Joseph's Hospital and then to Hermann Hospital in Houston.

Encephalitis is an infection on the surface of the brain. Medical authorities gave Gilbreath little hope of living from the first stages of his confinement. There is no treatment for the disease.

Gilbreath, 20, showed promise of becoming one of the U. S.'s top hurdlers. He recorded the nation's fastest time for freshmen last year in the 400-meter hurdles with a 54.2 clocking in Houston's Meet of Champions. He won eight state gold medals while in high school.

United Chest Drive Opens

College Station opened its annual United Chest drive Thursday with a goal of $17,000 sought in a 14-day campaign.

Fifteen different agencies, divided generally into the areas of youth, welfare, recreation and medical, will share proceeds from the drive.

Collections will be totaled for the first time this afternoon with a report to follow Saturday morning. Future reports during the drive will be released each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Dr. W. J. Graff, dean of instruction, is campaign chairman. Dr. C. H. Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education, is campus chairman.

'Culture' Trip Called Success

The first trip in the MSC-sponsored culture series last weekend has been termed a success by the 23 students making the excursion to Houston.

Similar trips are expected during the year to larger cities throughout the state.

Last weekend's trip to Houston included the following stops for students and the five accompanying advisors:

The Port of Houston, Alley Theater, Shamrock-Hilton Hotel, Houston World Trade Center, National Defense Reserve Association, Fine Arts Museum and the Houston symphony orchestra.

A $10 flat fee was charged each student making the trip. The fee covered room, board, admission to each event and travel.

Southern Republicans May Double Power In Congress

EDITOR'S NOTE—Heavy Southern criticism of President Kennedy's actions in the University of Mississippi desegregation crisis has heightened interest in the region's congressional contests. In the following article, Associated Press political writer Carl P. Leubsdorf examines GOP prospects in the 11 Southern states.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Southern Republicans, waging their most vigorous campaign in this century, have a fighting chance to double their seven-man congressional delegation from the 11 states of the Confederacy in Tuesday's election.

An Associated Press survey showed that up to 14 of the 62 Republicans running for the House in the 106 Southern districts may win. The GOP now holds seven seats in the South.

In 1960, the Republicans ran 42 for House seats in the 11-state area, and in 1958, the last off-year congressional election, only 24 Republicans were on the ballot.

Most observers expect the Republicans to retain their present seven seats. Possible gains include three seats in Texas, and one each in Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina.

Republicans are also challenging six of the seven Democratic U. S. senators running for re-election. GOP candidates are likely to trim some Democratic majorities but none has more than an outside chance to win.

Resentment over President Kennedy's stand on desegregation of the University of Mississippi may alienate some Democrats.

An equally uncertain factor is the recent dramatic series of events in the Caribbean. Republican candidates had generally taken a harder line than Democrats. But the Democrats seemed likely to benefit from President Kennedy's success in demanding a Soviet retreat.

In 1960, the Republicans polled only 22.9 per cent of the two-party congressional vote in the South, a decrease over 1956 when 45 GOP candidates drew 23.5 per cent of the votes. The Republican presidential vote in the South in 1960, however, was 47.7 per cent.
