

Looking Back . . .

At This Week

Chest Drive Falling Short

Almost complete reports place the year's annual Campus Chest collection at $1,750—well short of the $8,000 goal of one dollar from each student.

Fourteen campus groups have submitted $1 per man, with Squadron 1 winning the bronze plaque for best contributions. Since no unit submitted more than $1 per man, Squadron 1 won because it reached the 100 per cent level first.

No deadline has been set for contributions.

Cutting Area Chosen For Fire

A cutting area was chosen this week for upcoming work on the '62-'63 bonfire. The area is located approximately five miles west of campus off Farm Road

60. Volunteer wood-cutting and clearing of the area will begin Tuesday, with mass work by the entire student body scheduled to start next Sunday.

The bonfire will burn Tuesday night, Nov. 20.

Graduate Exam Dates Disclosed

Dates have been announced for two testing sessions of the Graduate Record Examination.

January graduates and graduate students who have not previously taken the test will do so Dec. 8, while May graduates will be tested Apr. 19.

Purpose of the examinations is the evaluation of graduates in order to rate the various departments of instruction. The Class of '62 was the first group to take the tests as a class.

—Sound Off—

Editor, The Battalion:

As the long-awaited Thanksgiving Day game with TU draws closer, preparations for the procurement, transportation and final assembly of logs from the area are being made. Every true Aggie cannot help but feel as if he were a part of a great team as he watches the huge triangular symbol of Aggie spirit begin to materialize and grow. The men who work, sweat and sacrifice to create this tribute to fellowship and tradition can point with pride to their accomplishment and contribution to their school.

But what about those "Aggies" who attend the bonfire and join in the associated festivities, but who do nothing to contribute to the actual logging and building? These people are usually the ones who complain the most about the size of the bonfire and its appearance. Haven't they a responsibility to uphold, too?

In the past, the joint efforts of the various branches of the Corps have been enough to insure ample manpower in the field to provide for the log cutting and hauling, and the construction of the frame. But in recent years the student composition of A&M has changed to such an extent that roughly one-half of the present student body is now made up of civilian students. There are over 750 civilian day students alone and therefore, one can see that the burden of responsibility for the bonfire is being unduly shouldered by the Corps.

The hallowed tradition of the Turkey Day game and the bonfire is one in which all Aggies should support and participate. But a combination of student apathy and lack of responsibility has resulted in the general feeling about the campus that this job belongs to the Corps and the civilian student shouldn't interfere or even be concerned with the matter. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Corps representatives have assured me that they need our help and any civilian student cooperation would be greatly appreciated.

For this purpose, civilian work groups are being formed, both for the dormitories through the respective dorm councils, and for the civilian day students. It is to the latter group that this appeal is intended. The members of the Civilian Day Student Council are organizing a bonfire group to represent us in the field. This is a real opportunity for day students to make a significant contribution to our school and an effort which we can point to with a sense of pride, accomplishment and satisfaction.

With these thoughts in mind, all civilian day students are urged to attend a meeting to be held Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 5 p.m. in Room 229 of the Chemistry Building for the purpose of making preliminary plans and organizing groups. We need your help, let's show the teapigs that the two per centers aren't in the civilian student ranks and that we really have a vital interest in our school.

Civilian Day Student Council

Statistics show two factors are paramount:

1. The nature of the means of accumulation and
2. Lack of definite program of accumulation.

AAF
Large enough to hold your future, small enough to know you
ENGINEERS: American Air Filter Company, Louisville, Kentucky, is the world's largest manufacturer of air filters, dust control, heating, ventilating and air conditioning equipment. Yet AAF is small enough for you to know well.
AAF needs graduate engineers to fill responsible jobs in sales, product engineering, research and industrial engineering. Eventual location might be in any of AAF's six plant cities or one of the more than 150 sales offices throughout the U.S.
Men who join AAF will be enrolled in the Company's full-time formal Training Program. Interested seniors should make an appointment now through the Placement Office. An AAF representative will visit the Campus on
