Rice Considers Charging Tuition

Rice University, tuition-free since its opening in 1912, is considering possibly charging a tuition fee in the future, President Kenneth S. Pitzer has disclosed.

In a copyright story in The Rice Thresher, Pitzer said that even though this year's budget is in the red, future projected expenditures are causing the most concern.

Like any other university, Pitzer said, "Rice must consider casting about for new sources of income."

Should tuition be enacted, it would not apply to any current undergraduate, the president said. Pitzer further stressed that no decision on tuition has yet been made.

TCU Establishes Research Board

TCU's Board of Directors has approved a charter for a "TCU Research Foundation," a non-profit corporation to support an expanding research program on campus.

The charter will go into effect immediately.

Purpose of the new foundation will be to solicit and receive funds to support research programs. The charter specifies that its trustees will be made up of university officials and a number of others to be determined by the by-laws, at least half of whom will be selected by the TCU directors.

TCU offered its first doctoral degree in 1960 and has since expanded to several other research fields. Two new doctoral programs were added just this past fall.

UT Enlarges Gregory Gym

A $1.75 million expansion of Gregory Gymnasium at the University of Texas is scheduled for completion by the 1963 fall semester.

The expanded area south of the present structure, will include three floors and more than double athletic facilities.

The second floor of the addition will be air conditioned, while no windows will be installed in the building except in the front. Windows were reduced to prevent glare from hampering afternoon gymnasium sessions.

In the basement 13 regular-size handball courts and one exhibition court are planned. Bleachers to hold 400 persons will surround the glassed-in exhibition court.

Texas University architecture students have picketed in protest against the architectural design used on a new campus office building.

The demonstrators, who were not organized, were eventually told to leave the scene by university police.

Pickers said there is general interest throughout the school in what type architecture is used on the campus.

One picketer said the demonstration was triggered by a feeling that the style of the new building "is a reflection of the mediocrity of the school."

Soviet Strategy Revision May Develop This Month

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A thoroughgoing revision of Soviet world strategy may be in the making this month as a result of the jolt received by Moscow from the Cuban crisis.

Nikita Khrushchev's remarks at a recent Kremlin reception suggest that he and his followers have firmly reasserted their leadership, have taken a new hold on the reins and are determined to crack down on dissidents who demand reckless adventuring in the cold war.

Khrushchev's attitude and the tenor of official Soviet party press statements recently offer clues to Soviet bearing not only on immediate crises such as those in Berlin and Cuba, but on the whole course of the cold war.

It could mean Moscow is on the verge of a general-if wholly temporary-retreat for a variety of pressing reasons.

If so, that would signal another period of relaxed tensions which could last well into next year. It would be a new attempt, like so many in similar periods in the past, to persuade the Western world to lower its guard sufficiently to permit resumption of aggressive Communist action.

Khrushchev's remark at the reception that "a hard policy is not always best" seems, when coupled with party pronouncements since the Cuban crisis eased, a strong indication of what is on the Kremlin mind. There are a number of clues to support the thesis of a tactical Communist retreat. From what has taken place in Moscow in the past few weeks, this could be the picture:

—The Kremlin, with Khrushchev still in the top position, is losing patience with Communist China and probably has transmitted its displeasure in strong terms. It wants the Red Chinese border war with India brought to an end without delay.

—The Kremlin apparently is strongly resisting elements in the world Communist camp, including the East German Red leadership, who want a rapid and drastic solution in West Berlin, even at the risk of a new confrontation with the United States. In the wake of the Cuban drama, Khrushchev appears not ready for that.

—The Soviet Union has acknowledged failure of its policy up to now of attempting to solve by brinkmanship. Khrushchev said at the reception he not now want a summit with President Kennedy, never did. But the indication been all along that he wanted to force the President to meet. Indeed, at set of the Cuban crisis he posed one.

Sound Off

Editor, The Battalion:

I would like to comment in response to the letter written by Bill Lang in the Nov. 6 issue of The Battalion.

The main reason why our school has progressed so very little in its 86 years of existence is because so many Aggies insist on abiding by the traditions of Aggeland. This is the real big problem and not that mentioned by Lang. I am all for strict disciplinary training, but not for vengeful correction of freshmen by upperclassmen who, because they went through it, believe freshmen should also go through it.

A&M has a great capacity, much of which is yet unfolded. Let us put aside some of our traditions and forget about the "good old days," and A&M will turn out Aggies of today and tomorrow, and not of the past.

Frank Candelaria, '64

Is this the only reason for using Mennen Skin Bracer?

Skin Bracer's rugged, long-lasting aroma is an obvious attribute. But is it everything?

After all, Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the after-shave lotion that cools rather than burns. It helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Helps prevent blemishes. Conditions your skin.

Aren't these sound, scientific virtues more important than the purely emotional effect Skin Bracer has on women? In that case, buy a bottle. And—have fun.
