At This Week

Religious Emphasis Changes Disclosed

Drastic changes were disclosed in this year's Religious Emphasis Week program Tuesday by Dean of Students James P. Hannigan. This year programs will be held nightly in local churches, with no speakers being "imported." The daily morning sessions in Guion Hall are being discontinued. Hannigan also announced that the college will continue its series of speakers in the All-Faiths Chapel, but on a night other than Wednesday to avoid conflicts with regular services in local churches. Future conferences with local ministers and denominational student workers will be used to make detailed plans for Religious Emphasis Week, scheduled Feb. 17-22.

Students Celebrate Corps Trip Win

Students celebrated A&M's first Corps Trip football win since 1957 this week after the Aggies defeated SMU last weekend in Dallas, 12-7. The last prior Corps Trip victory was over TCU in Fort Worth in 1957, 7-0. A&M also crowned a new sweetheart last weekend—Miss Lynn Parks, a sophomore student at Texas Woman's University. Miss Parks will represent the school at college social functions for the next calendar year.

Two SCONA Speakers Named

Two additional speakers for SCONA VIII were announced this week—newspaper editor Felix McKnight and legal advisor Mason Willrich. McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times-Herald, will serve as round-up speaker. Willrich is a legal advisor in the office of the general counsel of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. Already announced as a speaker is James Wadsworth, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations during the Eisenhower administration. This year's SCONA sessions are scheduled Dec. 12-15.

Chest Collects Over $1,900

Donations to this year's Campus Chest drive passed the $1,900 mark this week, with more donations still expected. Ken Stanton, chairman of the Student Senate student welfare committee, which is coordinating the drive, said he still expects total contributions to pass $2,000. Already 14 campus organizations have donated at least $1 per man to the drive. Others have said they expect to hit the 100 per cent mark after military contract checks are received. Squadron 1 has received the bronze plaque for best unit participation in the drive.

CADET SLOUCH

by Jim Earle Sound Off

"... It's not that we don't appreciate your willingness . . . it's just that you might be better suited doing something else!"

Editor, The Battalion: In regard to Mr. Bill Bayer's letter of Nov. 13, I feel that his indignation toward the civilian student who recklessly pinned two men against a parked car during yell practice last Thursday is understandable and justified. While I agree with Mr. Bayer on the above incident, I do not agree with the opinions he expressed.

Mr. Bayer stated that most Corps students bear a grudge against civilians because of their lack of spirit. Even if this is true (and I do not concede that it is), I would like to point out that each student has the right to his own opinions and beliefs. While we must all conform to a certain extent, the insistence of rigid conformity is completely out of character in an institution of higher learning. Many brave men have died for their belief in individual freedom. Let's not repay our debt to them by insisting that everyone conform to our beliefs.

Rex. L. Bunkley,

Editor, The Battalion: With regards to Mr. Bill Bayer's letter of Tuesday, Nov. 13, I too am unaccustomed to writing letters to the editor, in fact I am unaccustomed to writing, but the tragic incident he so movingly described has moved me, a fellow spirit, to add my call to his.

Aggies arise! Kindly that "disdainful spirit" we feel toward the non-reg student, those wayward souls who attend school only to pursue academic studies, who will not attend our sessions where we practice yelling—a skill of undoubted value in life—and who, most shocking of all, drive automobiles down streets.

How my blood boils at the thought of a Corps member being disturbed while happily standing in the middle of a street yelling. How great my admiration for the restraint and composure he displayed by only ripping off the antenna—should we not have overturned the car, burned it and stoned the driver?

We must devote our energy to attacking such problems as the one exposed by Mr. Bayer and the question of faculty members who criticize our ways—what say do they think they should have on campus anyway? We must eliminate all of the intellectual debate, all discussion of subjects not up to this level of importance. We must do away with those who believe that the intellectual side of college life should dominate—therein lies madness.
