THE BATTALION NOT UNUSUAL FOR ARCHITECTS

For Next Quiz—Build A Skyscraper

The problem: Design a high-rise office building with 500,000 square feet of gross area—and make it economically feasible.

Advanced architecture students are tackling just such problems under the guidance of a "Visiting Critic," a professional architect who is exacting the same requirements the students will face when they are graduated and go to work for an architectural firm.

The visiting critic during the present six-week session is Carroll C. Rudd, vice-president and director of design for Welton Backet and Associates in Houston.

He is one of three professional architects who are conducting the work on special problems with fifth-year design students this semester.

"Each student will probably come up with a design for a building between 22 and 32 stories," Rudd said. "But with their design, they will also have to answer this question: is it financially feasible for some builder."

When the projects are completed, each student will present his solution to a panel of guest jurors. Students will be prepared to defend their design as well as accept criticism from the jurors, who will be practicing architects.

The students were presented with a set of specifications that indicated the building was to be located on a block 300-feet square in some major Texas city.

The prospective builder expects to devote some 20,000 square feet to retail space that will include a bank with two drive-up teller windows, a restaurant and apparel and service shops. The building is bounded on all sides by one-way streets. Anticipated income per square foot is also included in the information given the students.

"We want the students to consider the efficiency ratios such as net area to growth area—the amount of square feet you can rent against that which you can't rent," Rudd said.

He pointed out that this is the type of problem the students, who are completing their final year of architectural studies, will face when they go to work as an architect.

Local Area CAP Unit Named Best

The D. Harold Byrd Squadron, Texas Wing, Civil Air Patrol, has been named the outstanding CAP unit of the year at the annual state-wide CAP convention in Kilgore. A trophy was presented to the unit by Col. Marcus R. Barnes, commander of the Texas Wing, CAP.

The squadron is headquartered in College Station and commanded by 1st Lt. Robert C. Bess, an A&M senior. The squadron, the only one of its kind in the U. S., is made up of graduates of the CAP cadet program who have been commissioned into the senior program. Members are attending colleges and universities throughout the United States, including A&M, the University of Texas, Baylor, Rice, SMU, TCU, Midwestern University and Arlington State College. The squadron also has several members on active duty with all branches of the armed forces.

Leave For Contest

The A&M Senior Meats Judging Team will leave here Sunday to compete in the 1962 International Intercollegiate Meat Judging Contest Nov. 27 at Madison, Wis. Team members are Stephen Hammack of Ferris, Billy Reagor of Llano, Frank Srubar of La Grange and Chester Smith of Academy.

The spirit of Thanksgiving takes root in the heart of a child in the same gradual fashion most of us have experienced.

First there is excitement and anticipation which abundance awakens in our minds.

Then comes the pensive moment when we realize that all this abundance is Someone's gift to us.

Next we know the prayer of gratitude that flows from willing lips and a thankful heart.

Finally — and supremely — there is the sense of confidence, of trust, in a God whose Love is everywhere so manifest.

The hope of your neighborhood churches is that your family's observance of this traditional feast may encourage the spiritual growth of your children ... and renew your own precious faith.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
