Chicks, Ferris Wheel Stop Students In MSC

An exhibit with two dozen baby chicks and a miniature Ferris Wheel has caught eyes of students in the Memorial Student Center.

The baby chicks, strictly an eye-catcher, unintentionally pull all sorts of antics.

The seats of the electrically-operated Ferris Wheel are filled with feed.

"If the chick is smart," one of the FFA members said, "it will jump on the seat and eat."

That's only part of the problem, however. When the chick has eaten his fill, the next test is to get off when the seat is closest to the ground. Some depart the revolving wheel several inches from the floor—not high enough to do any harm, however.

Elementary Biophysics Course To Be Offered During Spring

A three-hour introductory course in biophysics will be offered as Physics 485 during the spring semester, according to Dr. O. Dayle Sittler, assistant professor of physics.

The textbook will be Biophysical Science by Eugene Ackerman. Topics to be covered will be sensory systems for hearing and vision, nerves and muscles, biological effects of ionizing and nonionizing radiations, enzyme kinetics, thermodynamics and specialized instrumentation.

Prerequisites for the course will be Physics 202, 216 or 219, Sittler noted.

Aggies, TWU Planning Joint BSU Retreat

A&M and Texas Woman's University Baptist Student Unions will hold a joint Baptist Mid-Winter Retreat at Mt. Lebanon Baptist Encampment this weekend, Dr. Cliff Harris, director of the BSU, announced Wednesday.

Thirty students from each college will attend the retreat at the camp 25 miles southwest of Dallas, Harris continued, and the theme will be "Characteristics of the Collegiate Christian."

Harris and Dr. Russell Ware, director of the TWU Baptist Student Union, will conduct the Bible studies.

Don Davidson, president of the BSU, will preside over the meeting Saturday afternoon and a TWU student will conduct the evening activities. Another A&M student, not yet chosen, will preside Sunday.

Dean-Professor To Speak Here Friday Afternoon

Dr. Louis Gordon, chemistry professor and dean of graduate studies at Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, will speak at 4 p.m. Friday in another of the Graduate Lecture Series.

Interested persons have been invited to attend the lecture in Room 231, Chemistry Building, Wayne C. Hall, dean of graduate studies, said.

"Homogeneous Precipitation Methods" is the announced topic. Gordon is co-author of "Precipitation from Homogeneous Solution" and has published at least 80 contributions on precipitation and co-precipitation and allied problems.

He is co-editor of "International Series of Monographs on Analytical Chemistry" and regional editor of "Talanta." His research work has been supported since 1951 by 14 grants from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Two-Week Course In Oil Engineering Is Underway Here

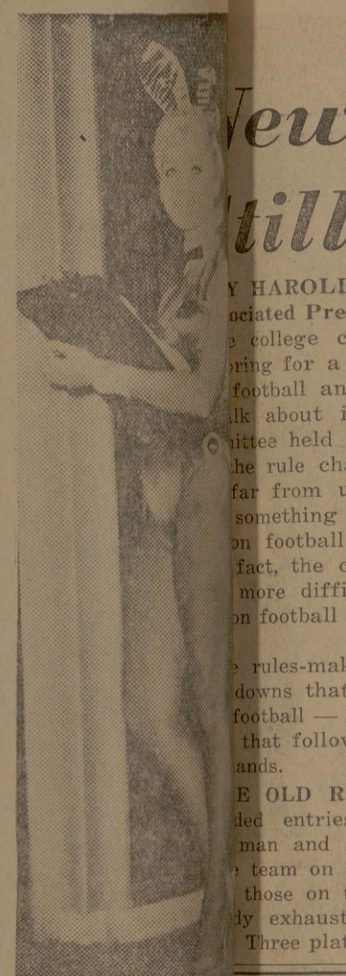

Registrants for eight states, Canada and South America started a two-week advanced petroleum reservoir engineering course here this week.

Students represent 12 major oil companies and the U. S. Bureau of Mines, with three enrollees from Venezuela.

The latest methods of evaluating performance of petroleum reservoirs will be taught, engineering Professor James W. Amyx said.

"This information may be used as a basis of selecting field operating procedures to make maximum use of available energy sources and achieve optimum oil recovery," he pointed out.

The two-week session includes 16 hours of lecture and computation on recovery methods and 34 hours of lecture and computation devoted to reservoir performance caused by various combinations of energy.
