WIFE MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER

Marriage Forum Speaker Says No Love Without Sex

By CLOVIS McCALLISTER
Battalion Staff Writer

Dr. Sidney Hamilton of North Texas State University told approximately 100 students that if they are wondering how to be sure of finding the right person to marry, to forget it.

Hamilton, a psychology professor, was opening the four weekly sessions of the YMCA Marriage Forums.

Marriage is important to society and man's wife is more important than ever before. The family is the most stable institution today, Hamilton said.

YOU CAN'T HAVE love without sex and marriage is a sex outlet, he pointed out.

"Divorce can be the finest thing in the world, if need be. The necessity for divorce is the disaster, not the divorce itself," Hamilton said. Hamilton stated, "The basic reasons why people marry are security, companionship, pressure to do the usual and the desire for new experiences." He added marriage is a way to achieve happiness for both mates.

"A couple begins a marriage with infatuation and love comes as a result of the marriage and sex. You are more in love after five years than you are the first and even more in love the tenth year than in the fifth," Hamilton said.

THE REASON MARRIAGES are more successful today is because more people and the younger people are getting married. The most successful marriages of today are among college students, Hamilton argued.

The sometimes marriage counselor said the main problems in marriage today stem from a lack of communication, sexual adjustment and finances. Finances aren't as critical as they used to be because one-third of the wives are working.

If sex masters love it is evil but love must master sex, Hamilton said. "Sex is common to all animals but love is unique to man. Love isn't blind or false, but infatuation is, he added.

Hamilton gave the key to a happy marriage as the ability to see the individuality of the mate and change to fit into the pattern.

THE PARENTS also received, from Washington, a government-financed booklet titled "Infant Care."

"We get the names of the new parents out of the newspapers," Miss Meader told the Daily News. "The money is a big help in getting through college," she said. "It takes care of the rent for my apartment and my food."

As a congressman, her father receives $22,500 a year. There is one other child in the family, a son.

MISS MEADER has been on her father's payroll since she entered the University of Florida in September 1961, the Daily News said. She expects to receive her bachelor's degree in December.

She said her father "seems to have quite a reproductive district. We send out between 2,000 and 3,000 baby letters a month."

A spokesman for the U. S. Children's Bureau, however, said Meader gets only 200 of the baby care books a month.

The United States has pledged three Polaris submarines to a multinational nuclear force under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Sources here say it also could include 25 surface ships, each carrying 25 Polaris missiles and manned by men of participating nations.

First Vote Due In 3-4 Weeks

AUSTIN—Proposed legislation to change the College's name to Texas A&M University was introduced in the House this morning by Rep. David Haines of College Station.

Haines had anticipated introducing the bill Tuesday afternoon, but a question on the name-change necessitated additional technical corrections before it could be dropped in the House clerk's hopper, Haines said.

The bill, if passed by the House and the Senate, changes A&M's name to "Texas A&M University," and the College System to the "Texas A&M University College System."

Haines, a 1951 graduate of A&M, said the technical change was to remove references in the bill to the Board of Directors. He explained:

"A&M was created by the constitution, while the A&M System was created by statute. There has been some question on this, but we can get around any objections by deleting anything to do with the Board of Directors.

"The only parts that had to be revised were the title, section four and section five."

Haines said the bill would probably be assigned a number Thursday and then go to the House state affairs committee.

"It may be three or four weeks before the bill comes to a vote in the House," he said.

Before the bill is brought to the floor, a committee hearing will have to be scheduled. Haines said that the hearings will probably be short, lasting only 15 or 20 minutes.

Then after passing the House, the legislation must go to the Senate, where a similar procedure of committee hearing and readings will be followed, he said.

Haines has predicted that the bill will have no trouble passing the House.

In the Senate, Bryan's W. T. (Bill) Moore, '40, said that "there had been too much talking on both sides. I haven't given the bill much thought in the last few days," he said.

Moore has called the proposed name a mistake and is a backer of the name "Texas State University" for A&M.

Sen. A. R. Schwartz, another A&M graduate, said that he was willing to actively support the bill in the Senate. "I am satisfied with the name change as it has been requested. I want to do what A&M wants to do.

Schwartz, who has incurred the wrath of many senators for attacking closed sessions on confirming appointments, said he thought that if A&M's name was changed to Texas A&M University he believed Texas Tech would actively press for the name Texas State University.

House Hikes Auto Liability Insurance Rate

AUSTIN (AP) — House members approved Tuesday an estimated $1 million dollar increase in automobile liability insurance premiums for Texans.

The House approved 100-47 and sent to the Senate a bill raising requirements for financial responsibility in case of auto accidents to $10,000 for death or injury to one person, $20,000, $20,000 for two persons and $5,000 for property damage.

Present requirements are $5,000, $10,000 and $5,000. A person may fulfill the requirements by buying liability insurance, as 65 per cent of Texas drivers do, or guarantee payment of equal amounts by posting a personal bond.

"There would be an estimated $14 million increase to taxpayers in insurance premiums, said Rep. James Cotten, Weatherford, in protesting that the increased requirements would make the state insurance board hike rates about 25 per cent. "This is a special interest bill for the insurance companies."

"This is not a special interest bill," argued Rep. Bob Fairchild Center, sponsor of the measure.

"I can go back home and tell my people that I voted to stiffen the motor vehicle safety responsibility act."

The vote Tuesday ended two days of arguments over the measure. Fairchild and other supporters said the bill is needed to protect innocent drivers and help curb the huge economic loss from accidents. An amendment to the bill, not in the present law, would make uninsured drivers post a minimum $250 deposit if involved in an accident.

Rooms Requested For Career Day

Some 300 more rooms are needed to house visiting high school students for High School Career Day, March 15-16, Hugh Magers announced at Tuesday's meeting of the Inter-Council.

Magers, chairman of the housing committee for High School Career Day, said "We have 102 rooms now and we need about 400 in all. There are about three rooms available per unit now, and we need 11 or 12 per outfit to meet the demand. Companies I-3 and B-1 have been the most cooperative outfits so far."

Students desiring to assist Magers and his committee should notify their first sergeants or sergeant majors.

THE INTER-COUNCIL, which consists of representatives from each school council, has arranged separate programs for junior college students and high school students.

The junior college conclave will be held the afternoon of March 15, while the high school students gather on March 16.

Tentatively, the junior college students will meet with a dean's representative of their respective schools for tours and talks. A general assembly is planned for each school.

REGISTRATION FOR High School Career Day will begin at 1 p.m. March 15 in the MSC and will end at 9 a.m. the next day.

High School Day will begin with a review of the Corps of Cadets. The students will be welcomed by President Earl Rudder in a general assembly, after which they will move to their respective schools and departments for the rest of the morning's activities.

The visitors will eat lunch in Duncan Hall and will have the afternoon free for tours.

High School Career Day is held each year to acquaint college prospects with the campus and facilities, and to promote a general interest in higher education among high school seniors.

Texas Tech Editorial Urges Athletic Integration In SWC

Texas Tech's student newspaper, The Daily Toreador, in a page-one editorial has called for athletic integration of the Southwest Conference's newest member school.

The editorial, signed by Toreador editor Charles Richards, called athletic integration "something that will be of lasting benefit to the conference. The Negro has shown in other schools he is capable of being a leader in athletics as well as in the classroom. We like to think of the Southwest Conference as an athletic powerhouse—and it does pull away its share of wins — but a glance at the top ten of any sport shows the SWC behind the Big Ten and the Big Eight, among others."

The Toreador called athletic integration of the conference "only two or three years away," and urged action by Tech before the University of Texas decides to make a similar move.

The editorial continued: "If Texas Tech does not make the first move, it probably will be made by Texas, which already has the jump in the athletic recruiting race. Red Raider football is in one of its worst droughts. Even though the next few grid seasons are being billed as the best in a decade, can we afford to give Texas an advantage as far as Negro athletes are concerned?"

"We are tired of the cry that Texas Tech is the 'baby' of the conference and should not be the one to initiate action. We feel Tech is on a par with any school in the conference. If we are in a position to do something for the good of the conference, let's not stay in the background."
