Sex Is Normal Life Function, Students Told

Dr. Glenn V. Ramsey told approximately 250 students Tuesday that human sexuality is a normal function of life.

"We should accept it as part of us and learn to direct and control the sexual aspects of life," Ramsey said that actual quantitative studies of sex were first made in the 1920's and before that period more was known about human sexuality and reproduction than today. A common ideal of sex was that it was vulgar and repulsive.

Many of the problems of sex arose from ignorance and emotional attitudes, he added. One of the Kinsey Report was to establish sex as a legitimate subject which could be discussed with intelligence and looked at with objectivity, he said.

During sexual arousal there is total physiological response of the body and there is an increase in such functions as breathing, pulse rate, blood pressure and tension in the neural system during the aroused period. The cause for sexual response is based on the touch stimulus, Ramsey added. He said that the whole body has nerve endings distributed about it but some are more sensitive than others.

The conditioning processes for sexual arousal are the physiological, environment, physical attributes of a partner, and the personality of the partner, said the speaker. The cultural level, educational and religious group of the person are factors in the conditioning processes, he added.

RAMSEY SAID we must abide by the social values the social groups have set up and if we deviate from these values we may have to suffer conflicts or live with a guilt feeling.

Any act that is aesthetic, accepted and mutually satisfying is normal, the psychologist said. He added that we consider the things we believe to be right and normal and any deviation from our ideas are considered to be unnatural. Consequently, Ramsey said, many sexual activities are labeled as abnormal which the biologist and psychologist would consider within the normal range.

Easter Seals Now on Sale In Local Area

The 1963 Easter Seal campaign began Tuesday and will continue through April 14, with Mrs. Rudolph Williams serving as chairman of the Brazos County Easter Seal Committee.

Over 100 Brazos County children received aid from last year's drive, Dr. Luther Jones, president of the Brazos County Society for Crippled Children, said.

Of the money collected in the local area, 77 per cent goes to the Brazos County Society, while 23 per cent is passed on to state and national societies.

The local society is governed by a board of directors, which meets throughout the year to allocate funds gathered in the Easter Seal drive. Braces are purchased when needed, and transportation is furnished to those who need treatment not available in Bryan. Also, help is given to the Brazos Valley Therapy Center in Bryan through the seals sale.

Executive Committee Kills Pro-Rated Parking Permits

Senate Proposal Laid On Shelf

A proposal made by the Student Senate Feb. 21 asking for pro-rated campus parking permits has been vetoed by the Executive Committee, Dean of Students James P. Hannigan disclosed Tuesday.

He said that no reduction was recommended by the committee because funds from pro-rated permits would not cover expenses of maintaining parking facilities on campus.

Hannigan said, "We have an ever-increasing car population, and we feel that so far we have been keeping ahead of the growth. However, in order to stay ahead, we'll have to continue to receive sufficient revenue."

HE ADDED THAT pro-ration would cause a loss of more than $400 per year if the price of permits halved at mid-semester.

After receiving the committee's report, Jerry Vion, chairman of the Student Senate life committee, said, "It seems to me that the Executive Committee has some good statistics to back up what they say."

"I was sorry to see that the proposal didn't go through, but I can see why. And I feel that any student can also see why no pro-ration can be had without an initial increase in the price of the parking stickers."

The request originated in Vion's committee and was sent to the Executive Committee by the Student Senate and Hannigan.

BENNIE A. ZINN, director of student affairs, conducted a survey for the Executive Committee to find out what student parking policies of other large schools are.

Zinn wrote to several colleges and universities which were picked at random. Twenty-three replies showed that eight schools charged less for parking student privileges than A&M, two charge the same amount and 13 charge more.

Louisiana State and New Mexico State Universities have no charge. Kansas University charges $1.50 per year, Cornell University charges $2 per year and Washington State University charges $3 per year.

At the other extreme, Dartmouth College charges $30 per year, New York University charges $40 per year and the University of Maryland charges $52 per year.

THE SURVEY also showed that most schools had a $10 penalty for non-registration or failure to properly display stickers. Additionally, most schools have graduated penalties starting at $2 and increasing up to $50 for compounded violations of parking and driving rules.

Vion said, "Every year a higher percentage of students bring their cars to school, and there has to be a parking place for each one of them."

The state provides no funds for building or maintaining parking lots. All parking facilities at A&M are paid for by parking permit fees.

He said he was told permit funds pay for four items — expansion of existing facilities, construction of new parking spaces, repair of existing parking lots and full salaries for two patrolmen.

"IF A PRO-RATION were put into effect now," Vion said, "I feel that it would be detrimental to the college and the students who have cars here."

He added, "I feel that pro-rating parking permits, without increasing their initial cost and then cutting the price at mid-semester, would lower the expansion of our parking facilities, so I'm not in favor of a pro-ration at the present time."

Menu Committee Invites Students

If students are not satisfied with the chow in either Duncan or Sbis Dinning Halls, they now have the opportunity to voice an opinion in the planning of menus.

Jerry Vion, chairman of the student life committee, said Monday that students who would like to meet with him and the dining halls menu planning committee should contact him in Room 215 of Dorm 10. The group meets each Thursday at 8 a.m.

Movies by an A&M research scientist will be used by Walt Disney Studios in a documentary film release this fall.

The film was taken by Jack Hill of the Department of Oceanography and Meteorology while serving as an observer aboard the research vessel chain of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. He said the scenes show the placing of deepwater bouys between Woods Hole and Bermuda.

The Walt Disney Studios presentation deals with oceanography.
