OFFICIAL SAYS

Foreign Residents Prefer Teachers

American professors serving in developing nations overseas possess important advantages over American government officials, a Pakistan diplomatic official declared here this week.

It is "generally true" that residents of an overseas nation find it easier to work with American teachers than with U.S. government officials, Pakistan Consul General Mohammed Ahmad said.

The professors are less suspect of political motives and generally are more sensitive persons, he continued.

In Asia, Ahmad said, there also is the long tradition of the village teacher being highly respected.

"To my mind the interuniversity cooperative programs is the greatest thing you have achieved," Ahmad said. He cited the development of a more broadminded leadership as an important result of such programs.

Forty-two Pakistan students currently attend A&M. Some 30 faculty and staff members have lived in Pakistan while serving in the cooperative program.

"I wish the nations could come together as do the boys who live together," the consul general said.

A&M operates a relatively extensive program in East Pakistan, is initiating a cooperative program in Tunisia and does other overseas work, all at the request of the U. S. government.

Prof's Given Fellowships For Studies

Two A&M faculty members and one from Oklahoma State University have been awarded National Science Foundation science faculty fellowships for study here.

The A&M faculty members are Assistant Professors Jerrel B. Jones of electrical engineering and Kenneth R. Pierce of veterinary pathology and veterinary microbiology. Jones proposes to pursue the program of studies for nine months, Pierce for 12 months.

Philip G. Manke of Oklahoma State is scheduled to study civil engineering here for 12 months.

The National Science Foundation said 400 fellowships will be awarded.

THE TREE Climbers

Thought about climbing any trees lately? The tree climbers seem to belong to a very young segment of the population.

Why do you suppose most of us have outgrown that compelling urge to climb a tree? It used to make every trunk a challenge, every limb a precarious perch.

Well, we've discovered other challenges. And we've had our fill of precarious perches. Eventually a man turns his zest for triumph to more constructive purposes.

But, have you observed that many people seem to climb above the tiresome every-day level of life? And, strangely, they appear more secure challenging the roof of existence than those who cling to its floor.

The youthful compulsion which once made us tree climbers reaches maturity on a spiritual plane. Our God-given zest for triumph finds fulfillment in the quest of religious Faith... the challenge of Christian living! Start climbing next Sunday... in church!
