

Khrushchev Declines Visit To Peking For Red Summit

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has turned down a communist Chinese proposal for a Red summit meeting in Peking and instead invited Mao Tze-tung to Moscow for a face-to-face showdown on Communist supremacy.

There was no immediate reaction from Peking on the Tass announcement Tuesday of the invitation to Mao to visit Moscow this spring or summer.

A New China News Agency dispatch from Peking said only that the Soviet ambassador to Peking, S. V. Chervonko, had delivered the letter to Premier Chou En-lai and other Chinese party leaders.

THE FEELING IN Moscow was that Khrushchev hoped Mao would accept his alternate suggestion and send a representative for talks that might help clear the air over the deep Moscow-Peking rift before any Khrushchev-Mao encounter.

In his letter, dated March 30, Khrushchev declined with thanks a Chinese invitation to stop over in Peking en route to Cambodia this spring. The letter said Khrushchev had never intended to visit Cambodia and that Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev is going instead.

The letter suggested that the best time for Mao's visit to Moscow would be spring or summer.

IF MAO CANNOT make the trip, the letter suggested, a Chinese delegation would be welcome in Moscow for talks on a high level.

It proposed the meetings be held about May 15.

The answer clearly reflected the disposition of the Soviet party to hold off at this time any large scale meeting where Communist problems would be aired. The Soviet Union is in a weak position because of its missile pullout from the Cuba affair and its own economic and cultural difficulties.

Moreover, it was felt certain here that Khrushchev would not accept an invitation to go to Red China since the Soviet party claims to be the top ranking party in matters of Communist policy and theory.

Top Indian Movie Due Here Sunday

The Indian Student Association will present India's top movie of 1959, "Anari," at 7:30 p.m. Sunday night in Guion Hall.

"Anari," meaning a fool or simpleton, concerns a lad by the name of Raj, who is on trial for the murder of old Mrs. D'sa, his adopted mother.

Meeting Postponed By Civilian Student Government Group

A meeting to be held Wednesday by the student government interest committee of the Civilian Student Council was postponed, announced David Johnson, chairman of the committee.

When Raj is an unemployed, starving waif, Mrs. D'sa gives him shelter and love.

One day Raj chances upon a young millionaire's daughter by the name of Arti, in the act of escaping from a finishing school.

IN HOPE OF disguising her real identity, Arti tells Raj that she is just a chaperone to a rich man's daughter.

In the course of events the two fall in love, only to have their happy world rent asunder by the murder of Mrs. D'sa. Raj is charged with the murder in spite of his plea of innocence.

Tickets to the movie may be purchased at the door or at the main desk in the Memorial Student Center for one dollar.
