

A&M Kegling Meet Starts Run Friday

More than 12 schools in the southwest Area will be represented in the 13th annual A&M Invitation-Bowling Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Memorial Student Center.

The tourney, sponsored by the A&M Bowling Committee, is sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress, but ABC membership is not required in the local event.

A $5 fee will be charged for bowlers in singles and doubles, while $7.50 will be charged for an all-event kegler.

A TEAM COMPRISED of Ray Snow, Tony Servello, John Tinney, Larry Glison and Skipper Robinson will represent A&M.

San Antonio College, Arlington State, Baylor University, Southern Methodist University, West Texas State, University of Texas, Rice, Trinity University, Sam Houston State, Texas Christian University and Lamar Tech College are expected to participate.

Bowlers may register in singles, doubles, team or all events. Individual trophies will be awarded the first, second and third place winners in each event. A team trophy will be given to the top team or school in the meet.

Aggie rifle marksmen fired better individuals than in team first at the National Rifle Association Sectional Rifle Match held Saturday in Austin.

In the 75-person individual competition, Robert M. Nalley, a sophomore from Dallas, won first place with a 287 score to win the third prize medal. He is from Arlington, Va.

Nalley entered five four-man teams in the 25-team field at the national match. One team won and another took seventh place.

Local Children Aid Athletes In Health Education Class

Some first graders near the A&M campus probably are unaware of the helping Aggie athletes with their college studies.

The program involves what educators call "professional laboratory experience" and is part of the work by students in the Elementary School Health Education course.

The students, directed by W. M. Dowell, professor in the Department of Health and Physical Education, tested the eyesight of children enrolled in the first, third and fifth grades of the A&M Consolidated Elementary School. The students do similar work at other elementary schools of the district.

DOWELL EXPLAINS THAT the students try to complete the visual testing in the elementary schools each academic year as part of the course.

Hearing is tested on a less regular basis. And the health and physical education majors sometimes help with dental examinations.

Weight records for each pupil have been kept for at least 10 years.

"This is a wonderful help," Mrs. H. S. Creswell, principal of the A&M Consolidated School said of assistance by the students.

"THEY'VE BEEN exceedingly cooperative," Carl E. Tishler, head of the Department of Health and Physical Education, said of the school district staff.

Students majoring in health and physical education do their practice teaching under the general supervision of Carl W. Landiss.

Little Men Lead Ags' SWC Hitting

In the early stages of Southwestern conference play for A&M's baseballers the little men, shortstop Jerry Ballard and second baseman Bill Grochett, have the best batting averages among the regulars.

Ballard, a 6-0, 170-pounder from Bryan, has gone eight for 20 since SWC play began and is currently hitting .400. Half his hits came Saturday against SMU in Dallas when he got three singles and a double in six tries.

GROCHETT, COACH TOM Chandler's smallest man at 5-9 and 160, is hitting .364 after going four for 11 in three games. The Houston (St. Pius) junior got four of his in the form of singles against the Ponies in six at bats.

Third baseman Bill Hancock, last season's SWC batting king, has the most Aggie home runs in league play so far with two. The Shreveport, La., junior is currently batting .333 in conference competition.

Tall rightfielder Robert McAdams and first baseman Frank Stark have the other two A&M roundtrippers in league play. McAdams and Hancock lead the team in RBIs with four each and Stark has two.

SINCE SWC PLAY began, the Cadets have five two-base hits. Pitcher Ed Singley, Ballard, left-fielder Gary Cavasas, McAdams, and Stark have connected for them.

Cavasas, one of the two football players on the varsity baseball squad, is currently hitting .333 in SWC play. Grigger George Hargett, who subs at third base, has gone hitless in three times at bat.

Centerfielder Ray Hall has gone three for 15 and has a .200 average in conference.

JOHNNY CRAIN, Chuck McGuire and Ed Singley have one win each in the pitching column. McGuire is 3-0 for the season and Crain has a 1-0 unbeaten slate. Singley is 2-1 for the year.

A&M, the only undefeated SWC team left in the chase and the leader, starts a two-game series with once-beaten TCU in Fort Worth Wednesday.

Kermit Cager To Sign Here

Kermit High School's 6-7 center, Reggie Gilbreath, announced last weekend that he will play basketball for new cage mentor Shelby Metcalf at A&M next year.

The 18-year-old All-District performer accepted a scholarship offer from Metcalf and will sign the papers in June when he has completed his high school eligibility.

Gilbreath averaged 30 points per game in his last five games this season to rack up a 24.5 norm for the year. He led the Yellow Jackets to a 13-7 record.

In his senior season, Gilbreath hit 48 percent of his attempts from the floor and was 64 per cent effective at the charity line.

Cadet Fencers Top Rice, 14-2 For 2nd Time

Same story but different place was the theme for A&M fencers as they again bested the Rice University team by 14 to 2 points. The meet was held Saturday at Rice.

The Aggies a week earlier hosted Rice and won 14 to 2 points. Coach Russell K. Wieder reported Alvaro Restrepo won 4 to lead the Aggies. The other Aggie fencers and their scores: Eudoro (Chuso) Galindo, won 3 and lost 1; Tom B. Wilson, won 3 and lost 1; Wyatt K. Anderson, won 3, lost 0; and Joe Becera, won 1, lost 0.

The A&M Fencing Club team earlier in the season defeated the University of Texas fencers 11 to 5 points.

The Aggies go to Austin Saturday to meet the Longhorns in a final spring match.
