

AMONG THE PROFS

Duncan Plans Summer Job With Colonial History Group

John T. Duncan, associate professor of history, will be in Rhode Island this summer to help with historical preservation.

He will serve as resident of an ancestral colonial home in Newport, R. I. known as "Whitehall."

Two members of the A&M Department of Health and Physical Education will participate in the Small Schools Project.

They are C. W. Landiss, professor, and N. A. Ponthieux, associate professor. Landiss will be a discussion leader, and Ponthieux will be on "Physical Education in Elementary Grades."

Small Schools Project is an incentive program for teachers.

Dr. John G. Mackin, head of the Department of Biology has been named a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Horticulturists State Conclave

A&M will hold its 26th annual conference for Nurserymen and Landscape Horticulturists, Sunday through Tuesday.

Activities begin at 1:30 p.m. the first day with registration in the Memorial Student Center, followed by a woody plant identification tour of the campus.

Talks start at 9:30 a.m. the second day in the MSC, with Hank Hiersley of Beaumont discussing "Nursery Sales and Selling."

Dael Wolfe, executive officer of the association in Washington, D. C., said Mackin's election is in recognition of his standing as a scientist.

Dr. Lloyd C. Taylor, associate professor of history at Texas A&M, is author of an article appearing in the April issue of Pennsylvania History.

The title is "Harriet Lane—Mirror of An Age." Taylor describes Harriet Lane, niece of James Buchanan, who was first lady in the White House from 1857-61 during the presidency of her uncle.

Henry F. Lyles of the Division of Business Administration has received an American Risk and Insurance Association Fellowship.

Lyles will spend six weeks in sales and sales management study at Southwestern Life Insurance Company in Dallas.

Dr. Morris E. Bloodworth, a professor in the Department of Soil and Crop Sciences, attended the recent graduate institute in plant-soil-water-nutrition relationships at North Carolina State College.

The institute was sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board. Representatives of 13 universities attended.

Armed Forces Units Plan Open House For Saturday

Army, Navy and Air Force Units in Bryan-College Station will hold open house Saturday afternoon to mark the national observance of Armed Forces Day.

The day was set aside by President Kennedy to allow citizens to review America's "Power for Peace", the day's slogan.

Nine Army Reserve and National Guard ground units, one Air Force Reserve squadron and one Navy detachment will participate in the largest Armed Forces Day activities in this area.

Two areas — Sue Haswell Park in Bryan and Easterwood Airport in College Station — will be open from 1-5 p.m. Saturday.

Graduate Exam To Be Required

Test dates for the Graduate Record Exam for 1964 seniors have been set for Dec. 13 from 1-5 p.m. and Dec. 14 from 8-12 a.m.

Dean of Instruction W. J. Graff said Wednesday that the exam will be mandatory for next year's seniors.

Dean Graff said the Executive Committee had added the test to graduation requirements to "measure the impact of the total college experience."

tars as well as command and dining facilities.

An extra attraction in the area will be free jeep rides for children, Capt. Jones announced.

Pre-Law Club Picks Officers

The Pre-Law Society elected officers for the 1963-64 school year in a meeting held in the Memorial Student Center Tuesday night.

James Jenkins was elected president, with Ed Arledge as vice president. Leslie Hanks was chosen secretary-treasurer.
