Curious Motorists Hamper Traffic Flow On Freeways

A recent study by the Texas Transportation Institute may affect future design of freeways. Based on data obtained at accident scenes in five major cities, the study indicated that curious motorists hamper freeway traffic.

Also used in the study were films made from TV monitors on the John Lodge Freeway in Detroit, Michigan. Researchers found that all signs of accidents should be quickly cleared away for effective operation of the freeway.

highway designers to eliminate problem areas. Researchers discovered that most cities do not assign special accident investigation teams to freeway duty.
