Wooten Receives Honors As Top Ag Eco Teacher

Dr. A. B. Wooten, associate professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, has been named "Outstanding Professor for 1963 in Agricultural Economics" by the student economics club.

Club members presented the educator an engraved pen set.

Wooten is leader of resident instruction and chairman of Resource Economics and Agricultural Policy Section of the department.

Dr. Joe S. Ham, professor of physics will present a paper on "Semiconduction in Iodine Complexes" at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology June 14.

Ham's research on semiconduction is financed by a two-year grant of $19,000 from the National Science Foundation.

The latest issue of "Texas School Business" magazine features a cover picture of Dr. Paul R. Hensarling, head of the A&M Department of Education and Psychology.

plus an article by the educator. "A Triple Challenge for Adult Education" is the title of the article which surveys adult education programs in Texas.

A popular textbook written by an A&M professor has just been published in a Serbo-Croat language edition and also is being translated into Portuguese by a Brazilian publishing firm.

Author of the popular text is Dr. Chris H. Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education.

McGraw-Hill Book Company is publisher of the book, "General Shop."

The text treats such subject areas as drafting, woodworking, metal working and plastics.

The newly-published translation in the Serbo-Croat language will be used not only in Yugoslavia but also in other Balkan countries.

The translation being made into Portuguese is for use in the secondary school of Brazil.

Dr. Groneman has another publication, "General Woodworking," which was translated into the Arabic language about two years ago.

Dr. J. R. Couch, professor of poultry science at A&M presented a research paper at the recent Fifth Smith Lifeline Fish Products Symposium at Lewes, Delaware.

The title of his paper was "The Amino Acid Content of Fish Meals."

George H. Draper and Joe N. Wakefield of the Department of Poultry Science will participate in the Regional Plans Conference of National Poultry Improvement Plan and National Turkey Improvement Plan Supervisors June 17-19 in New Orleans, La.

Burns Self To Death

The Rev. Quang Duc, a Buddhist monk, is engulfed in flames as he burns himself to death in Saigon, Viet Nam, before thousands of onlookers. Animal Science Student Wins $500 Award

Kenneth A. Radde, a junior animal science major from Marlin, has been elected to receive the Ralston Purina Scholarship for 1963-64. The award was made last week in St. Louis by J. D. Sykes, an official of the organization.

The Purina Scholarship is awarded to an outstanding junior in the next year at grant colleges in each of the states, and in three Canadian provinces and one in Puerto Rico.

Winners are selected at the AAU convention by a faculty scholarship committee on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and need for agriculture and a need for assistance.

American car makers produced 4,192 vehicles in 1960 but start producing trucks when they made 700.

Gringo Millionaire Leads Quiet Life

By JACK RUTLEDGE MEXICO CIAY (P) — The day a foreigner can come to Mexico and make an instant million is waning, but William Oscar Jenkins is living proof long years of hard work can build a fortune here.

Jenkins, 85 but still active, is a moody, mysterious millionaire who came to Mexico from Tennessee in 1901 flat broke. His wealth today is estimated at between $200 million and $300 million.

His story is a true-life mixture of Horatio Alger and Richard Harding Davis. But much of it is shrouded in mystery and legend because he fanatically hates the press and publicity.

IT IS KNOWN that over the years he was kidnapped, faced a bandit firing squad, worked with woes and federals of Mexico's 1910 revolution, was attacked and befriended by presidents, lived dangerously.

Throughout he avoided politics, concentrated on pesos.

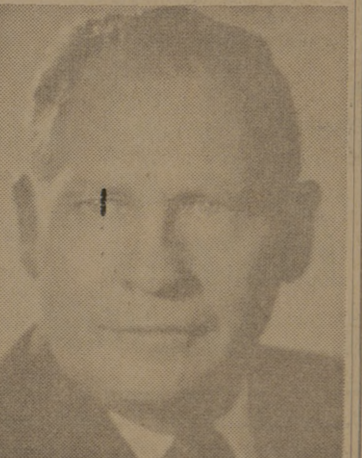

He still makes headlines with his business deals and charities but friends say he has turned much of the detail work over to an adopted son, Guillermo (Spanish for William) Jenkins Jr., also reportedly from Tennessee.

Jenkins himself, recovering from a successful cancer operation, can often be found sitting on a bench near his wife's grave in Puebla, meditating.

In 1905, working in Aguascalientes for 50 cents a day, he got backing from an American missionary group to set him up as a traveling salesman selling haberdashery. THIS TOOK HIM to Spanish colonial Puebla, not far from Mexico City. It was here his luck turned, and where he has made his home ever since.

In the chaotic days during and following the 1910 revolution he opened a small business in Puebla dealing with grain, real estate, sugar and brokerage.

Jenkins mingled with federal troops and bandit groups, particularly those of the famed Zapata, during the revolution. One day he was seized by Zapatistas who charged he had permitted government troops to use his home as a base. He was standing before the firing squad when a young officer sauntered by, recognized and saved him.
