

Grant Received for Dominican Projects Here

A&M has received a Ford Foundation Grant of $81,600 to provide grants and consulting services for agricultural development projects in the Dominican Republic, including an agricultural vocational high school.

M. T. Harrington, chancellor of the A&M System, said the grants have two main purposes:

To provide orientation and service personnel training for agricultural school being organized in the Dominican Republic.

To enable Dr. G. M. Watkins, director of agricultural instruction A&M and selected staff members to assist the University of Santo Domingo to develop an agricultural faculty and generally assist in this field.

Ready For The Ball

The bowler (pitcher) is about to release the ball to the batsman. Behind the batsman is the wicket-keeper (catcher), and to his right is the first "slip," a fielder ready to catch a deflected ball. The bowler aims at the wicket. Players left to right are Robert Hesketh and Derek Claque of England and P. Desai of India.

A&M Cricket Club Brings Traditional British Contest

Aggies long accustomed to studying the pesty crickets known to scientists as the family Gryllidae now have a new form of cricket.

The A&M Cricket Club brings the traditional British game to Aggeland. The club was organized recently.

Foreign students at A&M now form most of the club membership, Assistant Professor John F. Griffiths said. He is a London-born climatologist and an avid cricket fan who helped organize the A&M club.

CRICKET IS the second international game being played by A&M students from other lands. The soccer team recently enjoyed a successful season, its only loss being to the state championship game against San Antonio.

"I am now president and captain for my sins," Griffiths said of his role in organizing the cricket club. "I'm sure that later they'll want me for a nonplaying captain."

The Stroke Is Made

Batsman P. Desai has hit the ball to the "leg" side and is now in position to make some runs (hits). He chooses to run only if it appears safe to do so.

The A&M professor serves as historian of the Kent County Cricket Club, a major league team in England, although he has been away for years. Griffiths was in charge of meteorological research for the British Colonial Service in East Africa before he came here about a year ago. He served in Africa for a decade.

He toured the United States before accepting a post here.

"I like it here at A&M and think it has a great potential, especially in my own field," Griffiths said in explaining how he happens to be so far from the world of cricket.

MEMBERS OF the A&M club practice Saturdays on a mown campus area.

"We hope sometime when cooler weather comes and when we look more like a coordinated cricket team to give a demonstration match," the club captain said. "It's basically like baseball, but you can be out, or dismissed, in nine different ways."

There are two wickets instead of homeplate and the three bases. The ball is comparable to a baseball, while the bat is flattened on one side.

Idea of the game is to protect your wicket, the three pieces of wood sticking up above the ground for 27 inches, from being hit by the pitched or "bowled" ball.

"A few" American students have expressed interest. Club members hope others will join.

ONE CHAP came over and was terribly enthusiastic. I thought he did extremely well for his first game," Griffiths said.

A cricket team traditionally plays in white clothing with 11 men forming a team.

"A number" of teams are reported to be playing on the East Coast and in California. The A&M club hopes to find one closer.

Some 80 years ago a club in Philadelphia was good enough to compete in test matches in England.

IMITATION ADULTS

High comedy! They may not be actresses, but they're accomplished mimics.

Yet as I eavesdrop on their little game of pretending — well, as a mother, I'm just a bit frightened. How readily they pick up our characteristic poses and attitudes... always exaggerating to an extent... trying to be more like us than we are ourselves.

Then I remember the day John and I made that thoughtful decision to join the Church and raise our children in a Christian home. What a difference that decision has made in our lives. And what a difference it is making in our children's lives.

There's no harm in youngsters imitating adults... so long as the adults they imitate are worth imitating!
