

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1963

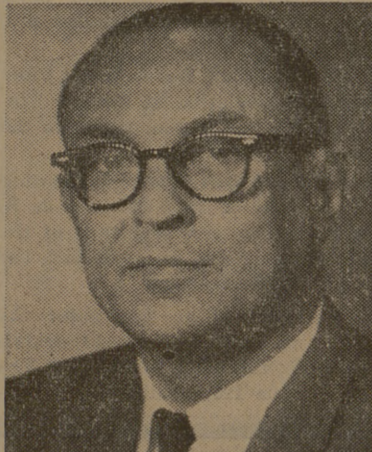

These Men Fill Administrative Posts

DEAN A. A. PRICE
Dean of Veterinary Medicine

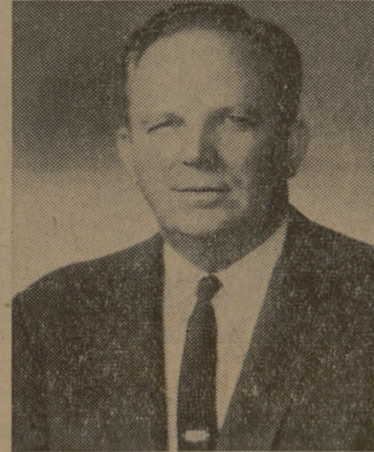

DEAN W. J. GRAFF
Dean of Instruction

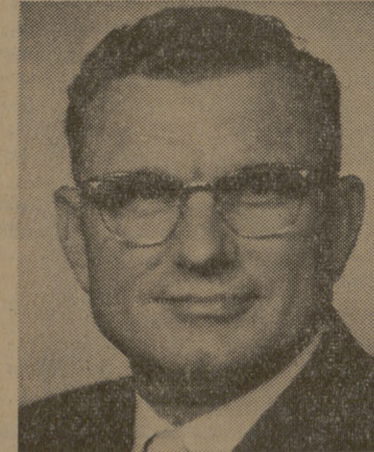

DEAN J. P. HANNIGAN
Dean of Students

DR. M. T. HARRINGTON
A&M System Chancellor

PRESIDENT RUDDER
President A&M University

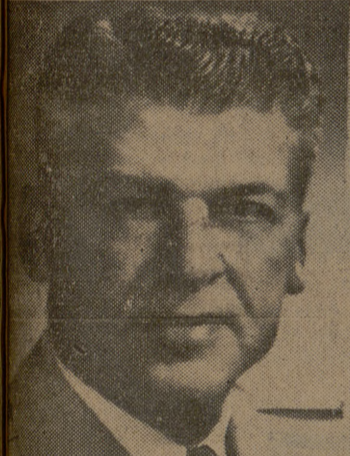

DEAN R. E. PATTERSON
Dean of Agriculture

DEAN F. W. R. HUBERT
Dean of Arts and Sciences

DEAN WAYNE C. HALL
Dean of Graduate School

COL. D. L. BAKER
Commandant of Corps

CAPT. B. M. DODSON
Maritime Academy Head

Their Efforts Bring Growth To A&M

Operating a university the size of A&M is a big job. The men in top administrative posts here have proven equal to the task.

Through their efforts and the work of countless others A&M is experiencing continuous growth and increasing academic renown.

Dr. M. T. Harrington, chancellor of the A&M University System, has a long history of service to the school. He earned a B.S. degree in chemical engineering here in 1922. His Masters came five years later from A&M and he received his Ph.D. in 1941 from Iowa State University.

Harrington served 25 years here as a teacher in the Department of Chemistry. He was Dean of Arts and Sciences in 1947-48. The native of Plano was then Dean of the College for two years.

He was president of the college from 1950-53 when he became system chancellor. Harrington is the first A&M graduate to serve as both president of the college and chancellor.

President Earl Rudder was born in Eden. He first attended what is now Tarleton State College, then came here to receive a B.S. degree in industrial education. Rudder also lettered in football for A&M.

The 1932 graduate worked as a football coach and teacher at Brady High School. From 1938 to 1941 he was a football coach and teacher at Tarleton State College. He was called to active duty in the Army as a first lieutenant when World War II began.

Rudder served on active duty until 1946, during which time he organized and trained the 2nd Ranger Battalion which later was one of the cliff-scaling units in the Normandy invasion. Later, as commander of the 109th Infantry Regiment, Rudder was among those involved in the Battle of the Bulge.

He was released from active duty as a colonel and now commands a reserve unit, the 90th Infantry Division, with the rank of major general. Rudder became A&M president in 1959, after serving one year as vice president.

Dean of Student James P. Hannigan has responsibility for the development and welfare of students in areas other than academic. A graduate of the United States Military Academy, Hannigan retired from the Army as a brigadier general in July, 1959. In August of that year he assumed his duties here.

A former instructor of language at West Point, Hannigan has studied at the University of Paris and in London.

Dean of Arts and Sciences Frank W. R. Hubert assumed his position here in July, 1959. He had been superintendent of schools at Orange since 1955. Hubert studied history, government and education administration and received three degrees from the University of Texas.

Hubert has a long history of teaching and administration in Texas high schools and colleges, interrupted briefly by military service during WW II. Under his direction in the College of Arts and Sciences are 14 departments and schools.

Dean of Engineering Fred J. Benson first came to A&M in 1937 as an instructor of civil engineering. A native of Grainfield, Kansas, Benson holds a B.S. and M.S. degrees in civil engineering from Kansas State College and A&M, respectively.

The former vice director of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station and executive officer for the Texas Transportation Institute now heads 12 departments at A&M.

Dr. Alvin A. Price became Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine in 1957. He first attended Tarleton State College and received a B.S. degree in dairy husbandry at A&M in 1940.

Price entered the Army in 1942, serving in the African, European and Middle Eastern areas, and attained the position of battalion commander. He returned to A&M as a veterinary student in 1944. He received his D.V.M. in 1949 and stayed on as a teacher in veterinary anatomy while earning his M.S. in veterinary physiology.

The native of Dublin is an active member of many professional societies. Price heads seven departments at A&M.

Dean of Agriculture R. E. Patterson has served continuously at A&M since 1943. He became assistant director and professor of animal husbandry in 1947. The native of Cuydan, La. was named Dean of Agriculture in 1960 and now heads fifteen departments.

Patterson received a bachelors in agriculture from Louisiana State University in 1934. He earned a masters in genetics at A&M in 1936. His doctorate in animal genetics was conferred by A&M in 1943.

Dr. Wayne C. Hall became Dean of the Graduate school in 1960. He came to A&M from the University of Kentucky in 1949. In 1958 he became professor and acting head of plant pathology.

Hall was born in Montana. He received his B.S. degree from the University of Iowa in 1941 and did graduate work at the University of Chicago. Hall received his M.S. degrees at Iowa in 1946 and 1948, respectively. From 1942 to 1946 he served in the Navy, attaining the rank of Lieutenant Senior Grade.

In addition to his direction of graduate studies here, Hall is an active researcher in plant pathology and physiology.

Capt. Bennett M. Dodson became head of the Texas Maritime Academy with its creation in 1962. At that time he was Chief of Staff of the Service Force with the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

Dodson has commanded a destroyer and was executive officer of the battleship, Iowa, which he later commanded during her inactivation. He commanded a fleet oiler during the Korean Conflict.

During the past 25 years Dodson has held executive positions at many maritime training institutions.

Dr. William J. Graff Jr. assumed the newly-created position of Dean of Instruction in 1961. He works closely with the president and represents the views of the faculty to the administration and the views of the administration to the faculty.

Graff received B.S. and M.S. degrees in mechanical engineering from A&M and earned his Ph.D. at Purdue University in 1951. He attended the Oak Ridge School of Reactor Technology in 1952-53 and joined the faculty of Southern Methodist University in 1956.

He was a navigator and radar operator as a first lieutenant in the air force, 1942-45. Graff is a member of many professional societies and a registered professional engineer.

Col. Denzil L. Baker, who recently assumed duties as the professor of Military Science, Sept. 1 will become the new commandant of the Cadets Corps here. The native of Mathis will direct Army ROTC instruction and oversee the operation of the Corps.

Baker was graduated and commissioned at A&M in 1933. A highly-decorated veteran of WW II and the Korean Conflict, he arrived here in July from the Pentagon where he was chief of the Special Review Division of the Office of Army Personnel.

H. L. Heaton has been in the registrar's office at A&M since 1934.

In addition to his present duties as Director of Admissions and Registrar, Heaton is a member of the Academic Council, the Executive Committee, the Catalogue Committee, College Regulations Committee, the Commencement Committee and the Short Course Committee.

Heaton holds his B.S. degree from Stephen F. Austin State Teachers College at Nacogdoches and his M.S. degree from A&M.

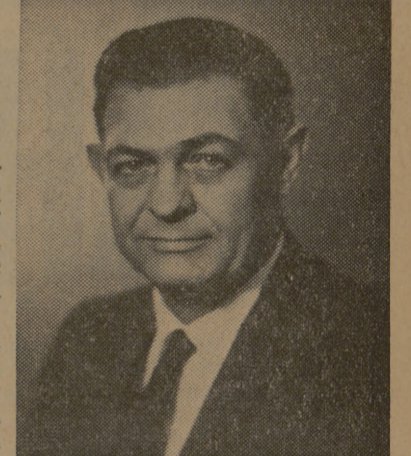

The A&M registrar is a member of the American Association of College Registrars, the Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars and the Association of Texas Colleges.

Tom D. Cherry is Director of Business Affairs for A&M University. His position holds responsibility for overall business of the school.

Cherry's duties involve personnel policies, budgets, and other fiscal affairs.

Before coming to A&M Cherry was management controls director for Trans World Airlines in New York. He has served on various committees of both state and federal agencies.

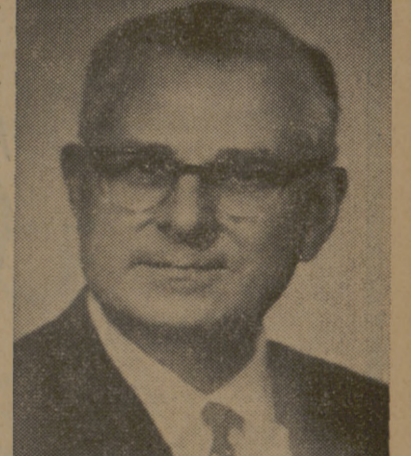

The native of New Waverly received his bachelor's degree from Sam Houston State College and his master's from A&M. He has done doctoral work at the University of Texas and Columbia University.

DEAN FRED J. BENSON
Dean of Engineering

H. L. HEATON
Director of Admissions

TOM D. CHERRY
Business Affairs Director

This Section Gives Background, Goals

Section Two of this year's Freshman Edition of The Battalion is designed to give the student and his parents some insight into the background, aspirations and academic quality of A&M.

There are also stories about various facilities provided for the student's general welfare—such as communications and transportation, post offices, dining halls, hospitals, laundry, financial aid and libraries.

STAND IN LINE TO BUY YOUR BOOKS ... ORDER THEM BY MAIL NOW!

TELL US WHAT YOUR MAJOR WILL BE AND YOUR BOOKS WILL BE READY FOR YOU TO PICK UP WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE ...

● ALL BOOKS CAN BE RETURNED IF NECESSARY

LOUPOT'S