BATTALION EDITORIALS

Good Job, College Station

Congratulations are in order for all the people who have worked on the College Station United Chest drive, and especially for Dr. Chris Groneman, campaign director. All the workers and the people of College Station who contributed so freely to the drive have set a fine example for all A&M students to eye as the A&M Campus Chest drive starts.

In the past couple of years the Campus Chest collections have fallen far short of the goals that have been set up for the drives. We cannot think of a better year for Aggies to show their concern for each other than this year. One way we can do this is to set a new record for a Campus Chest collection.

Editor, The Battalion:

Apparently you need to be informed, as too many young people need to be (on the intentions of Mr. Bob Rowland, Class of '57. I have never read an editorial that disgusted me as much as the one where you tried to cover the truth by diverting Mr. Rowland's sincere letter along a trail of utter foolishness.

In sympathy with Mr. Rowland, I want you to know that a vast majority of the exes go along with him and will continue to allow him to speak for them because of their respect for him and his unstoppable spirit and love of

'Farm And Ranch' To Stop Publishing

NASHVILLE, — Tenn. Farm and Ranch, with the largest farm circulation in the South, will fold after its November issue.

Publisher and editor Thomas J. Anderson, his wife said Monday decided to suspend the magazine of one million circulation in order to devote his time to seven state farm magazines and two others he will start in January.

Texas A&M. Letters from EVERY Aggie Club in the State will offer proof that the exes are behind Mr. Rowland and that he is not the only one who is fighting to preserve something that you apparently don't believe in.

Granted, A&M is one of the leading universities in the nation, but do you really think that students will drive 525 miles, as I did, just to attend just another co-ed school? After all, what is there to attract students to College Station after A&M has lost all of its old color and attractions? A first-class education will attract a few, but let's face it, there are other colleges in the state with good educational facilities!

So, Mr. Editor, if you can find a substitute for the things that A&M has stood for for so long—honor, pride, and tradition—continue your fight (or is it a passive I-don't-care attitude?) to allow "progress" to overcome everything that A&M stands for and you attend Muster and Silver Taps for an out of place woman, and you wear your A&M ring proudly, because I can't.

Editor, The Battalion: Mrs. Megan Tilghman's letter of Tuesday, Oct. 15, suggested that co-education had a place at A&M, and that the presence of Co-eds on campus had no effect on the Spirit of Aggieland. We feel that Mrs. Tilghman and the rest of the female additions to our campus have no conception of the true meaning of this Spirit.

Let us ask you this—have you ever read the plaque at the entrance of the Memorial Student Center? Do you know why there are 52 trees around the main drill field? Have you ever been to Muster? Do you attend Yell Practice? Are you familiar with the Aggie Spirit as exemplified by the men on Corregidor in World War II? Have you ever heard of James E. Saran? Capt. Eli L. Whiteley? Sgt. William G. Harrell?

We feel that if you were familiar with these and other Aggie traditions you might be qualified to comment on the effect of co-education on the Spirit of A&M. We would also like to point out that we still have a MSC and not a Sub.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Sigafos.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straightened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his reading speed, alas, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—picking up beebies with his toes—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana College of Lanolin and Restoration Drama and happily began a college career that grew happier year by year. Indeed, it became altogether ecstatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Anna Livia Plurabelle with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two sockets full of Lake Louise. Love gripped them in its big moist palm, and they were betrothed on St. Crispin's Day.

Happily they made plans to be married immediately after commencement—plans, alas, that were never to come to fruition because Leonid, alas, learned that Anna Livia, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he not only had to repay his own loan after graduation but also Anna Livia's and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid at the Butte Otter Works simply did not pay enough, alas, to cover both loans, plus rent and food and clothing and television repairs.

Heavy hearted, Leonid and Anna Livia sat down and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Marlboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good and filter good, and when the clouds gather and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same easy pleasure, the same unstinting tobacco flavor, in all times and climes and conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Anna Livia, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor's degrees, they re-enrolled and took master's degrees. After that they took doctor's degrees—loads and loads of them—until today Leonid and Anna Livia, both aged 87, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, Woodpulp, and Dewey Decimals.

Their student loans, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to a combined total of nineteen million dollars—a sum which they probably would have found some difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.

You don't need a student loan—just a little loose change—to grab a pack of smoking pleasure! Marlboros, sold in all fifty states in familiar soft pack and Flip-Top box.
