Responsible Positions
Will Soon Be Ours

The fabulous Will Rogers once told one of his audiences, "This is a great country, but you can't live in for nothing." He might well have been addressing the university students of today. Just as he said to his audience that they can't live in the country for nothing; we can today tell ourselves that we can't live in this country or this world for nothing. However, we wonder if the price of living in tomorrow's world is not going to far greater than it was for the people Will Rogers was addressing.

It seems not a day can go by without the news budget presented by the news gathering media reporting threats of violence. A crisis no longer comes by its lonesome self, but is usually accompanied by at least two or three incidents in which two or more groups of are clashing and presenting a threat of violence and possible death for members of all the groups involved.

Competition becomes keener each week among the crisis makers, to see who will capture the spotlight on the world's stage. Whether its a blockade on a highway in Germany, a new threat from Mr. K., or guns being smuggled into some South American country by Castro's forces, the United States is involved in most of the events. Other nations have opportunities to rest in the Cold War, which often becomes extremely warm; but not the U. S. As Long as the U. S. must stay alert, so must the people in the responsible positions in the nation. The same positions that will be filled by our generation in the very near future.

We just wonder, will we be able to keep the Cold War cold?

— Sound Off —

Editor, The Battalion:
I have read with great interest several letters, and your answering comments, concerning "Aggie Spirit" and co-eds. Before commenting further I feel it is important that you know that I have worked for Texas A&M as a Cadet Officer, Class Agent, A&M Club President, District Vice President of the Former Students Association, Director of the Former Students Associations, and Aggie Club Member. I write this only to indicate that my interest has been consistent and regular during the 15 years since graduation.

The advantages of this magnificent educational facility are known everywhere, and I have tried to sell A&M since the day I first said "Howdy". I expect to continue doing my part as an interested former student by promoting all facets of educational excellence, military excellence, and yes, athletic excellence.

I am one of many who believes there are proper ways and improper ways of expressing an opinion on University affairs. University officials while carrying out their duties as laid out by the Directors may become unpopular. Corrections of problems can be requested and obtained without disrupting and interfering with the daily life of the student and without undermining his confidence in properly constituted University authority.

The few women who are in position to make use of our University will add great chapters to the history of Texas A&M. The Cadet Corps must and will continue as a great equating factor among entering students. It must and will continue to equate the wealthy and the less fortunate, the tall and the short, the urban student and the suburban student.

I support A&M for what it did for me, and for what I received in benefits while attending Texas A&M. I hope in years to come to continue my support in order to balance the good I received from attending Texas A&M with what I can repay by one individual effort in behalf of the University.

I, as an Aggie mother, would like to thank Mrs. Jean Compton for her letter to you. She spoke my feelings exactly.

A&M is a very special school for boys that they may become real men. Why girls want to ruin such a school, I can't see.

The first time I was on the campus, everyone spoke, each time that I go now, I see less friendliness.

Our boys like girls but in their place. That place isn't on the A&M campus.

Are You A Nut? Check Yourself!

NEW YORK (AP) — How can you tell if you're normal? There is great interest in mental health today in a world so confused and confusing that everyone at times feels so mixed-up he must be off his rocker. But are you really? We have prepared a small guide for the mentally perplexed that may be of help to You. Ask yourself the following questions.

Do you, while making a deposit at a bank, often wonder secretly how hard it would be to rob the place? Are you convinced that most repairmen are engaged in a conspiracy to rob you blind? If you answered yes to all these, quit worrying about your mental health. Your mind is as sound as a nut. You are just neurotic enough to be properly adjusted in a world in which a guy who has no suspicions also lacks the common sense to know what's really going on.
