Bonfire Construction Represents Aggie Men

One of the greatest demonstrations of team effort to be displayed on any campus of any university anywhere in the world will be displayed on the A&M campus this weekend.

We will readily admit that the construction of the Aggie Bonfire doesn't do much for the academic quality of our University. But one thing is for sure, the construction of the world's largest bonfire—which the Aggie Bonfire most certainly is—demonstrates one of the characteristics that have won Aggies respect around the world. That one characteristic is the Aggies' ability to take on the biggest of jobs and then do it well.

And to those who might ask such a question, we want to say now—no, Aggies do not intend to spend the rest of their lives building bonfires, but they will always be among the first to take on a task that might be considered by others as impossible.

There is not a man who will participate in the construction of the Aggie Bonfire who will not be a better man for having done so. He will have grown tired, too tired to work any longer, but he will continue to work because the job won't be finished simply because he is tired.

We want to promise the fish, who have never worked on an Aggie Bonfire before, that they are about to undergo an experience they will never forget and one that will seldom be matched—regardless of what they might accomplish during their lives. For many of the Class of '67 the Aggie Bonfire will be their first experience at accomplishing the apparently impossible. Learn the lesson well and it will go with you through life.

Aggies make much of the fact that the Aggie Bonfire is our way of expressing the burning desire Aggies have to beat the living hell out of the University of Texas Thanksgiving Day. But the eyes of the world can see—and they will see—that just as Aggies, that have become so well known around the world, have gone forth and conquered life and its many obstacles in the past, so they intend to continue to go forth and conquer in the future.

We have spent some space and time blowing our own horn; but we feel that that horn sounds with a quality that the world has learned to know and appreciate because "We are the Aggies, The Aggies are we!"

Labor Asking Congress To Control News Mergers

NEW YORK (AP) — The AFL-CIO called today for a Justice Department investigation of all newspaper mergers or suspensions.

It adopted a resolution asking Congress for a law requiring newspaper publishers to give the Department of Justice 90 days notice of any contemplated merger, consolidation or acquisition.

The resolution asked that the Justice Department prosecute any case in which it finds the merger or suspension of newspapers violates antitrust laws.

The resolution would require publishers to give advance notice to all labor organizations involved in a proposed merger, suspension or sale of a newspaper.

A building permit was issued today for a substantial addition to the Zarape Restaurant located off Sulphur Springs Road, 4 blocks east of Highway 6, in College Station.

Mr. Lupe Esquivel, the proprietor, states that a large dining room is being added that will permit better service on week-ends and will also provide facilities for special luncheons, dinners and parties. New rest rooms are included and the kitchen is being expanded. Work is scheduled for completion in early December. The restaurant will remain open during the construction of the new annex.

The Zarape Restaurant specializes in Mexican food and has been operated by Mr. Lupe Esquivel for 11 years. Prior to opening his own establishment, Mr. Esquivel was employed for 13 years in the Memorial Student Center and in Sbis Mess Hall at Texas A&M.
