

Aggie Discovers Bones Of Ancient Indian Pair

By GLENN KIEL
Special Writer

Stumbling on to the remains of an Indian burial recently awoke an interest in archaeology in an A&M wildlife management student.

Bob Barsch, from Brady, prefers not to reveal the exact locality of the discovery in order to protect the property of the landowner. The find, which consisted of a complete skeleton of an Indian woman and the remaining parts of what is believed to be a man, was made late in July in the Edwards Plateau region.

Barsch plans to have a Carbon 14 analysis made of the skeletons to determine the age and then he plans to give the skeletons to a museum.

"I accidentally noticed a portion of bone protruding from a creek bank under a limestone layer of rock when walking to the cabin for dinner after checking a fence line," Barsch said.

"After three hours of tedious work, George Powell, also a wildlife student, and I removed the skeletal parts," Barsch added.

They found no artifacts in the grave, but within a surrounding area of 50 yards, Barsch and Powell uncovered arrow points, scrapers, broken spearheads and mussel shells. They also saw indication of Indian mounds.

"The burial seems to be typical of Indian burials from what I gathered from Harl Fowler of Brady, a collector of Indian relics," Barsch said.

The Indians were in a small cave of the creek bank with soil and rocks placed over the entrance. The two skeletons were lying in crouched positions side by side, with the male on his back and the female on her side with her head at his feet.

Banking Meet To Aid Farms

The topic, "What Kind of Farm Programs Should We Have?" will be explored at A&M University's 12th annual Farm and Ranch Credit School for Commercial Bankers Nov. 26-27.

Program Chairman Reagan Brown of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology said the subject will be treated in a panel discussion by three men who have definite ideas about farm programs.

The discussion is set for 1:15 p.m. Nov. 26 in the Memorial Student Center.

Former MSC Shoe Shine Boy Could Be First Negro Graduate

BY RAY HARRIS
Special Writer

Arthur Lee Dunn hopes to be the first Negro graduate of A&M University. A sociology major, Dunn is one of two undergraduate Negro students attending A&M this fall.

Arthur is not new to the campus. He has been employed as a shine boy at the Memorial Student Center barber shop since 1956.

"After I graduate, I hope to get a job as a probation officer here in Texas," Arthur said. "I want to help the kids. There are too many on the streets and I think that I understand their problems."

HE ADDED that he meant youths of all races. This year Arthur has been largely responsible for keeping three boys from becoming high school dropouts.

There is reason why Arthur might understand the problems of young people. He has had many of the same problems of today's youth to surmount himself.

TO HELP SUPPORT himself and six other children of a fatherless family he started working when he was nine years old. An Aggie Ex, Don Fazzino, was his employer until he graduated from E. A. Kemp High School in Bryan. When Arthur first started, he was earning fifty cents a day. He was making $30 a week when he graduated.

An all-state football player in high school, Arthur won a football scholarship to Prairie View A&M College. Arthur left school at the end of football season and joined the Army. He was 17.

"THE ARMY was good for me. I matured and became a better man."

When he was released from the Army, he again tried commuting to

Prairie View. This became impractical and he started working as a shine boy at the MSC. This fall, after seven years, he had another chance to go to college and enrolled at A&M for six hours. He plans to increase his load as time passes. By 1966, Arthur hopes to be a senior.

"When you are willing to work hard and respect the people you come in contact with, you will get along all right," he says.

ARTHUR GETS ALONG all right—in fact, he has nothing but praise for A&M. The administration and faculty have been very helpful to Arthur and he has never had any trouble of any kind with the student body.

He has made many friends. Arthur is probably one of the best known personalities on campus — on or off. He has, pending graduation, job offers from A&M former students all over the United States. They feel that if he can work his way from a shine boy to a college degree, he deserves a good job. Many of these men, now executives and community leaders, were once patrons of Arthur's shoe shine business.

University Bank Has Appointments

The Board of Directors of the University National Bank in College Station has elected R. B. Butler as chairman of the Board and Robert L. Ayers as director.

Other changes announced were the selection of Ayers as vice president, of Lowell Jones as assistant vice president, and of Leo Mion as cashier.

The Worlds of BENNY GOODMAN

Featuring:

BENNY GOODMAN IN PERSON
(this is not just the music of Benny Goodman)

RED NORVO AND HIS XYLOPHON THE BERKSHIRE QUARTET
The Nationally Known String Quartet.

Benny Goodman, the King of Swing, will be the featured attraction November 27, right after the A&M bonfire. This is the same internationally known clarinetist who has been warmly received by music lovers around the globe. Even the Russian people and Nikita Khrushchev demonstrated tremendous enthusiasm at concerts during his tour behind the "iron curtain."

The program will consist of both classical music and the music that made Benny Goodman famous, his own style of American jazz that he calls swing.

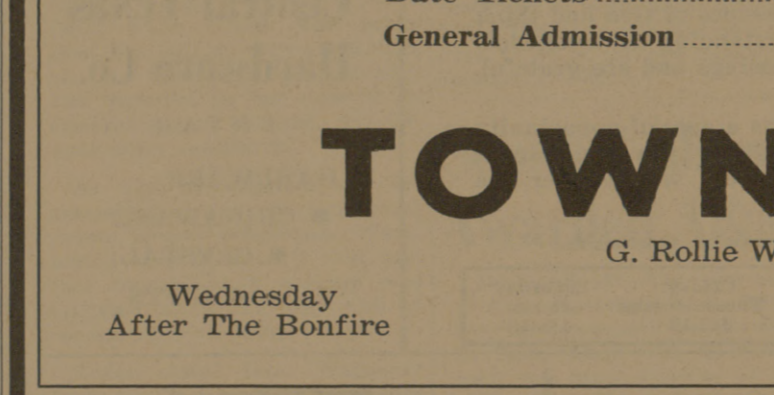

Tickets for the performance will be on sale Monday and Tuesday at the M.S.C. and at the door the night of the performance.

Tickets:
Student Activity Cards are good for this performance
Date Tickets $1.00
General Admission $4.00
