Study Association To Meet Saturday

"The American Identity" will be the topic as the American Studies Association of Texas meet Saturday in the Memorial Student Center to hear scholarly papers on various aspects of the American character and identity.

The state chapter and the national association are composed of professors concerned with American studies in such varied disciplines as economics, history, literature and philosophy.

Theme of this eighth annual meeting of the Texas chapter is "The American Identity: The Development of Domestic and Foreign Concepts of the American National Character."

Nine professors from as many college and universities will present papers. The morning session begins at 9:45 a.m.

Robert E. Spiller of the University of Pennsylvania and a former president of the American Studies Association will speak at the noon meeting.

The subject of the distinguished scholar of American literature is "Attitudes Toward International Cultural Relations."

Spiller received the bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and is a veteran member of that faculty. He is the Felix E. Schelling Professor of English Literature at the University of Pennsylvania and since July has been acting dean of the Annenberg School of Communications at the university.

Spiller has been a visiting Fulbright professor at the Universities of Oslo and London and has served as an officer in professional associations. He is the author of three books and editor of two others.

Engineers Receive Scholarships, Aid

Grants totaling almost $90,000 have been received by the Department of Petroleum Engineering. Robert L. Whiting, department head, announced.

Whiting also announced that $4,650 of this figure includes scholarships that remain to be awarded to qualified applicants during the 1963-64 year.

Grants already presented to A&M petroleum engineering graduate and undergraduate students total $72,450, and the individual amounts range from $200 to $2,850.

In addition, the department received $12,350 in unrestricted grants from the petroleum industry to support departmental programs, Whiting pointed out.

The recipients include 22 students currently residing in the Bryan-College Station area.

These include W. Douglas Von Gonten, $2,400 from Humble Oil & Refining Company; Walter L. Penberthy, Jr., $1,500 and tuition and fees from the Pan American Petroleum Foundation; Jack E. Little, $2,000 from Continental Oil Company; James W. Givens, $2,000 plus tuition and fees from Gulf Research and Development Company.

Also William D. Edman, $1,800 from Cities Service; Walter F. Whately, $1,500 plus tuition and fees from Marathon Oil Company; Laszlo K. Nemeth, $2,850 graduate teaching assistantship from A&M.

Alvin W. Talash, Robert C. Schlaudt, Charles O. Reed, Marion D. Arnold, C. Floyd Wiesepape, $22,600 worth of research assistantships from Texas Petroleum

Model U. N. Seeks Student Delegates

A&M University is looking for delegates to send to the Model United Nations at Austin in the spring. Students interested in national and international affairs and who would like to work toward the delegation are urged to contact Dr. Michael Francis, faculty advisor, Dan Davis or Ed Lamb, so organization can begin.

Oceanographer's Christmas Promises To Be Very White

One A&M University professor is certain to have a white Christmas.

Dr. S. Z. El-Sayed, a biological oceanographer, will land at an Argentine base in Antarctica shortly before Christmas Day. The trip south to General Belgrano Base, 700 miles from the South Pole, begins this week. Even though it will be "summer" in the Antarctic, the trip must be made by icebreaker since temperatures will be near zero degrees.

The trip is part of a cooperative study of the productivity of the sea beyond South America. A&M, with financial support totaling $120,000 from the National Science Foundation, and the Argentine Navy's hydrographic office, are cooperating in the study planned through 1964.

FINDINGS WILL INTEREST both commercial fisheries and biological oceanographers. The plankton being observed are minute organisms which serve as food for ocean life.

"The voyage will be the first using chlorophyll A and carbon fixation methods conducted in the Weddell Sea," El-Sayed said.

He and Dr. Enrique Mandelli are scheduled to fly into Buenos Aires Thursday and to sail Dec. 7. Mandelli, of the Argentine Navy Hydrographic Office, has spent considerable time on the A&M campus.

THE VOYAGE SOUTHWARD from Buenos Aires will provide an opportunity to study properties of the sea ranging from subtropical waters to the coast of Antarctica.

A&M Korean graduate student, Byung Lee, recently returned from one of the cruises, and is scheduled to return in March. He uses the findings for his doctoral dissertation.

"We are especially interested in detecting the convergence where Antarctic waters meet warmer waters using biological and chemical analysis," El-Sayed said.

This method of detecting convergence was discovered during a cruise this year. The findings drew considerable interest at a symposium on the Antarctica, El-Sayed noted.

Faculty, Graduate Students To Attend Science Conference

A&M University faculty and graduate students will present 18 research papers at the annual Texas Academy of Sciences meeting in Abilene Thursday through Saturday. Dr. Charles LaMotte, A&M biology professor and TAS official, announced.

"These papers are in addition to 15 scholarly reports that will be given by A&M undergraduate students," LaMotte said. Undergraduates will meet at the same time on the Abilene Christian College campus, although the meetings will be separate from professional groups.

Outstanding research reports in mathematics and the physical, earth, biological, social and environmental sciences will be given during the three-day meeting, LaMotte added.

A&M faculty and graduate students presenting papers include R. C. Schlaudt, N. T. Cotman, Paul B. Crawford, A. W. Talash, Bobby G. Wixon, Dale L. Mordue, O. D. Sittler, Richard B. Davis, Ronald H. Pine, J. G. Potter, Jack A. Barnes, John Decker, H. G. Applegate, C. O. Wilson.

Also Jimmy F. McClary, H. A. Luther, Henry E. Heatherly, William S. McCulley, Richard J. Baldauf, Molla F. Huq, William J. Dodson, Eugene W. Hupp and Joseph W. Austin.
