It's Here To Stay

Aggie Spirit, Aggie Spirit and Aggie Spirit! It was pleasing to see Thursday night that the Aggie Spirit had not been confiscated in the Thanksgiving Day raid made on the Aggies in Kyle Field. The Spirit demonstrated at the basketball game Thursday night revealed that there are some things that just can't be taken away from A&M.

Congratulations to Coach Shelby Metcalf and his cagers on a fine start.

Incidentally, that's two Thursdays in a row that A&M has won major sporting events. Don't show us the scoreboard, Sips, we saw the game.

They Said It; Then They Did It

Aggies should profit from an expensive experience of some of their fellow students.

Five mascots were taken from rival schools during the football season and the punishment handed out was very mild. The understanding of the administration should be appreciated by all students. However, after the same administration stood good on a warning they issued prior to the University of Texas game the students should be just as appreciative.

The reference is being made to the suspension of eight students who were apprehended in the tower building on the University of Texas campus—along with buckets of paint and paint brushes.

Student Senator Frank Mueller said in Thursday night's Senate meeting that students should be warned by this action. Dean of Students James P. Hannigan, advisor to the Senate, stated that rigid enforcement of the rule which the aforementioned students violated will continue to be enforced as strictly in the future as it was in this most recent event.

So, students are herewith notified—for the second time this semester—that "The following offense will result in immediate suspension for not less than the remainder of the semester:

"Going to another college campus with the intent to paint or otherwise deface statues or buildings or commit other depredation. Minimum penalty is suspension from the University for the semester in which the act occurs."

Goldwater Looks At Election Hopes

"I got a team picture of the 1939 Aggies, since they're the last legitimate national champions for the Southwest Conference!"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater said Thursday he is undertaking a "major reassessment" of his presidential prospects in the tangled political picture left by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"I don't think my support has changed from what it was," said the Arizona conservative who ranked No. 1 among potential Republican nominees in public opinion polls taken before Kennedy's death.

But Goldwater added in an interview: "I feel you can't say for sure. The whole country is in a position of flux. There's no way to assess it."

As Goldwater sized up his prospects in what he called "a new ball game with a new pitcher," there were rumblings of an organized effort to put former Vice President Richard M. Nixon — who lost to Kennedy in 1960 — into the race for the 1964 nomination.

In New York, a spokesman for Nixon said "he isn't commenting on anything right now." The Washington Star reported plans are afoot to enter a slate of Nixon-pledged delegates in the New Hampshire presidential primary next March 10.

The Star quoted former GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall as saying he had met with Nixon and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the past week to discuss the political situation.

Politicians Eye Louisiana Voters For Trend Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some politicians in this national capital are keeping close watch on Louisiana's primary Saturday for clues to any political effect of President Kennedy's assassination.

It will mark the first voting since Kennedy's death.

In the Louisiana primary voters will try to pick a Democratic nominee for governor out of a field of 10. Charlton Lyons, Louisiana's Republican national committeeman, is unopposed for the GOP nomination but Democratic nomination in Louisiana usually is as good as election.

Some politicians believe the results may have overtones of meaning for the 1964 presidential election, particularly in the south.

Not every one agrees with this. Some have been too preoccupied with recent events to think much about the election. Others look on it as just a local election.

But there is interest on Capitol Hill, where members of the Louisiana delegation are bringing back reports about the national implications.

Their reports are that those candidates identified with Kennedy are gaining. Those who had mounted anti-Kennedy platforms are slipping. The result could keep Louisiana in the Democratic column in 1964.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: JACK SELLERS

Jack Sellers (B.S.E.E., 1956) typifies the successful engineer who takes advantage of the opportunities offered in the communications field at Southwestern Bell. In just a few short years, he has moved forward through four major assignments into his present position as District Engineer at Bartlesville, Oklahoma. Jack's present responsibilities concern the engineering of new outside plant equipment for 33 towns and cities in northeast Oklahoma. Expenditures range upwards to $700,000 annually. This is a job calling for administrative as well as engineering skill. Jack has demonstrated both talents, admirably. Throughout his previous assignments, Jack has shown his capacity for technical and administrative duties. Personnel under his supervision have been responsible for all outside telephone plant equipment in key areas. He has supervised as many as 54 people at one time. Jack Sellers, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.
