A Fine Machine

The word was out last week that Shelby Metcalf had a pretty good roundball machine playing for him. Last Saturday afternoon thousands had a golden opportunity to see the word become action. And the best part of it all was that several thousand University of Texas fans had ringside seats for the affair.

It doesn't take a sports authority to recognize the fact that the Aggie basketball team has been rounded into a smooth, competent and cool group of athletes that are hell bent on a Southwest Conference championship this year.

Congratulations on the fast come-on you have made so far this year and the best of luck to you in the future. We'll see you in Houston on Jan. 28 against U of H and then on Feb. 1, when you beat the feathers off the Rice birds and add one more to the conference record.

Someone's Kidding About These Wars

The frequent use of the term "cold war" almost sounds like laughter being directed at the thousands of American fighting men who are facing the hottest kind of wars—the

There are few occassions when a person can sit through a 30 minute news show on either radio or television, or read the front page of any metropolitan newspaper without seeing references to the cold war. On that same page or during that same program he can also read or hear anywhere from two to six stories based on very hot wars. The one big issue that so many American people seem to be overlooking everyday is that those little "brushfire wars" involve more that "those people over there." They also involve these people over here. They involve us. And everytime another American is killed in Viet Nam or any other part of the world we become more deeply involved and the brushfire grows hotter.

It's about time we stop kidding ourselves. We're not involved in a cold war. We're in the big middle of a hot war,

It appears that people have decided that there can be no complete peace for the American people. If we have accepted as fact that some of the United States of America's fighting men must be under fire somewhere in the world then let's quit doping our consciences with the cold war serum.

Maybe, just maybe, if we lay out cards on the table and call the clubs clubs. We might just see how big our club is and we could certainly let others get a look at our hand.

We've got a lot of chips in a lot of pots. The U.S. sits at the world table as the big winner so we can't fold. The only thing for us to do is start playing an all-out game to bring the entire pot home.

sive educational program aimed at smokers — and teenagers who haven't started — may be the first federal step following a science panel's indictment of cigarette smoking as a threat to life and health.

A panel of 10 doctors and scientists reported to the surgeon general Saturday that heavy cigarette smoking is a major cause of lung cancer and is associated, at least statistically, with other malignancies and heart ailments. The committee called for "appropriate remedial action.'

Informed sources said Monday that the most obvious first step would be a government-backed campaign against smoking, patterned after the all-out effort made by the Public Health Service to get Americans vaccinated

The campaign would be in addition to possible action by the Federal Trade Commission and

Sources said the FTC believes it has authority to require that cigarette packages bear health hazard labels - if the health service so recommends.

There were no indications that Congress would seek prohibition of cigarettes. But several members introduced or seconded bills requiring that cigarettes
