Welcome News

News that the House of Representatives have passed H. R. 9124, a bill to vitalize the nationwide Reserve Officers Training Corps, is indeed welcomed at A&M. For apart from the needed incentive to the members of the Corps of Cadets it is an endorsement of the tradition of military preparedness, a tradition that has paid off manifold in the past. It must be remembered however that the bill still has to pass the Senate. Yet remembering that H. R. 9124 finally got out of committee, after being returned there many times, is an encouraging sign that the legislators realize the responsibility of encouraging, and supporting such a program. It should be clear to all reasonable people that this university has a rich military tradition that should be cherished. Part of the responsibility of an educational institution such as A&M today is to continue as a source of officer manpower. This proposed legislation can help fulfill that responsibility by encouraging scholarship and by helping those desirous of a military career to qualify for a commission.

Football Tickets Now On Sale Here

Some 55,000 football ticket application order blanks for A&M's three home football games have been mailed out, Pat Dial, business manager of athletics, announced.

The order blanks were mailed to students, former students, faculty members, university employees and option holders.

Dial said that those persons have until July 31 to exercise their rights to order tickets. After that the football tickets will be placed on a first-come, first-served basis. The Aggies play Texas Tech here Oct. 3, TCU here Oct. 17 and Arkansas here Oct. 31.

A season book of three tickets is priced at $12.00. Single-game tickets are $4.00 for all Southwest Conference games. Single game tickets are also available for non-Southwest Conference games at varying prices set by the host school.

Grads Sought To Counsel Texas Youth

James H. Berry, Office Manager of the Bryan office of the Texas Employment Commission, urges college graduates of both sexes with the ability to work constructively with youth to apply at the TEC office for one of the 250 counselor positions to be filled as part of a massive state-federal effort scheduled to begin in September to improve the work skills and employability of thousands of un-employed Texas youth.

"Tests will be given on June 27 and trainee selections will be made before an intensive 8 to 10 week training session begins in mid-July, so there is no time to lose," Berry said.

Starting salary for these counselor positions will be slightly over $5,000. During the training period trainees will be paid subsistence and transportation costs. The degree requirement can be met by a degree in any field, and no experience is required.

"There are no doubt many recent college graduates, including some in technical and scientific fields, who will find in this program the same kind of challenge that young Americans have found in the Peace Corps," Berry stated, adding that pilot projects have shown that counselors in their early and middle twenties often do a superior job in working with disadvantaged youth.

Youth counselors will give intensive personal attention to all employment related needs of youth, with emphasis upon motivation toward becoming skilled, productive, and responsible citizens. Close cooperation will be maintained with schools, community agencies, governmental groups, and employers to achieve the best possible utilization of community resources.

"For those seeking a challenging opportunity to serve their state and nation, working in this program as a youth counselor can be an exciting and rewarding experience," Berry declared.

Interested persons should contact their TEC office at 409 North College Ave. Bryan, for full information and application blanks.

Commission Takes Steps For Safety

The Texas Highway Commission today took another giant step in its continuing attack on traffic accidents by appropriating $1-1/2 million for installation of safety devices on the Texas highway system during the 1964-1965 fiscal year.

The money appropriated by the Texas Highway Commission will cover the cost of the installation of traffic control signal lights, special signing and delineation, illumination of high accident locations, control of access with barrier on selected highway sections and other traffic safety improvements.

The action was another move marking awareness of the Texas Highway Commission to the nation's increasing traffic toll.

"The Highway Department constantly is on the alert to minimize accident dangers and to improve our safety factor," according to Herbert C. Petry, Jr., Commission Chairman.
