

Teachers Begin Orientation

Academic Year Institute activities for 30 junior high school science teachers from 17 states

County Agent Heads Association

E. J. Harrison Jr., 39, of Ward County is the new president of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

His election came during the organization's recent annual meeting in El Paso. He succeeds outgoing president Thurman Kennedy of Bexar County.

Harrison is a member of the class of 1947. He has been agricultural agent for Ward County since 1953 and was vice president of the TCAA in 1963.

Other new officers are A. H. Karcher Jr. of Hidalgo County, first vice president; Darrell Brown of Dallas County, second vice president; and Herman Lynch of Bowie County, secretary-treasurer.

have opened at A&M University. The teachers along with other A&M students will begin classes Sept. 14.

The orientation program includes group and individual conferences, campus tours, an extended review of mathematics and other topics. The schedule also allows time for the teachers to enroll their children in local schools.

The teachers will study varied science, mathematics and education courses. They may apply the academic credits toward the Master of Education in Science Education degree.

The National Science Foundation sponsors the 12-month program as a means of upgrading science teaching at the junior high school level.

A&M's Professor Emeritus Signs To Publish View Of Rural Texas

Dr. Robert L. Hunt, Professor Emeritus of A&M University, recently signed a contract for the publishing of his newest book, "Recollection of Farm Life."

This book, being published by the Naylor Company of San Antonio, Texas, an entertaining and carefully observed look at rural Texas from approximately 1900 to 1920.

Hunt attended college at A&M where he was a Distinguished Student. He received and accepted fellowships to the University of Wisconsin and North Carolina State, and was awarded his Ph.D. by North Carolina State. A teacher for 37 years at agricultural schools and colleges, Hunt recently retired as Professor Emeritus of Texas A&M.

The author is a member of the Southwestern Social Science Association, Kiwanis Club, D.A.V., American Legion, and the Mississippi Historical Association.

Warren Trock, formerly of Montana State College, has joined the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology.

Dr. R. E. Patterson, dean of the College of Agriculture, said Trock will conduct research on problems related to water utilization in Texas. The economist also plans to teach resource economics and hopes to develop a course in water use economics.

Dr. Chris H. Groneman is the author of a lead article in the current issue of "Industrial Arts and Vocational Education" magazine.

Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education and coordinator of teacher education at A&M, presents details of a study made of 40 industrial technology programs in the United States.

He compares each program regarding required hours in mathematics, basic science, engineering science, industrial materials and processes, business and industrial services, humanities, social studies and electives.

Sherilyn Bailey of Jefferson has been named rural civil defense specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service.

In making the announcement, Director John E. Hutchison said that Miss Bailey will replace Bobye Riney, who resigned May 31 to be married. As rural civil defense specialist, Miss Bailey will work with Tommy Hollmig, who holds a similar position, and will give leadership to educational programs dealing with rural civil defense being conducted by state and county Extension personnel. Included will be programs which give information needed by rural residents to live successfully in a nuclear age.

Two A&M University research officials are attending committee meetings of the Highway Research Board in Chicago this week.

Charles J. Keese, executive officer of the Texas Transportation Institute, is participating in sessions of the HRB's Department of Traffic and Operations and aiding with plans for the traffic program of the board's annual meeting.

Dr. Charles Pinnell, head of highway design and traffic engineering in the Texas Transportation Institute, is chairman of the program of the HRB's Freeway Operations Committee's present sessions in Chicago.

Walter (Pete) Holt of Bartlett has joined the Engineering Extension Service as an instructor in the water utilities training program.

Holt has operated the Central Texas city's fluoridation plant since the facility was completed by the Public Health Service in 1952 as an experimental project.

He was a city employee at Bartlett for 18 years before joining the Engineering Extension Service this week. He will conduct classes as part of the statewide training program for industrial municipal employees.
