Froggies Have New Cannon Ready For '64
By JON HILLUNEN
Fort Worth Bureau Chief
Fort Worth—"Old Betsy III," the Vigilantes' new cannon, makes her debut Sept. 26 as TCU meets Florida State in Amon Carter Stadium in Fort Worth, reported The Skiff, TCU student newspaper. The two previous "Betsies" came to rather unglorious ends. The original cannon was destroyed in a riot after the TCU-A&M game at Kyle Field in 1960. Then the Vigilantes were without a shootin' iron until last year when a temporary cannon was built. It was damaged after a game and was retired. It was fired by means of a shotgun in the barrel. Both the original and the new cannon are fired by a charge of black powder. The last cannon was finished only last week. The barrel, four feet in length and weighing 250 pounds, was cast in Dallas by Ervin Bros., a metal working firm. The bore of the barrel in one and a half inches and takes a four-ounce charge of powder. The carriage was assembled by Terry Adams, Fort Worth senior, and Jim Lamey, Victoria graduate student. The finished gun is two-thirds scale model of an original six pound Civil War fieldpiece.

A&M To Host Water Confab Nov. 23-24
Relationships between water quality and chemicals will be emphasized at the ninth annual Water for Texas Conference Nov. 23-24 here. Theme for the conference is "Water Quality and Chemicals—Industrial and Chemical." Keynote speaker at the conference is Dr. Gordon McCallum, assistant surgeon general for the U. S. Public Health Service. The conference luncheon speaker is State Senator Culp Krueger of El Campo, chairman of the Committee for the Study of Texas Bays. Dr. N. C. Brady, director of science and education with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be banquet speaker.

Austin Hosts Researchers

A&M University was among the seven universities and two research groups represented at an Austin meeting Wednesday of an inter-university interim committee discussing plans for a cooperative effort for research and education in the earth and related sciences. Graduate Dean Wayne C. Hall served as A&M's voting representative on the committee. Rice University Chancellor Carey Cronis was chairman. Other institutions represented included Florida State University, Southern Methodist University, Louisiana State University, University of Houston, University of Texas, Southwest Research Institute, San Antonio and the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest, Dallas.

THE BATTALION

5 Graduate Assistants Added To TTI Staff

Five graduate assistants have been added to the Department of Transportation Economics of the Texas Transportation Institute. Three are native Texans and two are from Tennessee. They will work on various highway research projects involving economics, according to Charley V. Wootan, head of the department. Ernest P. Boaze, who received the BA degree in economics from A&M in 1964, is working toward an MBA degree in data processing. He will work on the National Cooperative Highway Research Program project involving the value of time to commercial vehicle operators. He is from Marshall. James Buchanan, a 1964 BBA marketing graduate of A&M from Abilene, also will do research on the NCHRP value of time project. He is studying for the MBA degree in business and economics. James M. Coburn of Knoxville, Tenn., who holds B.S. and M.S. educational degrees from the University of Tennessee, is directing his studies toward the doctorate in industrial education. Harold S. Lewis, who received
