

History, Government Profs Added To University Staff

The Department of History and Government has three new instructors, Dr. J. M. Nance, department head, has announced.

Instructors in the field of government are Alan Heslop and Stanley Kyriakides, while William H. Little will teach history.

Dr. Chris H. Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education, has been invited to continue on the editorial board of the "Industrial Arts and Vocational Education" magazine. He recently completed a three-year term on the board of the monthly professional magazine issued by Bruce Publishing Co. of Milwaukee.

Dr. Donald W. Hood, an A&M chemical oceanographer, has been named to an advisory study committee of the National Institutes of Health. He is the only Southwestern named to the 21-member Environmental Sciences and Engineering Study Section.

The professor returned this month after a year of research with W. David Evans of the University of Nottingham. Hood was among 100 American scientists holding National Science Foundation senior postdoctoral fellowships for the year.

Dr. E. C. Breitenkamp of the Department of Modern Languages has received a contract from Prentice-Hall publishers, to prepare a textbook in intermediate German.

The new text will contain material selected from current German periodicals and will reflect life in present-day Germany. Breitenkamp expects the new book to be published next year.

Former pitcher Ken Burkhardt, a National League umpire, tossed a no-hit, no-run game against Abbeville for New Iberia in the rookie. He also drove in the winning run in the ninth inning. Score: 1-0.

A Sign Of Hope
Mrs. Julia Carman, 39, a former school teacher, goes about the task of keeping her yard trim. She is one of a group of homeowners in the MacGregor area of Houston who said "no" when a realtor suggested they move after Negroes began moving into the all-white neighborhood.

New Culture—More Leisure

Americans must begin to direct their thinking and planning to a culture fast becoming leisure-oriented, says Reagan Brown, A&M's extension sociologist. The time an individual spends in discretionary activities is just as important to his well-being as the time he spends on the job. Brown describes leisure time as that time which an individual does not have to use to gain his subsistence or devote to such necessities of life as sleeping, eating and keeping clean. Some call it discretionary time or choosing time—time when one can choose to do as he pleases.

Recreation has become a major form of leisure time activity, Brown points out, but the two are not identical. Leisure is primarily the opportunity for self-expression. It may include gardening, reading, pursuing a hobby, or other activities chosen to satisfy certain inner needs, even though the doing may be difficult or painstaking or require years of study and practice.

"Americans have more free time to use for discretionary activities now than ever before, and this will likely increase in the near future," predicts Brown.

Agriculture's work week, as in industry, has been shortened considerably and paid vacation time is standard for almost all forms of employment except those in unskilled brackets.

While many people retire from paid employment later in life than before, they still have more years in retirement than formerly simply because life expectancy is greater. Most of our older citizens have better health when they retire as well as better retirement incomes. Their use of leisure time will be an important factor, says Brown, in their adjustment to life and to roles in the community.

80 Art Miniatures Slated For Exhibit

Eighty contemporary miniature prints of 12 artists will be on exhibit in the Memorial Student Center Oct. 12 through Nov. 8.

Sponsored by the MSC Creative Arts Committee, the exhibit will include work by artists in etching and engraving, lithography, woodcut, linoleum block and serigraphy.

The prints were chosen for the First International Contemporary Miniature Competition by the Pratt Graphic Art Center in New York.

25% DIVIDEND
TO ELIGIBLE TEXAS MOTORISTS

That's right, Texas policyholders have come to expect dividend savings from State Farm Mutual's famous 6-month policy. Nine out of ten policyholders have saved more than $30,000,000 over the past 27 years. State Farm's present 25% dividend rate makes the actual cost of car insurance lower than that of most other companies. For more complete details see me soon!
