

DALLAS—This was to be, and the year of the punter in the Southwest Conference, with national champion Danny Thomas of SMU and Texas' Ernie Koy figured as the men who would contest for the title and, possibly, new SWC records.

After two weeks, however, the top two in the kicking derby are the unfamiliar names of Chuck Latourette, Rice, and Corky Terry, SMU. Neither could be the product of what would call remarkable recruiting. Latourette is a multi-talented tailback from Jonesboro, Ark., and when Jess Neely was complimented recently about recruiting him away from Frank Broyles, he smiled. "Yes, that was a real tug-of-war. Let me tell you about it. I was returning to my office one day after lunch and this man and the boy (Latourette and his father, who had visited Rice on their own) stopped me and talked about entering Rice. I tried to be cordial. And they left.

"About two weeks later, Bill Beall (assistant Coach) of LSU visited us and said he understood the Latourette boy was interested in Rice. I said 'Oh, yes, the boy was here, I recall. Do you know anything about him? And he proceeded to tell me he was one of the more widely-sought backs in the South. So I hurried to the phone and told him 'Boy, you come on over here. You don't need to make any other plans.' And he came, on scholarship."

quarterback, came to SMU as a recent transfer after first enrolling at Washington.

With Danny Thomas ailing, Terry has been doing the SMU punting and doing it at a 40.4 clip. But this is good only for second place behind Latourette who made his debut against LSU and boomed 10 punts for a fine 43.8 average.

Other departmental leaders: Passing — Dan McIlhany, A&M with 14 completions; Rushing—Jim Fauer, TCU, with 213 yards; Total Offense — Jim Fauer, TCU, with 213 yards; Receiving — Donny Anderson, T. Tech, and Ken Hodge, Baylor, with 7; Scoring — Ernie Koy, Texas, with 18.
