Marshall Credited With 66-Yard Safety

Jim Marshall's wrong-way run with a recovered fumble last Sunday in Minneapolis game against the San Francisco 49ers will go down in the National Football League record books officially as a 66-yard dash.

The official statistician in San Francisco had credited Marshall with a 60-yard run for a 49er safety, but a review of game films showed it actually covered 66 yards.

The feat thus is credited with being two yards longer than Regel's famed wrong-way run in the Rose Bowl.
