

BATTALION EDITORIALS

Batt Reviews Principles, Policies

Most college newspapers reserve their first issue of the new fall semester to editorially laud their alma mater and clothe its administration and students alike in shrouds of genius and glory.

This serves no purpose but to calm an anxious president and to allow an editor liberal use of this thesaurus. But because The Battalion chose a different route, questions have arisen as to the how's and why's of its editorial positions.

The first axiom this newspaper operates under, is that there are no minor deities on the A&M campus. Nor are there any traditions, customs or organizations which are too sacred to be impartially scrutinized.

The second premise can be found in "A Statement of Principles" adopted in 1958 by student editors of A&M publications. Simply stated, the policy of all student publications reads:

"The primary objective of student publications at Texas A&M University is educational, providing practical experience for students in publication management, writing, editing, production and distribution. Coincidentally, student publications provide printed media for the dissemination of news and information, thereby serving the University and its community. The educational and service objectives are designed to enhance the knowledge of the students and the prestige of the University.

"The editors of student publications are expected to be guided by the accepted ethics of their profession and to keep within the bounds of truthfulness, accuracy, sincerity, fair play, decency, impartiality, etc. Editors are further expected to maintain good faith with readers, and the respect and the moral character of all persons and the reputation of the University.

"The right to freedom of the press, as enjoyed by other free media everywhere, is an inseparable art of The Battalion and other student publications; these derive such inalienable right by law. Neither the University nor Student Publications would have this freedom abridged. Freedom of the Press, however, is not to be confused with LICENSE to attack, or destroy, or otherwise subvert the source from which these periodicals, or any others, derive their freedom. To the PRIVILEGES afforded by press freedom, are inextricably joined the RESPONSIBILITIES for an intelligent fidelity to the public trust. The editor or journalist who makes use of his power for selfish or unworthy purpose violates a cardinal precept of his high calling. The student publications at Texas A&M University should exemplify the loftiest ideals of the profession."

A Treat For Millions

Last year, the Commission on Missions of St. Paul's Methodist Church tried a program in their church aimed at a constructive Halloween for the youngsters in their congregation in the first through the sixth grades. The Meals for Millions Foundation trick-or-treat was the program and it was felt to be very successful.

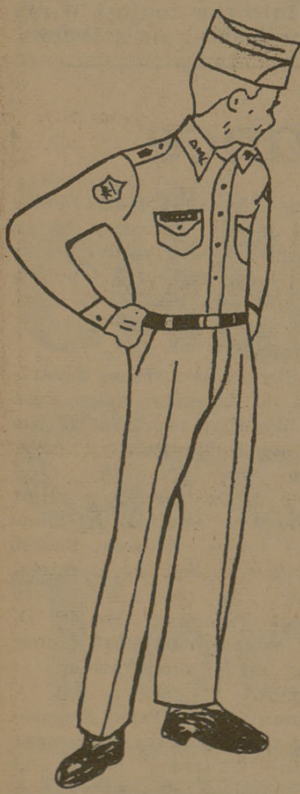

This year St. Paul's Methodist Church is asking the other Methodist churches in the city to join them in an expanded program.

The children in the first through the six grades will trick-or-treat in their own neighborhood for money to help feed hungry people of the world. Three cents will buy a meal of food supplement that contains all the essential minerals, vitamins and proteins which a person normally needs.

The children will be identified by the "3 Cent Meals for Millions" share bank, and tag on their costumes. After making their rounds they will report to their respective churches for refreshments and entertainment.

This is a project worth contributing to. Three cents buys a meal and $1 buys 33 meals for hungry millions.

"Trick or treat!"

— Sound Off —

Editor, The Battalion: This is a reply to a letter submitted by Capt. Clarence B. Sanders, '59.

The so-called dead weights he mentioned are supporting greatly to the income of Texas A&M University. True, they are not a part of the Corps, but many are supporting families and trying very hard to keep high averages.

If going to Texas A&M University, supporting their so-called football team and many other extra curricular school activities not including the Corps is being a dead weight, the university nor the Corps is worth two cents. Linda Asbill Wife of a Dead Weight

Soviet Journal Lauds K Ouster

MOSCOW (AP) — The journal of the Soviet party Central Committee declared Thursday the party's decision — meaning the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev — "expressed the will of the entire party, of the entire people."

The theoretical organ Communist, assailing Khrushchev without naming him, said the new Kremlin regime is a collective leadership that will pursue a peaceful foreign policy. And it called for a world Communist meeting as proposed by Khrushchev but opposed by Red China.

Kommunist spoke of "immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, boasting, and empty phrase mongering."
