Man's Worth Examined By 'Last Lecture' Speaker

"What are you worth in character, ideals, service, attitude and in those qualities which abide forever?" Reagan V. Brown asked 30 students Monday night as he spoke at YMCA "Last Lecture" series.

Brown, extension sociologist in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, examined different methods of determining a man's worth—chemical analysis, dollar value, education, skill and genius.

After explaining why these measurements can not give a true picture of a man's worth, he said, "The value of a man to himself depends on his ability to give himself away."

"If you have given yourself away in service; if your legacy to your family and friends has permanently ennobled their lives; if you have tried your best to repay your debt to your community; and if you possess clean hands and a pure heart, your value is above computation," concluded Brown.

Shriner's lecture on "The Anthocyanins," dyes occurring in certain vegetation, is open to the public and will be in Room 231, Chemistry Building.

The organic chemist is an advisory professor of chemistry at Southern Methodist University since his retirement as head of the Department of Chemistry of the University of Iowa. Earlier he taught at the University of Illinois and headed the Department of Chemistry of the University of Indiana.

Dr. Raymond Reiser of the Department of Biochemistry and Nutrition will go to Israel in December to develop a research project for the Office of International Research of the National Institutes of Health.

The project will be a cooperative effort between the Israeli Agricultural Experiment Station and the Hadassah Medical School of the Hebrew University, but will be under the supervision of Reiser.

MEDAL, RETIREMENT ON SAME DAY... Lt. Col. Homer Stuverud receives medal.

AROTC Honors Retiring Colonel

Four years of "meritorious service" with the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps Detachment at A&M won an Army Commendation Medal for Lt. Col. Homer A. Stuverud.

Presentation of the medal by Col. D. L. Baker, professor of military science, highlighted Stuverud's final day of active duty. The veteran of more than 22 years of service retired effective Sunday.

The citation accompanying the medal reads in part: "He has demonstrated exceptional qualities of leadership, personal initiative and professional skill and... discharged his responsibilities in a consistently outstanding manner."

Stuverud served as officer in charge of the advanced section of the Department of Military Science. The Transportation Corps officer entered the Army in 1942 as a draftee. He was commissioned upon completing Officer Candidate School in April, 1943, and became a Regular Army officer after World War II service in Europe.

He was in the Far East during the Korean conflict and holds varied service ribbons for World War II and Far East service.

Stuverud, a native of Minnesota, has a bachelor's degree from State Teachers College in Mayville, N. D. and the MA degree received in 1954 from the University of North Carolina.

W. Howard Badgett of A&M will attend the annual meeting of the Central States Region of the National Association of Physical Plant Administrators for Colleges and Universities Sunday through Wednesday. The meeting will be at University of Kansas. Badgett, head of the University Office of Physical Plant, is a past president of the regional group.

Virgil Reynolds, merchandising director for Weingarten's Inc. in Houston will participate in A&M's 13th annual Farm and Ranch Credit School for Commercial Bankers Nov. 11-13.

The food store official will discuss on a panel "The Future for Beef."

Other panel members are Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde rancher and businessman; Dr. O. D. Butler, head of Department of Animal Science; and J. D. Sartwell, rancher and president and general manager of the Port City Stockyards in Houston.

Ken Wolf, agribusiness economist in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, said the conference is designed to help commercial bankers meet the ever-increasing capital requirements of the agricultural industry.

Professor Chris H. Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education of A&M, will be the featured speaker Thursday for the Industrial Education Section at the Kansas State Teachers Association convention in Topeka.

His topic will be "Industrial Arts—Where Next?"

Dr. Ralph L. Shriner, distinguished organic chemist, will speak here at 8 p.m. Thursday to the A&M-Baylor Section of the American Chemical Society, John B. Beckham, Section Secretary, announced.
