Callaway Top FFA Senior

Weaver Callaway of Moran has been named outstanding senior of the Collegiate FFA Chapter at A&M for the fall semester.

Callaway, a mid-year graduate in agricultural education, served the Collegiate Chapter as president and sentinel, was a member of numerous committees, and participated in leadership schools and judging contests.

Callaway will be presented a plaque in recognition of his selection at the Collegiate FFA Chapter's Student-Prof Banquet April 30.

He is a distinguished student and member of the Agricultural Council.

President Earl Rudder has announced the renewal of a $500 scholarship for A&M from Southern Pine Lumber Co. for the 1964-65 school year.

Recipient of the scholarship will be announced later by Dr. Chris Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education, following a meeting of the faculty scholarship committee.

The scholarship is for an industrial marketing student.

Holder of the 1963-64 scholarship provided by Southern Pine, a part of Temple Industries, is Richard L. Daerr, a junior industrial distribution major from Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Mich.

Managing personnel from municipal electric systems across Texas are expected Monday through Wednesday on campus. Approximately 50 persons will attend the tenth annual Municipal Electric Short School, A&M Associate Professor John S. Denison said.

The program includes topics of interest to power plant superintendents, operating superintendents and others.

The annual session is a joint venture of the A&M Department of Electric Engineering and the Municipal Utilities League of the Texas Municipal League.
