

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Sauer Jr., the Longhorns top pass receiver, may pass up his final year of college eligibility and sign a pro football contract with the New York Jets of the American Football League.

Royal indicated he may try to delay the move a year.

He said Jet Coach Webb Ewbank and Sonny Werblin, the team's owners, have "me their word they won't sign without my consent, and I'm assured them I won't give my consent."

Business, Education Unity Emphasized At Conference

The close relationship of business and education and dependence upon each other was underscored here Wednesday as one of the nation's top utilities executives spoke to the Executive Development Course.

Speaking was Donald C. Power, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of General Telephone and Electronics Corp., New York City.

GT&E with more than 6,500,000 telephones has about 85 per cent of the independent phone business in the nation and also has numerous manufacturing companies.

"Many of the challenges facing education and business overlap substantially, especially in the areas of ingenuity and communication," Power told the executives from 30 firms and agencies.

Power said he spoke as a former university professor who also is a businessman. He is a graduate, former faculty member and past chairman of the board of Ohio State University.

"The complexities of modern business require many of the same thought habits that liberal education inculcates," Power said in discussing study of the humanities as vital in education.

He said the need to produce generalists as well as specialists is a great challenge facing education.

"More than ever before, industry needs vigorous and imaginative people to whom precedent is simply the starting place for new answers to new problems," Power said.

"The problem boils down to making sure that a company's generalists are not so general that they lost touch with the practical business realities, or that the specialists are not so specialized that they lock themselves into narrow compartments," the executive said.

The veteran utilities executive was introduced to the 45 EDC participants and guests by John H. Lindsey, Houston insurance man and member of the advisory committee for the annual Executive Development Course. Lindsey also is president of the Association of Former Students.

President E. H. Danner of the General Telephone Co. of the Southwest and Southwest States Telephone and President Earl Rudder were among the guests attending the morning session. Also present were a number of telephone company officials.

Power in an extended and frank question-answer session following his discussion of "New Challenges Facing Education and Business" said, "A good manager can manage anything."

The EDC opened Sunday evening on campus and continuing through Feb. 12 features workshop sessions led by 28 senior officers of national and state firms, plus other meetings.

Poll May Select RE Week Topic

Growing concern for America's moral conditions and greater interest in formulating "a sound philosophy of life" have the attention of increasing numbers of Aggies.

The results of an "interest locator" listing 29 topics for evaluation by students were announced by J. Gordon Gay, general secretary of the YMCA. The poll brought responses from approximately 3,000 Aggies. The YMCA Cabinet and cadet and civilian student chaplains conducted the survey as part of preparations for campus Religious Emphasis Week activities starting Feb. 15.

Gay explained that the interest topics evaluation helps in planning the materials to be presented during the assemblies. Each student was asked to indicate the five topics he thought most interesting.

"All through the years the topic 'planning for a successful marriage' but this year the topic concerning moral laxity and what can be done stirred almost equal interest," Gay said. The tallies were 768 and 749.

The consensus showed in third place the topic, "Are 'Sunday Saints' better than people who never attend church but have high morals and are honest and socially accepted?" The tally, 550.

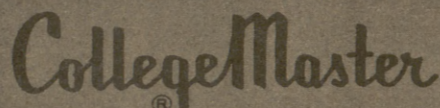

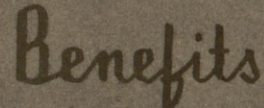

Almost as many Aggies, 544, expressed interest in the topic, "How can I formulate a sound philosophy of life?"

"Interest in this topic of a philosophy of life has developed in the last five years," Gay said.

Other topics chosen among the "top ten" and the number of students listing each: "Is our scientific and technical world of today slowly disregarding parts of the Bible as impractical and unbelievable, or is it proving them to be scientifically true?", 516; "How closely associated are man's belief and his behaviour?", 487; and

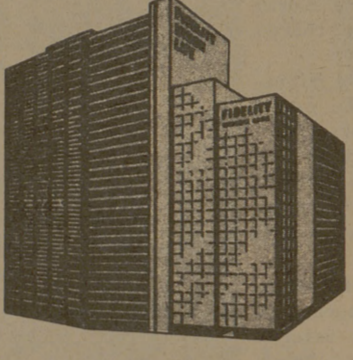

"Is religion and God, as well as moral ethics, disappearing from our civilization because of the advancements in science?", 418; "What values should a man seek in life?", 410; "How can American citizens exert a moral and spiritual influence in world relations?", 402; and "Under what conditions might peace be possible in the modern world? Should nations compromise their ideals in the interest of peace?", 376.

More than 100 A&M students also took advantage of the opportunity to write in suggested topics.
