

Couples, Coeds May Reside In Dormitories

By GERALD GARCIA

Coeds, as has been the policy in past years, plus married couples without children will have a dormitory reserved for the 1965 summer sessions, reported James P. Hannigan, Dean of Students.

"Of course married students will be able to live in the married students' housing if they wish," Hannigan said.

Because a large increase in summer enrollment is anticipated, A&M will offer students central air-conditioning in all of the buildings—dormitories, classrooms, laboratories and a mess hall—to be used in the summer sessions.

Sbisa Mess Hall at the present is not air-conditioned, but it will be by the time summer school starts. Workmen have begun work on the air-conditioning units in the basement of the mess hall.

This will be the first year that summer students have been offered the comforts of air-conditioning and this improvement in the housing situation is expected to attract a record number of women as well as men to the summer sessions.

Hannigan said that Dorm 14 has been set aside for the coeds and married students and if enrollment warrants it another can be used. If Dorm 14 fills up, either Henderson Hall or Walton Hall will be used. These two dorms have been used in past years for the summer session by the coeds.

"Present plans call for the use of Dorm 14 for both coeds and married students," Hannigan said. "We will put the married students on the fourth level and work down, while the women will be placed in the bottom level and worked up."

With the completion of air-conditioning Sbisa Hall, A&M's $4 million building program will be completed. This provided for four air-conditioned dorms and the installation of air-conditioning in older dorms and other buildings.

Married students will be allowed to stay in dorms for the first time in the coming summer sessions.

"This will allow both to go to school and not have to worry about cooking since they could eat their meals in the cafeteria," Hannigan said.

"If the wife does not want to go to school or work, then she can have a complete vacation while her husband studies. These dorms have lounges where the wives can get together. There is a golf course nearby and the campus swimming pool is less than three blocks from the dormitory area."

A&M will offer approximately 2,100 air-conditioned rooms for the summer sessions.

Summer school starts June 7 with registration and classroom work begins the following day. The second session begins with registration July 19 and classroom work July 20.

All-Male Bill To Be Studied By Civilians

By CLOVIS McCALLISTER
Night News Editor

The Civilian Student Council voted Thursday night to authorize the Executive Committee of the council to study campus feeling toward the proposed all-male, all-military bill introduced in the legislature and to write legislators accordingly.

Don Warren introduced the subject to the council. James Oliver said that the bill reflected on the civilians and he recommended a letter of censor. Representative Rex Harrison stressed that the letter should give the corps-civilian ratio now on campus.

The council voted to authorize the committee to study student feeling toward the bill and to write legislators giving the student reaction.

In other action, the council voted to recommend to the Election Commission and the Yell Leader Committee that the runner-up of last year's election for civilian yell leader be placed in the place of January graduate Jim Benson.

The council also voted to reserve Sbisa Dining Hall for the Civilian Weekend Dance. A committee was set up to study bands submitted for the dance.

Discussion was also directed toward civilian student government reorganization. Presently the dormitory presidents council and the civilian student council are two separate entities.

President Paul Oliver proposed that the council study the possibilities of the dorm presidents also serving as CSC representatives.

Oliver said that under this proposal, the council would still retain the class representatives with the only change involving the 10 dorm presidents and representatives. He said that the representatives would not take the positions on the council until next September.

A committee was appointed to visit with the dorm presidents council next week to discuss the possibility of grouping the two organizations.

New Structure For Golf Course

Nancy K. Lathrop, left, and Lesley Laird pose in front of a recently constructed golf shelter. The object, designed and constructed by a class in the School of Architecture, will be used on the A&M Golf course to keep sun, rain and snow off participants.

A Valentine From Johanna

Miss Johanna Leister, 1964-65 Aggie Sweetheart, would like to wish Happy Valentine's Day to her 8,000 sweethearts in Aggieland. Johanna, a sophomore at Texas Woman's University, is majoring in speech and drama education.

ASC Delegation Urged To Support Connally's Plan

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. John Connally urged a delegation from Arlington State College Thursday to "keep the pressure on" for his proposed reorganization of state colleges, which he said was vital for the state's future.

The Arlington students represented the student government and a "Save Our School" group which has led the move to separate ASC from the Texas A&M University System.

Jim Jeffery, a co-chairman of the "SOS," said later Connally had ensured their support of his reorganization of colleges plan with his 30-minute talk in his office.

"He wants to get politics out of higher education—that's what we want. And he also answered many of our questions by assuring that all colleges would be under the same board of regent. We want to get away from the A&M regents," Jeffery said.

Connally's proposal, which set off opposition in many areas, would put Arlington in the University of Texas System along with North Texas State and Texas Woman's Universities, Texas Western College, the University of Houston, Texas Southern University, and medical and dental units.

Connally said that, although he was not certain his proposed alignments were precisely right in every case, he stood behind the plan as the only way to "stabilize the mechanism, the structure of the colleges" to keep abreast of changing times with a "sound, reasonable basis of future growth."

In addition to Jeffery, the students were Lynn Little, president of the student body, and Larry Johnson and Ann Jobe, co-chairman of the SOS group.

The SOS representatives said their original intent was to push to establish Arlington as an independent school.

"We changed our mind after seeing the governor's proposals," Jeffery said.

"Our development under A&M during the past 10 years has not been so great as it might have been under some other system," Miss Jobe said.

A&M's regents proposed last year to make Arlington a branch campus. The seniors said A&M President Earl Rudder last month proposed that Arlington would get no more building funds for the next four years.

A&M Insurance Policy Provides Wide Program

The A&M University System provides four types of group insurance for its faculty and staff, according to office of Clark C. Munroe, director of University personnel.

Many of the employees are also eligible for workmen's compensation insurance.

All regular employees of the A&M System paid on a monthly basis employed not less than four and one-half months are eligible for participation in the voluntary accident insurance plan carried by the Commercial Insurance Company of Newark, N. J. They may also participate in the disability income program of the American Casualty Company, Reading, Penn.

All nine or 12 month employees of the administration, teaching, research and extension, clerical and stenographic staffs are eligible for the group life insurance plan carried by the Republic National Life Insurance Company of Dallas. Participation in this plan has been a condition of employment since April 1, 1951.

All regular full time employees and modified service employees of the professional, clerical and service staffs may participate in the group hospitalization and medical insurance of the Pan-American Life Insurance Company, New Orleans.

Most employees of the System are eligible for workmen's compensation insurance.

The faculty and staff buy insurance as a group through payroll deductions, said John W. Hill, system director of insurance and safety. It is against state law for state owned institutions to use state funds to purchase employee insurance. However, the state does permit the System to collect and co-ordinate the program, Hill explained.

The voluntary insurance plan provides year-round accidental death and dismemberment coverage.

The disability income insurance plan provides for weekly income benefits for total disability due to injury or sickness.

The amount of insurance for which an employee is eligible under the group life insurance plan is determined by his annual salary, exclusive of summer sessions. The amount of insurance varies from $1,000 to $5,000.

Taxpayers have a choice! There are two ways of taking deductions on 1964 Federal income tax returns, Clarence E. Carlson, administrative officer of Internal Revenue for the Bryan office, advised today—itemize your medical expenses, charitable contributions, interest, taxes, and other expenses; or use the standard deduction (either the new minimum standard deduction or the regular 10 per cent standard deduction).

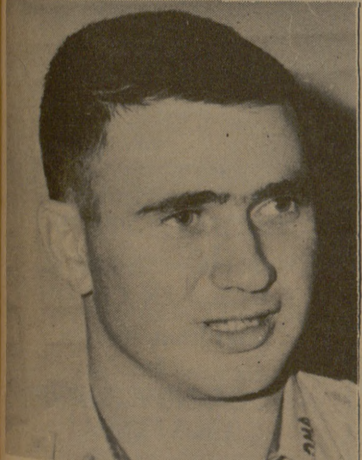

If a taxpayer is a homeowner paying interest and taxes, or if he had unusually large contributions or medical expenses during 1964, his tax may be less by itemizing deductions if they total more than the standard deduction or the minimum standard deduction. If they total less, it is usually better to use the standard deduction or the minimum standard deduction.

2 Deductions Set For Taxpayers

Candid Comments On Current Crises

Students Say Viet Nam Retaliatory Attacks Long Overdue

Question: Should The U. S. Expand The War In Viet Nam By Mounting An Offensive Into North Viet Nam?

EDDIE DAVIS

Sophomore, Henrietta
The situation has gone beyond the point of just aiding the South Vietnamese. What our government did in retaliating against the attacks on our bases was justified, but I don't think that we should enter North Viet Nam at the present time. There should be some negotiations toward an agreement with the North Vietnamese or Chinese Communist agitators.

WILLIAM GOTCHER JR.

Senior, Waco
I think we're finally taking some positive action and I'm glad to see that we're doing something instead of sitting around. We've started something and we can't back down now. We've got to show them now that we're not afraid to fight and it's a cinch that if we do back down we'll lose all Southeast Asia. I'm in favor of carrying the fight to them.

ARTURO ESQUIVEL

Sophomore, Eagle Pass
The situation has reached such a point that the United States must respond with strong retaliatory measures. I definitely agree with President Johnson's decision to bomb North Viet Nam, and we should continue to bomb them. This should impress the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese government that we intend to back the South Vietnamese to the limit.

BENNY SMITH JR.

Junior, Dallas
If you're going to defeat an enemy you have to bring the battle to them. An offensive into the north is long overdue. We should select some definite objectives and make systematic attacks. If we back down here and don't take the offensive the Reds will be perfectly willing to give us more chances in the Philippines or Thailand or other hot spots.

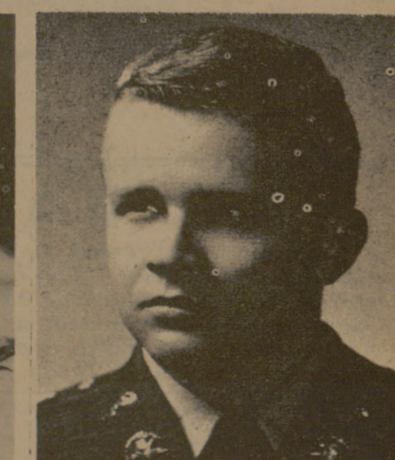

MICHAEL McAFEE

Sophomore, Tyler
I used to be in favor of holding off because I was afraid of a war, but the way things are now I'm for at least taking semi-aggressive action in North Viet Nam. We have to show the Communists that we're not going to sit around and let them take over Southeast Asia. We've lost too many U. S. soldiers to back down now.

ANDY POZNECKI

Junior, San Antonio
I believe the United States should further the war in North Viet Nam. We are in a war whether the State Department wants to admit it or not. Too many lives and valuable equipment are being wasted every day. It is high time that we show our cards and deal a decisive blow. The prestige of the free world is at stake.

WALLACE MIGURA

Senior, Yorktown
We should advance into the north against North Viet Nam and subsequently into Red China and at the same time let Russia know we are in no way advocating an attack against her. It may lead to a war but with the way things are going we can't stay in our present state of indecision and expect things to get better.