

Y's Forum Commences On Tuesday

The YMCA's annual Marriage Forum opens at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday when Dr. Sidney Hamilton of North Texas State University discusses "How Can You Tell It's Love."

The marriage series, scheduled to run four consecutive Tuesdays, enters its tenth year with Tuesday's talk.

Dr. Hamilton will discuss:
1. How can I be sure of marrying the right person?
2. Has sex desire influenced my choice?
3. Personality factors—courtship—infatuation vs. Love.

4. Am I socially adequate?
5. Relationship of freedom to romance.
6. Should time and distance interfere with true love?

Other topics on tap for the four-week forum are "Making Marriage Meaningful," March 16; "The Sexual Aspects of Married Life," March 23; and "Marrying Outside Your Faith," March 30.

Hamilton, who holds degrees in administrative education, sociology and psychology, teaches courses in mental testing, clinical psychology, projective techniques, adolescent development, guidance and marital psychology at North Texas.

He is the author of "Work Book in Marital Psychology" and co-author of "Workbook in Adolescent Development." He serves as after-dinner speaker for service clubs, women's clubs and other groups and does consultant work in areas of marital adjustments and personality problems.

The American Association of Marriage Counselors has given Hamilton the rating of "professional marriage counselor," one of five Texans elected to full membership in the association.

Hamilton has appeared at A&M previously as speaker, discussion leader and counselor for married student groups.

Apollo Club Hears Of Atomic Power

Dr. John L. Gammel, A&M physics professor, told the Apollo Club Thursday night that the United States has a stockpile of atomic power more than one million times as great as the bomb dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki at the end of World War II.

The prof, a 13-year veteran of Los Alamos, discussed the moral questions of atomic power.

"I don't believe the question of principle and morality are effected by numbers. I don't think, for example, that one murder is any less moral than 10," Gammel said.

"It is very hard to say, I think," Gammel continued, "what form war will take in the future."

"I think the U. S. should maintain strong conventional forces, especially the commando and jungle warfare types."

ITS Kicks Off Weekend

Military Dances, Review On Tap

FOUR COACHMEN
... group to perform at ITS tonight.

The 14th annual Intercollegiate Talent Show and the Kilgore Rangerettes will begin an activity packed weekend Friday. The Corps of Cadets will pass in review and hold their annual Military Ball Saturday.

Friday activities will include the Combat Ball and the selection of Combat Cutie by members of the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps following ITS.

Twelve acts are scheduled for ITS. Talent will represent colleges and universities throughout the southwest area. The annual Military Weekend activities begin with the show.

The Rangerettes will form the chorus line for the show's opening and closing numbers. They will be returning after appearing at the event for several years. Gary Gosney will serve as emcee and Bob Boone and the Aggrieland Orchestra will provide the background music.

Acts scheduled for ITS include Annette Bogue from Stephen F. Austin The Riverside Singers from Arkansas State Teachers College, The Randy Bell Trio from the University of Arkansas and Just III from Louisiana State University.

Also Millie Carr, Manuel Melendez, Linda Leopard, and The Folk Four, all from Eastern New Mexico State University, The Loyola Stompers and Jeanette Theriot, both from Loyola University and Wanda Norgress from LSU.

The Coachmen from A&M will also be present.

Five Air Force and Army major generals and several civilian guests join Lt. Gen. Robert W. Colgazier in Military Day activities. Colgazier is commanding general of the Fourth U. S. Army with headquarters at Ft. Sam Houston.

The Corps of Cadets will form at 1 p. m. Saturday to pass in review. Final event of the Military Day program will be the traditional Military Ball scheduled at 9 a. m. for all members of the Cadet Corps and their guests.

Distinguished guests for Military Day include Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Lloyd P. Hopwood, Amarillo Air Force Base; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William A. Harris, deputy commanding general of the Fourth U. S. Army.

Also Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John C. Meyer, commander of the 12th Air Force; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert H. Travis, general commanding the 90th Infantry Division.

Other guests include Mrs. N. B. Keltner, mother of the commander of the Corps; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Younger, president of the Association of Former Students, and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Dew, Mrs. Dew is president of the Federated A&M Mothers' Clubs.

The 1965 Combat Cutie will be selected and announced at the annual Spring Combat Ball. The ball will be held in Sbisla Hall following the Intercollegiate Talent Show.

The finalists include Sharon Huff, Pat Halfen, Becky Dunn, Sherry Kay Reese, Judy Garrett and Maureen Nankivell.

The ball has a "South Pacific" theme. Uniform is class C fatigue. Solid color battle scarves are optional and flight suits are not authorized. Army cadets who have been assigned a branch of service to be entered upon commissioning may wear branch insignia on their collar.

Also following ITS Friday night, entertainment billed as "Cafe Rue Pinalle" will feature music by the "Avantis," The Just III and the "Randy Bell Trio." The event will be sponsored by the Memorial Student Center Directorate and Council.

License Sale

For the convenience of students, faculty, and College Station residents, license plates will be available in the Memorial Student Center near the Post Office.

Those interested in buying their 1965 tags there can pick them up any week-day from March 15 through March 26 between 8:30 am and 4:30 pm.

Senate Voices Disapproval Of Insurance Company

The Student Senate Thursday night authorized the Executive Committee to write a letter expressing the Senate's disapproval to Albert Knapp and Associates, the company handling the student insurance policy on campus.

A motion was made and then withdrawn stating that the Senate deemed "unsatisfactory service by the insurance company and if better service is not given we will consider withdrawal of indorsement which might conceivably reduce the number of people taking the policy."

The motion of Senate opinion was withdrawn in favor of the letter by the Executive Committee.

Mario Macaluso, senior class vice president headed the investigation of the insurance company's handling of claims after it was brought to the Senate's attention that several cases had been turned down.

Macaluso said that all rejected claims had to do with the services of dentists. Gary McBride, one of the students whose case was rejected, took his claim to A&M Director of Personnel Clark C. Munroe who wrote a letter to Albert Knapp and Associates stating that he felt the claim should have been paid.

The letter he received in reply stated in part:

"The policy does include treatment by licensed physicians or surgeons, their services of hospitals, graduate nurses, x-rays and other items . . . but dentists are not included and it would be our interpretation that any dental treatment would therefore have to be performed by a physician or surgeon which is, of course, sometimes the case, when persons require major oral surgery on account of injury. The language "physician or surgeon" cannot be construed to mean a DDS or Doctor of Dental Surgery."

Aggs Render Aid At Auto Accident

On Feb. 12, at approximately 5:30 p. m., Roland Moore of Houston was involved in a serious automobile accident on Highway 6, north of Navasota. Several Aggies stopped and rendered assistance at the scene.

Moore is thoroughly appreciative of the aid provided by these students and now would like to know the names of the boys involved.

The students are directed to make themselves known either at the Office of the Dean of Students or at The Battalion office in the YMCA.

The letter continued that such a matter had already become a subject of legal interpretation in Texas and the interpretation was that "Physician or Surgeon" as used in policy wording means M.D. or other physician licensed to perform medical surgery. The case cited was Continental Casualty vs. Street, Dec. 11, 1963.

"In view of the foregoing it would appear, under the terms of this contract we do not have any alternative but declination of claims presented which include treatment by a dentist," the letter concluded.

Munroe researched the verdict and found that pertinent facts had been overlooked by the insurance company that would make their stand impossible. He has forwarded a letter to the company stating these overlooked facts and again requesting payments, said Macaluso.

Munroe said that service on all other claims except those including dentistry work had been handled without question.

"We can always throw the contract out," said Dean of Students, James P. Hannigan. "If we exhaust all other methods we can always sue," he continued.

Munroe agreed, but said that a suit would be the last course of action.

Filing Closes Next Tuesday

Applications for class offices and yell leaders may be filed through Tuesday in the Student Programs Office of the Memorial Student Center.

3 Ag Rifle Teams Entered In Meet

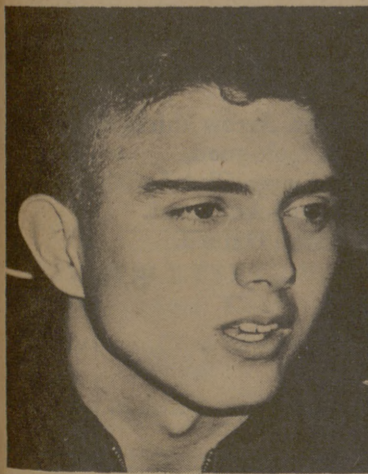

Three rifle teams from A&M will fire Friday and Saturday in the Southwest Invitational Small-bore Rifle Tournament at El Paso. Texas Western College sponsors the tourney, a major event for riflemen.

The three five-man teams from A&M and other riflemen will be using the ranges of the college, Fort Bliss and Biggs Air Force Base.

Candid Comments On Current Crises

Students Favor Allowing Freshmen To Keep Cars On Campus

Question: Do you favor letting freshmen continue to have cars on campus?

Sophomore, Dallas

As long as the fish park in the proper lots and leave their cars there I don't think we have a parking problem. The only problem is when people take their cars to class. The lot behind Nagle Hall is used by students who shouldn't be parking there. As long as we've got plenty of room in the lots then the freshmen should be allowed to keep their cars.

BOB LACKLAND
Sophomore, Dallas

The freshmen should definitely be allowed to keep their cars. Most of the time the Corps parking lots are half empty, and there is no reason at all why the administration should consider telling anyone that they can't have cars on campus. If the number of cars increases, parking facilities should be expanded before they take privileges.

RANGER
Graduate, College Station

Personally I think that all this business about parking is much ado over nothing. There are plenty enough cars on campus for me to chase after, but I don't think that we will be facing a critical shortage of ample parking space in the future. Besides, we need to worry more about academic excellence rather than who will get to park his car where.

JOHN SMITH
Senior, Houston

If you have to eliminate someone's cars, then the freshmen cars should be the ones. Most schools don't allow freshmen to have cars and this might be good here, especially because of our parking problem. There's never any room to park around the MSC, and with our present parking facilities, we won't be able to handle any large enrollment increase this fall.

Sophomore, Portland

As long as freshmen use parking privileges correctly they shouldn't have to keep their cars off campus. The only trouble is that they misuse their privileges just like everyone else and park in "off-limits" areas. I think enrollment will be a serious problem here within a few years, and sooner or later we'll have to face the problem of too many cars in too few places.

GARY ALLISON
Freshman, San Antonio

A move like this would cripple our class because we wouldn't have any means of transportation, especially to out-of-town games. This would surely hurt our spirit. We also need cars for dates and there are always emergencies. Cars on campus lower grades, but I think that they are a necessity. Besides who are the juniors going to borrow cars from?

LAYNE CONNEVEY
Sophomore, Pasadena

The answer to our parking situation does not lie in preventing people from having cars on campus. The problem lies in the school making more and better parking facilities. The areas behind dorms 5 and 18 and also the sophomore and junior lots should and could be expanded several times their size before students are forced to move cars off campus.
