

English Lecture Heads Calendar

Public lectures by three well-known English professors are scheduled to begin next week for Texas A&M's English Institute. About 45 teachers are here for the 8-week program sponsored under the National Defense Education Act.

Dr. David J. DeLaura of the University of Texas is to speak at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Assembly Room of the Memorial Student Center. Director of freshman English at U. of T., Dr. DeLaura will discuss problems and techniques of teaching high school students to write better.

Dr. Ralph B. Long of the University of Puerto Rico will lecture on July 8. Dr. Martin S. Day, University of Houston, speaks July 15.

"These lectures are a part of the program for educational development of high school teachers participating in the Institute," A&M Professor J. S. Jernigan, institute director, said.

Participants, who come from four states, are taking advanced studies in composition, the English language and literature.

"The Physics of the Interplanetary Medium" will be discussed here Monday night by the scientist who pioneered measurement of solar wind.

Dr. Conway W. Snider speaks at 8 p.m. Monday in Room 113, Biological Sciences Building.

The public is invited, C. M. Loyd said in announcing the National Science Foundation Summer Lecture. Loyd is A&M's coordinator of NSF programs.

Dr. Snider is a staff scientist in the Division of Space Sciences, Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif. He was involved in the Mariner II Venus flyby project and the current Mariner IV spacecraft now nearing Mars.

His special interest is solar plasma. With the Mariner II he made the first detailed, prolonged measurements of the flux and energy spectrum of solar wind.

The Brazos Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers will have its annual barbecue Thursday at the Brazos County A&M Club.

Wives of the chapter members are invited to attend the meeting which will start at 6:30 p.m.

Food will be served at 7 p.m.

Several Aggies Engaged In Travel This Summer

The magical lure of foreign travel and experiences is attracting Texas A&M students this summer.

Some students are already on their way to foreign countries, others are ready to go, and still others are waiting for the first semester of summer school to end.

Europe is the destination of most of the traveling students. Many will participate in the Experiment in International Living, living with foreign families for six weeks.

Others will be on their own. Some will work full or part-time to pay their way. And some have been saving for years for the trip.

Planes and boats will take the students to their destinations. After that, much of the transportation will be by motorbike and footpower.

Switzerland appears to be the most popular country for Aggie visitors. Frank Ray of Conroe will stay with a family in Thalwil. Bob Heaton of Tyler will work for Esso Mediterranean in Geneva. And Lee Walker of Bryan will serve as a leader for students participating in the Experiment in International Living in Sweden. Charles Dendy of Monahan is also going to Sweden as an experimenter.

John Rodgers of Austin will visit a family in Holland this summer. He is president-elect of the Memorial Student Center Council and Directorate for 1965-66.

Algiers, Africa, is the area where Bernest Evans of Bryan will spend the summer working in an Operation Crossroads Africa project.

Paul Bleau of Lynn, Mass., will live in East Pakistan, and Jerry Knight of Lancaster will visit a family in India.

Frank Berngen of Chillicothe is going to Honduras to help inoculate the entire population. Bob Bell of Houston will work in Madrid, Spain, for a construction company the latter part of the summer. He is to graduate from A&M at the end of the first summer term.

Jobs for Bell and Heaton were arranged by two former A&M students, George D. Commas '36, president of Esso Mediterranean; and Ralph J. Douglas '39, of Westinghouse International in Geneva.
