

Possible Coeds Answer Survey

A survey of Central Texas girls released Saturday indicated at least 829 area girls might enroll in Texas A&M University if co-eds were admitted without restriction.

The study, conducted for A&M's Board of Directors, was made from 12,359 questionnaires mailed and distributed in a 25-mile radius of the campus. Of the prospective co-eds, 653 live in Brazos County and the remainder in adjoining counties.

A direct mailing was made to parents of 1,559 girls who were graduate from area high schools in 1963, 1964 and 1965 or who would graduate in 1966. A total of 364 cards—23.3 per cent of the eligible co-ed high school graduates—noted interest in attending A&M.

A total of 10,800 forms were distributed to parents of elementary and junior high school girls by area public schools. Some 465 were returned with affirmative response. Since the number of "eligible" elementary and junior high girls in the area was not determined, no percentage of response was reported.

The "saturation" study was designed to measure only the number of prospective area co-eds for A&M. It did not record negative responses nor arguments for or against admission of girls to the institutions.

A&M currently admitted girls to its regular sessions on a day student basis in 1963. Undergraduate female enrollment is limited to wives and daughters of faculty, staff and students.

Housing Office Sets Room Rules

The Housing Office has announced that students presently in summer school who will return in the fall will not stay for the Second Summer Session are urged to turn in their room reservation cards at the housing office before leaving the campus.

Freshmen who entered A&M in June are to fill out pink cards, while upperclassmen are to use green ones.

The Housing Office also requested students who signed up for a civilian dormitory at the end of the spring term, and all Cadets who wish to return to their old organizations, to turn in their room reservation cards by July 31.

Harry L. Boyer, housing manager, said that those students already having a room deposit on file did not have to pay any additional fees to reserve a room. But if students wish to cancel their reservation for the they must do it by August in order to get the $20.00 back.

He also said that students remaining for the second session must clear their rooms with housemaster, and turn them in at the Housing Office before leaving campus.

Carter Seeks Grants

Dr. Dillard Carter, assistant professor of Wildlife Management is collecting mammal specimens for A&M this summer in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

Assisting Carter are Les B. a senior wildlife management major from San Marcos, and Creel, a high school student from Slidell, Louisiana.

They plan to return to College Station about September 1.
