

Hale Named Emeritus

Fred Hale, nationally known authority on swine, has been named Professor Emeritus in the Texas A&M Animal Science Department.

The announcement was made by Dr. R. E. Patterson, dean of the College of Agriculture, who said the educator and researcher retired June 30 after 41 years of service to the university and the agricultural industry.

Patterson said that as Professor Emeritus, Hale will continue to serve on the Animal Science Department staff as a consultant and will appear as guest lecturer in classes. He also has begun work on a manual of basic livestock feeding, which he is co-authoring with Dr. O. M. Holt of the A&M Agricultural Education Department. The workbook is for use by teachers and students of vocational agriculture and will be distributed nationally.

Dr. O. D. Butler, head of the Animal Science Department, said Professor Hale has long been a leading investigator in swine feeding and management. Among his best known contributions are demonstrations showing how lack of Vitamin-A can produce blind pigs, a simplified method of balancing animal rations, and proof that cottonseed meal can be safely used as a swine feed.

Hale has won many awards and honors. Just before his retirement, he received the Silken Purse Award from the National Livestock and Meat Board, and a plaque from the Texas Swine Breeders Association for outstanding service to the swine industry.

Congressman Olin E. Teague Wednesday notified Texas A&M President Earl Rudder of a $10,500 National Science Foundation grant. The grant is for undergraduate research participation in physics during the 1965-66 academic year and the summer of 1966.

Dr. Joe S. Ham of the physics faculty will direct the program. It is essentially a continuation of an existing program and at about the same level of support.

Undergraduate research participants actively engage in research under the supervision of various members of the physics faculty.

Congressman Teague's telegram said the new grant provides for three research participants during the academic year and six next summer.

PO To Take Part In New Program

Postmaster Ernest Gregg has announced that all College Station Post Office employees will be asked to take part in the new Postal Efficiency Plan announced July 22 by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski.

"The Postal Efficiency Plan includes comprehensive programs for improving postal service and reducing costs," Gregg said. "It is our way of helping President Johnson fulfill his pledge to provide more effective and economical government services."

In Washington, Postmaster

General Gronouski termed the plan's twin objectives of economy and service betterment "a matter of highest priority" and called for total involvement of all employees through the Post Office suggestion program.

Semi-annual reports will be made to the President, Mr. Gronouski said and realized savings will be reported to the Treasury or applied to improving postal service.

A local committee will be organized to fulfill the two purposes of the Plan:

1. Reduce costs.
2. Improve service.

Ideas generated by individual employees will be taken up by the committee. Accepted ideas will be passed on to Washington for possible application on a national level. Employees whose ideas are adopted nationwide will be given national awards. The Postmaster General will personally oversee the programs.

Postmaster Gregg will be chairman of the local committee to implement PEP.
