'Austria Is My Favorite'

By HERKY KILLINGSWORTH cycling.

There's a time and a place for everything and I believe that that time has now come. I say that because now I am about 7,000 feet straight up in the middle of the Swiss Alps waiting for my "Blue Lemon" to cool.

As you may know, "Lemon" is my $45 car that's making Europe interesting. Since 50 miles out of Copenhagen when we had our first blowout, we have struggled, toiled, sweated and prayed that we might at least make it to the

Now our day of reckoning has come. Another two stops (we've had 7, 8 or ? already), another 3.000 feet and we can coast on in to Cannes, Nice and Monte Carlo.

Ever since Berlin I have lived in the car, traveling from place to place. Central West Germany was the first stop. Touring in the country side we came across a town every two miles filled with old men cutting the hay (by hand) and 90-year-old women bi-

Further south we came to Bavaria which, unlike Mr. Busch says, is flat land with a couple of small mountains on the Swiss-German border. In Bavaria we saw Nurenburg and Munich, but being in a hurry we pushed into

Austria is my favorite country. We entered into Salzburg which is undoubtedly the prettiest city we have encountered. Most of the town is built into cliffs with a large river on the other side. A huge castle overlooks the city. Mozart lived here and the whole town has remained the same since

After Salzburg we went to Innsbruck whose sights consists mainly of the Olympic remains left over from 1964. It's in a beautiful location and the drive from Innsbruck into Liechtenstein was A.O.K. Beautiful waterfalls, quaint towns, and all. People in the cold tops living with no cable car.

The small country of Liechtenstein was not what I expected. The book says it's a country unchanged by modern times and postage stamps as their main industry. I saw nothing but industrial factories and post card souveneir booths on every corner.

I lasted about 30 minutes in that country and headed on to Switzerland, Zurich and Luzern, Millions of tourists around crowd at night a town of 400,000. The beautiful green lakes are their big attraction and sailing boats more than 2,000 miles.

road to their home, only a small crowd the harbor, seeing its too cold to swim.

> With the idea of seeing the Leaning Tower of Pisa and the Riviera we set out across the rugged mountains of Switzerland. Then our troubles began. Yesterday we went eight miles in six hours and today we've come about eight miles in four hours, so we're improving.

Really the sights of Germany, Austria and Switzerland have been beautiful. Something new happens every mile when the "Lemon" runs, and it has for

THE BATTALION YMCA Camp SetSept.11-14 For Freshmen

Two hundred and forty-seven Texas A&M freshmen will attend the YMCA Freshman Camp Sept. 11-14 at Lakeview Assembly near Palestine.

YMCA General Secretary Gordon Gay said 62 upperclassmen and 12 faculty-staff members will also participate in the camp. The annual session is designed for students with leadership potential and outstanding high school academic records.

"It's by far the largest camp we have had in 12 years," Gay commented.

Eddie Carpenter of Tyler, is general camp chairman. Clint Ward of College Station will be in charge of Camp Asbury section. Ken Vanek of Dallas, will head Camp Wesley division.

Gay said the divisions are being made to promote individual student attention, closer companionship and free discussion.

President Earl Rudder will speak at a joint meeting of the groups Sept. 12.

Program topics include "What is the Real Purpose of a College Education?", "When Do I Stand as an Individual and When do I Conform?", "Vocation — How Do I Choose my Life Work?", and

Graduates of earlier camps have assumed leadership posts at A&M, Gay noted. He said the camp allows freshmen to learn more about themselves and Conference publicity chairman Kenneth Wolf said there are many government-sponsored programs dealing with economic op in fin portunities.

"Knowledge of these various fullba programs will give ministers at Ed I ditional information which car Jacks better equip them in dealing with ing li the daily problems of their or gregations," Wolf said.

He said Blodgett's talk adhere to the meetin's general them, "New Tools for the Church and Community in Town and Country."

Blodgett is a Baylor University graduate and holds a master's degree in public administration from Syracuse University of New York. He is a World War II veteran and holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the U. S Army Reserve.

His city administration experience includes service as assistant city manager of Austin for five years; city manager of Wat, 1960-63, and city manager of Garland, 1963-64.

Blodgett assumed his present duties on the governor's staff in Wolf said the two-day, nondenominational meeting is planned by the Town and Country Conference Committee composed ministers of several denomi tions throughout Texas. A high point on the program is presenta tion of the Rural Minister of the Year Award.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and conducted by the A&M Department of Agricultural Economic and Sociology.

NIGHI In mills and factories across the country, they never stop working. By night as well as by day, the wheels of commerce grind out the goods we need as a nation. and It's a twenty-four hour job, this business of production, and it's a vital job — to you, your family, your town, our whole country. Like most vital jobs, it can't be stopped. Faith is a vital job, too. It isn't simply something that God gives you, free of charge, on Christ-

ders of God's teachings.
