

A&M Student Receives Aid From Architect Institute

Special to The Battalion
WASHINGTON — Two students at Texas colleges of architecture are recipients of scholarships awarded them for the 1965-66 academic year by The American Institute of Architects.

Dale Morley Taylor of Red Deer, Alberta, Canada, an undergraduate student at the University of Texas school of architecture, received an $800 Langley Scholarship. This comes from the Edward Langley Fund established by Langley and administered by the American Institute of Architects. Taylor is a previous scholarship winner, having received a $1,000 Langley Scholarship last year.

Presentation of the scholarship was arranged by the Institute's Austin Chapter, president of which is Austin architect Bob Landes.

Richard B. Vanderburg, Dallas, a student at Texas A&M's School of Architecture, received a $500 Ruberoid Scholarship for undergraduate study. This is one of 20 given annually by the Ruberoid Company through the American Institute of Architects Foundation.

Presentation of Vanderburg's scholarship was arranged by the Institute's Brazos Chapter, president of which is Edward J. Romieniec, chairman of the A&M School of Architecture.

The two students were selected as recipients by AIA's Committee on Scholarships, headed by S. Elmer Chambers of Syracuse, N.Y. The committee awarded a total of $53,800 in scholarships for 1965-66 for advancement of architectural education.

Russians Visit Campus Today

A team of top Russian oceanographers is visiting Texas A&M's Department of Oceanography as part of a coast and geodetic survey sponsored by the State Department.

"The Russians were allowed to select sites to visit in the United States," explained Dr. Willis Pequegnat, head of the department. "A&M is the only Texas site they selected."

From A&M, the contingent will go to Oregon.

The visitors include Arkody G. Kolesnikov, head, Marine Physics Institute, Sevastopol, U.S.S.R. Hydrographic Service, Leningrad; Ilyich A. Simonov, director, State Oceanographic Laboratory, Main Directorate, Hydrometeorological Services; Boris B. Shekhvatov, department head, Academy of Sciences, Oceanology Institute; Robert S. Dietz, science escort, Coast and Geodetic Survey; Victor G. Neyman, interpreter, junior science officer, Academy of Sciences, Oceanology Institute; and Edward D. Wolski, official U. S. interpreter.

Navy Finds Smart Sea Lion For Sealab Ocean Experiment

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Divers chalked up an animal training success Monday in the Navy's ocean bottom Sealab 2.

Their success: They have found a super-smart wild sea lion, capable of learning in a few days tricks a tame porpoise took weeks to master.

Their failure: Soggy pancakes.

The progress report from the third team of 10 men spending 15 days 205 feet below the surface off this coastal resort came just before the second team emerged after 30 hours in a decompression chamber.

The second team, led by astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, entered the chamber after being hoisted to the surface Sunday.

The long decompression was ordered to adjust the divers gradually to normal atmospheric pressure.

Carpenter and his teammates were scheduled to come ashore Tuesday morning and hold a news conference.

It was the second team which discovered the brainy sea lion, called Samantha.

Divers reported last Thursday that they had trained Samantha to come from as far away as 200 yards when a buzzer was sounded.

The buzzer was the same used in the training of Tuffy, a tame porpoise who wore a harness to carry tools and rescue lines to divers swimming outside the Sealab.

Lions Whiskers Save Day For Royal Coat Of Arms

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—The London Zoo roared out the good news today that 26 surplus lion's whiskers have been shipped to Dover Castle to refurbish the lion on the royal coat of arms.

"We have a fairly large animal whisker collection," said a zoo spokesman, "and were glad to help out."

The S.O.L.—save our lion—was sent out by Maj. Gen. Francis Brian Wyldbore-Smith, deputy constable of ancient Dover Castle. The castle, which includes a Roman lighthouse and the ruins of a Saxon garrison church, has a beautifully carved royal coat of arms about the constable's mantelpiece.

Chief features of the royal arms are a lion and a unicorn.

"I recently noticed that the face of the carved wooden lion was lopsided," said Wyldbore-Smith, "and on close inspection discovered that only two of the original wire whiskers were left on one side of the lion's face and none of the other."

Deciding to replace the wire whiskers with the real thing, the general asked the zoo for two dozen lion's whiskers.

"We sent him the two dozen and a couple of spares," said the zoo spokesman.

Said the general: "A member of the staff stuck the whiskers on with glue and we're jolly pleased with the way the old lion's looking."

Washington Outlook Washington Home Rule Hits House

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE
WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to give District of Columbia residents the right to elect their own government reached the House floor Monday and supporters won the first two test votes.

More financial help for the developing countries was urged by the head of the World Bank at the annual meeting of his organization and the International Monetary Fund.

TRAIL BLAZER:
 Dr. Regina Goff, new assistant commissioner of education, is the first woman and the first Negro to hold such a high position in the Office of Education.

Dr. Goff, who in private life is Mrs. Josiah F. Henry of Baltimore, will be in charge of programs for education of underprivileged and handicapped children.

She said her appointment to the $21,445-a-year post should provide encouragement to women, especially to young Negro women.

Breakfast Opens College Station UF Campaign

With a goal of $20,000, the United Chest campaign will open its 10-day run with a kickoff breakfast Oct. 11.

Clark Munroe, drive director, said the breakfast is planned for 7 a.m. in Ramada Inn. Other details will be announced next week.

The annual goal was raised $1,000 to meet growing needs of local agencies, Dr. Chris H. Groneman, United Chest president, emphasized.

"We want to be certain that our people have the funds to care for our own," he said.

Robert L. Smith Jr., predicted a record participation by "the University family. Director of the A&M Data Processing Center, he heads the drive on campus. Smith urged deans, department heads and other leaders to give every employe an opportunity to contribute.

Agencies to share in the United Chest gifts include the Boys Clubs, College Station Community House, College Station Recreation Council, Brazos County Hospital Committee, College Station Charity Fund, Bluebonnet Girl Scouts Council, Brazos County Youth Counseling Service, Boy Scouts, Brazos Valley Rehabilitation Center, Salvation Army, Texas Rehabilitation Center, Texas United Fund, United Service Organizations, Young Men's Christian Association, Brazos Committee on Alcoholism, American Red Cross and the United Chest Operational Fund.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA:
 Backers of a bill to give Washington, D.C., residents self government won two quick test votes when the measure reached the House floor. Both were on procedural matters.

The home rule advocates won the first roll call 213 to 183, and the second 222 to 179.

In a speech he plans to deliver during Tuesday's debate, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., says the only reason home rule for the capital city is an issue is that "a majority of the citizens of this city are Negro."

"That single shameful truth about this legislation obscures and overrides all other considerations," Powell said. His office released his speech in advance.

INTERNATIONAL MONEY:
 High-income countries were urged by World Bank President George D. Woods to help developing nations with more long-term capital on "less burdensome terms."

Woods spoke at the opening of the annual World Bank-International Monetary Fund meeting. He painted a bleak picture of the developing countries' efforts to raise their living standards, while coping with growing populations.

EXECUTIONS:
 The State Department denounced the execution of two captured Americans by the Viet Cong as a "brutal murder" and accused Communist North Viet Nam of violating the 1949 Geneva Convention.

The Army said it sent messages to relatives of the two, Capt. Humbert R. Versace of Baltimore and Sgt. Kenneth M. Roraback of Fayetteville, N.C., expressing shock at news reports of the executions.

State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey said: "The United States is certain that people the world over will condemn these brutal acts..."
