School Of Business Administration To Sponsor Management Seminar

Twenty-seven top Texas executives are expected for a management seminar Saturday through Oct. 30 at Texas A&M.

Sponsored by A&M's School of Business Administration, the seminar gives participants experience in management in addition to "how to" instruction.

Dr. John E. Pearson, director of the School of Business Administration, said W. E. Eckles and H. B. Thompson, associate professors of business administration, will supervise the seminar.

Each student in the course chooses a play to direct in the Fallout Theater Workshop, a student-organized theater which enables students to present plays before live audiences.

Three of the students are in the Aggie Players' production of "Death of A Salesman" by Arthur Miller, directed by Esten and scheduled on campus Nov. 8-13.

They are Kirk Stewart of Axtell, as Biff Loman, son of the salesman; Hollynn Fuller of El Paso as Jenny; Karl Rubinstein of Bellvue, Neb. as Ben, the salesman's brother.

Other members of the class are serving on various production crews. They include Charles Coffin of Morristown, N.J.; Glenn Dromgoole of Sour Lake; George Clarke of Lake Charles, La.; Dick Gustafson of Austin; Jim White of Odessa; and John Williams of Bryan. Also in the class are Judy Elam of Galveston; and Rarborn Reader of Smithville.
