Dating back to 1909, Aggie Bonfires have traditionally been ets reading "Safety First." A&M's way of welcoming returning exes and crowning the Spirit of Aggieland. The standard theme of all A&M Bonfires has een "Beat the hell out of TU." As Aggieland has grown, so have its Bonfires. The height of A&M's flaming symbol has more than tripled since the 25 foot log Bonfire of 1942. Prior to that date Bonfires had been constructed of old boxes and scrap lumber. Industrious Aggies added a center pole in 1945, and the following year two poles were spliced together for a much tallegin fuel-of Cadets er fire The fall of 1949 gave A&M the claim to the "world's largest bonfire", as the centerpole stretched to a then seemingly impossible 65 feet. A need for a greater area forced the Bonfire to be moved from the center of the drill field in 1955 to its present location near Navasota parking lot.

Over the years all Bonfires have guaranteed at least three things . . . blood, sweat and blisters.

Hospital officials find tranuilizers almost necessary as great masses of unfortunate Bonire builders come trickling into Sips' pride. heir offices each year reporting severe lacerations from axes, s always open to any Aggies. Mrs. Downs, Pinkie's wife for 48 years, has fed many homesick Aggies and provided a "home away from home" that for many made the difference between sticking it out or pulling up stakes and heading down Highway 6. Another loyal A&M supporter in his home is his daughter, Grey Downs, who is a secretary at the Exchange Store here on the campus. Despite all his love for Aggieland, Pinkie has never neglected his family or his h, which he places above ll. He has been a member of the lethodist Church for 81 year and a Mason for over 51 years.

Part of Pinkie's kindness to thers was repaid him in 1955 when he found himself in the ospital with a growing hospital bill and personal debts. The Brazos County A&M Club organized a variety show called "In the Pink," with proceeds to be used to pay off Pinkie's debts and hospital bill. With the $3,000 they collected, they did this as well as pay the mortgage on Pinkie's Pinkie's plans for the immediate future are to live to be at least 92. This will enable him to witness Texas A&M's 100th birthday in 1976, at which he plans to deliver the centennial address!
