

Emergency Care Course Scheduled March 23-25

A three - day course, "Emergency Care and Transportation of the Sick and Injured," is scheduled March 23-25 at Texas A&M.

Two days of instruction have been trimmed since last year's pilot course. The steering committee axed them to emphasize first aid instruction since ambulance drivers should already be proficient in that subject.

A tentative ten-hour course in first aid is scheduled March 22. It will be scrubbed if fewer than 10 persons enroll.

Program Chairman Tom Robinson, instructor in the Firemen's Training School of the A&M Engineering Extension Service, said enrollment will be limited to 100.

Theory classes will be in the Memorial Student Center. Demonstrations and class practice will be at Brayton Firemen's Training Field.

The course is available to funeral home personnel, ambulance service companies, fire department emergency crews, police and sheriff's emergency teams, and individuals actively engaged in emergency care.

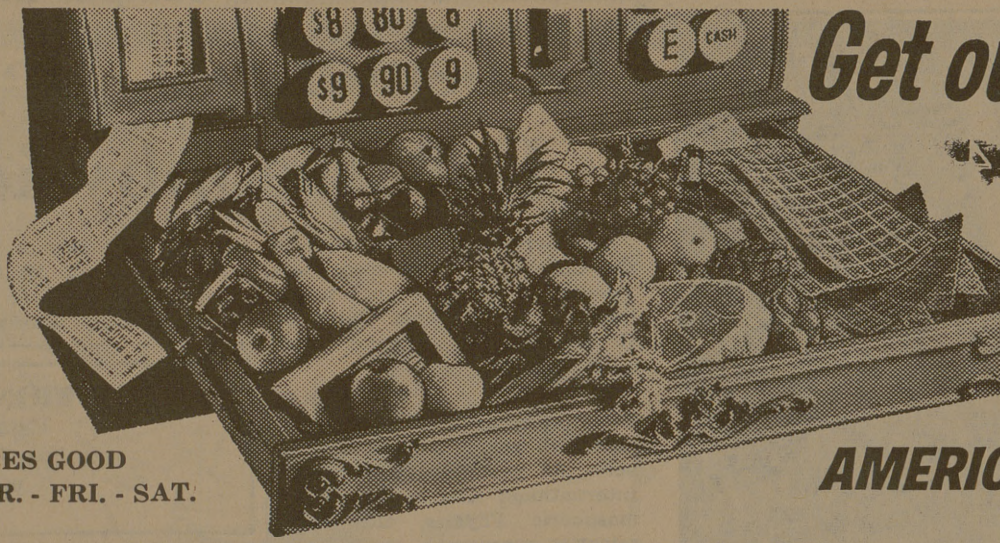

Sponsors include the Texas Medical Association, American College of Surgeons, University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, and the Southwest Medical Branch at Dallas, Baylor Medical College in Houston, Texas Department of Health, Texas Hospital Association, Texas Board of Funeral Directors, Texas Funeral Directors Association, Texas Board of Morticians, Texas Public Health Service, Texas Department of Public Safety, Texas Police Officers' Association, Texas Education Agency, Texas Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association, and Brooke Army Medical Center of San Antonio.
