NCAA Grade Rules Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association killed a recommendation Monday for a return to one-platoon football.

The resolution was offered at the final business session of the NCAA convention by Guido Daug of the University of New Mexico, acting for the Western Athletic Conference.

Before any debate, H. C. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan, a member of the NCAA Football Rules Committee, offered a motion to table the resolution — in effect killing it. This carried by a voice vote.

"I shudder to think what might happen . . . if we got into the business of revising football rules," Crisler said. He argued that this is the business of the Rules Committee which meets this weekend in New Orleans.

Earlier, the NCAA voted down efforts to delay or change a rule establishing a minimum scholastic standard for college athletes.

The rule requiring a 1.6 average, roughly C minus, in a 4.0 scale, will take effect after Feb. 15. It was adopted last year by the NCAA.

An expected floor fight by the Ivy League failed to materialize, but an Ivy League spokesman said feelings are so strong that the league may bolt the NCAA.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers told a news conference that any school not certifying it will abide by the rule before Feb. 15 and will be ineligible to compete in NCAA events. The first two events affected would be the NCAA indoor track meet and basketball tournament in March.

In other action, the NCAA: Re-elected Everett D. Barnes of Colgate University as president and Francis E. Smiley of Colorado School of Mines as secretary-treasurer.

Elected to the NCAA Council, the group's policy making body, Milton Hartvigsen of Brigham Young University, Harry Arlanson of Tufts, Samuel Barnes of Howard University and Adolph Samborski of Harvard.

Urged the two professional football leagues to delay their drafts of college football players until January, after the bowl games are over.

Requested that "if secret drafts have heretofore been entered into by either league, such practice be totally abandoned in the future . . ." This was a reference to reports that American Football League teams held a secret draft through the top rounds before the official draft at the end of the college season.

Called for an amendment to a Senate - passed bill granting blanket exemptions to professional sports which would protect high schools from competition by televised pro football games on Friday and Saturday. Colleges already have this protection under law.

Urged Congress to study the "total free agent player draft" as conducted by organized baseball. Under this draft, both college and high school players are selected by professional teams.

Formalized a ban voted last year by mail ballot on college football coaches accepting pay from professional teams.

Bobcats Trounce East Texas, 81-68

SAN MARCOS — The Southwest Texas State Bobcats moved into a tie for the Lone Star Conference lead Monday after thrashing the East Texas State Lions 81-68 in Commerce.

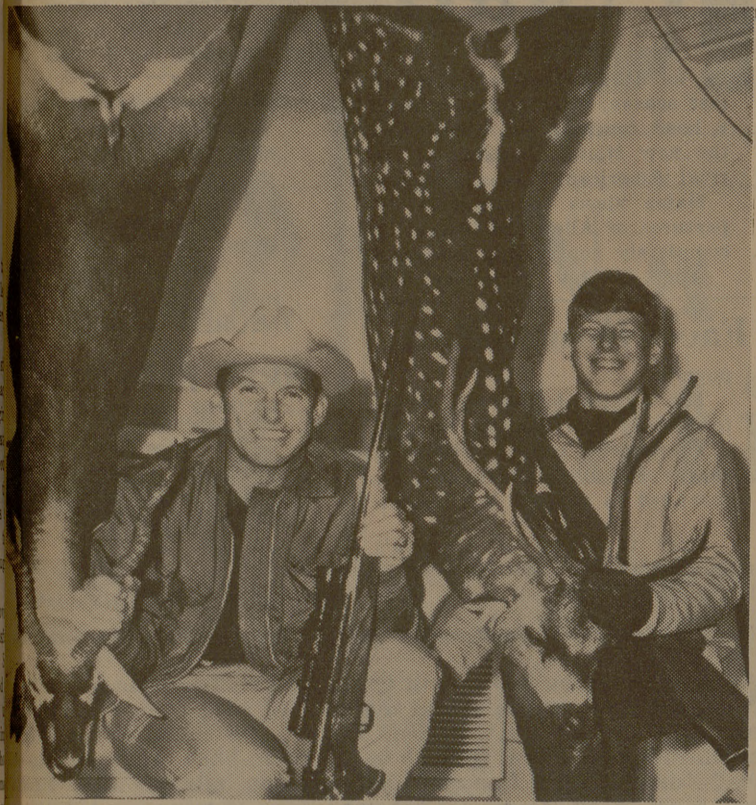

The victory vaulted the Bobcats into a tie with Sam Houston State. Both squads boast perfect 2-0 records.

Bill Overall, Henry Garcia, Morris Ogden and Curley Lennox led the Bobcats' attack equally, each hitting in double figures. Overall tossed in 23 points, Garcia 18, Ogden 19 and Lennox 13.

The Lion's Phil Andrews connected on 15 of 24 attempts for a total of 30 points for the evening.

The lead changed hands several times in the opening minutes, but the Bobcats pulled away with 6:30 left in the first half.

Southwest Texas connected on 33 of 62 attempts for a 53.2 field goal percentage. East Texas sank 28 of 55 for a 50.9 percentage.

SPACEMEN AND TROPHIES

Astronaut Walter Schirra Jr., command pilot of Gemini 6 in its space rendezvous last month, showed he could make a bullet rendezvous with an antelope. The spaceman and his son, Walter III, 15, pose with their kills after a hunt on the Guajolote Ranch near San Antonio. Schirra killed a black buck antelope and his son an axis deer. It was the youth's first deer. (AP Wirephoto)

Ag Tankmen Face Mustangs

The Aggie swimming team will return to action Feb. 5 against Southern Methodist University in Deware Field House, according to Art Adamson, swimming coach.

The Cadets lost their opener just before the Christmas break to Arlington State University, in Arlington. The Rebels are allowed to use freshmen and these boys provided the difference.

According to Adamson, the Aggies will have to face their strongest opponent of the season, SMU, with a team low in numbers and experience, but high in skill and desire. This year's team has only 13 men on the entire team with a meager seven returning lettermen, compared with last year's 23 man roster and 11 lettermen. Despite this handicap, Adamson feels that the present team is even stronger than last year's.

Helping to lead the Ags down the road to victory will be four seniors, all two-year lettermen. They are James Hooten, a 6-1 freestyle sprinter from Atlanta, Georgia; Mike Offner from Metairie, La., specializing in the breaststroke and individual medley; George Staples, a sprinter from Ft. Worth Paschal, and David Trifon, an ex-All-Stater from Houston Waltrip participating in the freestyle sprint.

Adamson a native of England is completing his 31st year as head swimming coach at Aggie-land. He became nationally
