

Peace Corps Team Here Next Week

A blue-eyed blonde will help recruit Peace Corps volunteers at Texas A&M next week.

Monna Halley of Washington, D. C., and three former Peace Corps volunteers will operate an information booth in the Memorial Student Center, sign and test juniors and seniors interested in assisting people of underdeveloped countries.

"We'll talk to freshmen and sophomores, too," the attractive blonde said, "but we'll only sign juniors and seniors." The chief of volunteer travel said registering with the Peace Corps isn't an obligation. Assignment will be tendered following graduation.

A two-year foreign service tour with the Corps is invaluable job training for prospective employees of large industrial firms, emphasized Dr. Vance Edmondson of A&M, chairman of the University Peace Corps advisory council. Language training and opportunity to do advanced degree thesis research overseas were also listed.

A team of Jennie D. Beary, Sam Selkow and Michael Viola will show films and discuss Corps service in a meeting in the MSC Assembly Room at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Edmondson noted. A campus organization, Alpha Phi Omega, sponsors the program.

Miss Halley said the Peace Corps is eyeing agriculture students.

"A man who has worked on a farm all his life is remarkably suited for teaching the people we are trying to help," she commented.

Applicants must be no younger than 18.

Students who graduate and accept assignment are sent to school for eight weeks. Language, area studies and other knowledge to go with basic skill is studied before the trainee gets a 10-day leave and goes to his foreign assignment. Corps training sites are in the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Instruction is also contracted to universities such as Texas Tech and Hawaii.

The Corps pays subsistence and training costs to students in the U. S. and territories and furnishes living essentials on the job. Remuneration of $75 a month is set aside for the volunteer at completion of the two-year tour.

"We have 10,000 in the Corps now," Miss Halley said, "but we must replace 5,000 every year. We expect to be in another 10 countries by the end of the year. They continually request more teachers."

Community development and institution building are primary jobs performed by volunteers.

WINDING UP

Mark Claussen, sophomore chemical engineering major, cranks the engine of a model airplane as he prepares to take advantage of early week spring-like weather. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Claussen of Humble. Mark attended Aldine High School and has been a distinguished student two semesters at A&M.

Church Dedication Scheduled Sunday

Dedication services for the new sanctuary of Bryan's First Presbyterian Church will begin at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Three visiting ministers and the moderator of the Presbyterian Church of the United States will appear in the pulpit through Wednesday.

Dr. Paul Tudor Jones, pastor of the Idlewild Presbyterian Church in Memphis, Tenn., will give the dedicatory sermon Sunday morning on "What the Spirit Is Saying to the Churches."

S. J. Patterson, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, will deliver the charge to the congregation.

An organ recital will follow at 3 p.m. with Dr. Alexander Boggs Ryan, chairman of the Organ Department of Western Michigan University, at the console of the new $35,000 pipe organ.

Spiritual Enrichment Week services will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 2, with Dr. William Elliott, pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church of Dallas as speaker. On Wednesday, March 2, Dr. Jack Lancaster, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Houston, will preach.

The A&M Consolidated High School Choir will sing Tuesday evening. Texas A&M's Singing Cadets will sing Wednesday evening.

The new sanctuary features stained faceted glass windows, a comparatively new technique. Principal elements of the Old and New Testaments are represented by banks of windows on the sides and front of the sanctu-

Airplane Enthusiasts Herald Return Of Spring Weather

Robins and a hornet-like buzzing from open spaces herald spring at Texas A&M.

Model airplane pilots almost beat the usual harbinger of spring out each year as they launch aircraft built during the long winter evenings.

Any sunny, mild day will find the modeler and his high-pitched, snarling plane on drill fields near the Memorial Student Center, south of Duncan Dining Hall or any other area large enough for him to "U-control" his man-made "robin."

Junior accounting major Don Spangler of Houston and sophomore chemistry major Mark Claussen of Humble took to the air this week with Claussen's glow-plug powered model. Both have flown the mosquito-sized and sounding craft for two years, but Spangler was assisting Claussen in learning to manipulate wire-controlled stabilizers.

"Others at A&M fly 'U', free-flight and radio-controlled planes, but we have no formal organization," Spangler said. Fuel for from three to 10 minutes of flying time can be injected into thimble-size tanks. Once the engine is cranked and the ship is airborne, there's no turning back until the midjet powerplant has burned all the fuel.

Then the pilot, who pivots the plane about him from 20 yards away, tries to guide his ship back to earth without mishap.

Local High Bands Play At Stock Show

Brazos County Day at the Houston Fat Stock Show Saturday will be highlighted by a 30-minute concert of the A&M Consolidated High School Band.

The band, conducted by Bill Atkins, will play in concert with the Stephen F. Austin High School Band of Bryan. The Bryan band will be conducted by Jack Briggs.

The concert is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Saturday, preceding the 2 p.m. rodeo.
