Building Team Forum Begins Tuesday

Prominent architects, engineers and contractors will speak Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during the third annual building team forum.

Sponsored by the School of Architecture and the Department of Civil Engineering, the forum topic is "Esthetics and Economics."

The forum includes Architect Nathaniel Curtis of New Orleans, La., Consulting Engineer Dr. Lev Zetlin of New York, and Contractor Henry C. Beck Jr. of Dallas.

Moderator is Olindo Grossi, dean of Pratt Institute's School of Architecture, Brooklyn, New York.

Tulane Law Grant Open To Students

A $1,000 scholarship to Tulane University's Law School is available to qualified students.

Interested students with a "B" or better average and a law school admission test score of 500 or better should contact Dr. J. M. Nance, pre-law program advisor, 208 Nagle Hall.

Students Excel In Forestry Program

Outstanding records have been compiled by Texas A&M students who took advantage of a now-discontinued out-of-state forestry scholarship program sponsored by the State of Texas.

The scholarship program was halted at the start of this school year, Bob Rhodes of the Department of Range Science said, but added the two-year pre-forestry curriculum is still in operation.

During the 10 years the program operated, 15 of the students completed the first two years at Texas A&M and transferred to Louisiana State University.

Eight attained membership in Xi Sigma Phi, national forestry fraternity, and two others earned membership in Alpha Zeta, national agriculture fraternity, Rhodes said. Two attained the national scholastic society, Phi Kappa Phi.

Three have completed requirements for Master of Science degrees and a fourth is now in graduate school.

Prof To Present Physics Paper

Dr. J. B. Coon, professor of physics, will present a paper to the American Physical Society at their meeting March 28-31 in Durham, N. C.

The paper, "The Double-Minimum Potential and the Geometrical Structure of the 1A<sub>1</sub> State of H<sub>2</sub>CO (Formaldehyde)," was prepared by Coon, Victor T. Jones and Donald G. Naugle, both graduate students.

3 MSC Staffers To Attend Meet

Three Memorial Student Center staff members will attend the 43rd annual conference of the Association of College Unions International Sunday through Wednesday in New Orleans.

Attending from A&M are J. Wayne Stark, MSC director; Harold W. Gaines, student program supervisor, and Mrs. Betsy Fisher, student program advisor.

Hosted by Tulane University, the conference is to enable representatives to discuss problems and future plans of their college unions.

Program sessions are planned on 32 different topics.

Stark will participate in "The Union as an International Center," discussing the pros and cons of an international center separate from the union and ways the union can serve as an international center through programming.

OLD SOLDIERS MEET THE NEW

Clayton Fund Increases Ag Journalism Support

The Clayton Fund of Houston has increased its scholarship support in agricultural journalism from $1,500 to $4,000 for the 1966-67 school year, Delbert McGuire, Department of Journalism head has announced.

Included in the boost will be five $200 scholarships for junior college graduates in agriculture who transfer to Texas A&M to complete their work in agricultural journalism. The remainder will be available for students in the program.

Applications from junior college students should be submitted immediately through the supervisor to the Department of Journalism at Texas A&M so applicants may learn results in time to plan for the fall semester.

"This career field leads all others in communications in the demand for graduates," McGuire pointed out in announcing the scholarships. "An agricultural journalism graduate has the unique capability of serving in the general publication field as well as in specialized communications fields of agriculture."

Baptists Top Student Poll

Baptists dominate a poll indicating religious preference for spring semester students.

YMCA Secretary J. Gordon Gay reported 1,909 students prefer the Baptist faith.

Methodists, with 1,832, ranked second among 31 listed religions, while Catholics number 1,476.

Denominations with more than 100 students include Presbyterian, 593; Episcopal, 431; Church of Christ, 340; Lutheran (NLC), 311; Christian, 180; Lutheran (Missouri Synod), 129, and Protestant, 104.

Preferences totaling more than 10 students include Moslem, 68; Jewish, 63; Unitarians, 44; United Church of Christ, 28; Hindu, 27; Mormon, 19; Christian Science, 16; Congregational, 14; and Brethren, 12.

Religions new to the poll since last year are Druid, Armenian Christian, Four Square Gospel, Jain, B'Hai and Confusian.

Other religions, preferred by fewer than 10 A&M students are Greek Orthodox, Buddhist, Nazarene, Friends, Pentecostal and Seventh Day Adventist.

Chest To Name New Directors

Five new directors will be named at the annual membership meeting of the College Station United Chest Thursday to replace retiring board members and serve three years.

The yearly financial statement also will be studied at the 7:30 p.m. session in the A&M Consolidated High School Cafeteria, Dr. Chris H. Groneman, Chest president, announced.

"Any contributor during the current fiscal year is eligible to vote in the selection of new directors," he said.
